RECOMMENDATIONS.

"Mr. ROWLAND'S Grammar is not only based on the most approved systems, but, as a manual, is the most important, useful, and satisfactory work that has been penned upon the subject."—Carnarvon and Denbigh Herald.

"The author may safely be complimented as having produced a volume well worthy of the age we live in, and of the estimation in which he is held by his countrymen generally. . . . We have little doubt but that it will soon be reckoned amongst the best recognised authorities of Welsh Literature."—North Wales Chronicle.

"Decidedly the best Grammar of modern Cymraeg extant, and reflects very great credit upon the learned and judicious author."—Rev. John Williams Ab Ithel.

"The best Welsh Grammar, arranged after the model of the Greek and Latin Grammars that have more recently appeared in Germany, and therefore much more complete and precise in the doctrine of words than the earlier Welsh Grammars."—F. J. Mone, Director des Archives zu Carlsruhe.

"Mr. ROWLAND'S Welsh Grammar is always one of my travelling companions. I think it one of the most valuable modern contributions to Welsh Literature."—A. J. Jones, Esq., Judge of the County Court.

"I wish also to construct an Elementary Grammar in Breton. I intend to write on this subject to Mr. ROWLAND, to ask his permission to translate his excellent Grammar, or at least a great portion of it."—Charles de Gaulle (Barz Bro C'hall), Secretary to the Breuriez Breiz.

PREFACE TO THE FOURTH EDITION.

GREAT care and labour have been bestowed on the present edition.

The verbs have been rewritten, and the tenses conjugated much more fully and with greater precision than in previous editions.

Many rules have been added in different parts of the Work—some new, and others taken out of the Author's WELSH EXERCISES.

Some hundreds of the Examples have been translated into English, which will be of great assistance in understanding the rules under which the Examples are placed.

Under the Syntax of Prepositions a copious alphabetical list has been added of verbs and other parts of speech which are followed by particular prepositions, with examples and translations into English.

Instead of reprinting the "Questions given to the Candidates for the Powis Exhibition," it was thought proper to frame new questions and adapt them to the Grammar, so that the Student may examine himself, and find answers in the Grammar to all the questions given.

At the end an Index has been added, which, though somewhat copious, is not so full as we could have wished, for want of time : the Third Edition being completely out of print, the Publishers were desirous that the new edition should appear with as little delay as possible.

The whole Work has been carefully revised, and there are not many pages which have not been added to, or otherwise improved ; so that we hesitate not to say that the present edition is much less imperfect than the third.

In case any persons, in writing on this branch of literature, should be induced to copy from the pages of this Work, it is but just to hope they will acknowledge whence they have taken their quotations.

PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION.

THIS Work was undertaken with the view of facilitating the study of the Welsh Language, and of lessening the difficulties that have been wholly passed over in silence by preceding grammarians. It is sometimes asked, whether it is possible to lay down rules that would guide a stranger in acquiring a grammatical and accurate knowledge of the Welsh Language; and some are inclined to answer in the negative. But surely those who have studied the language carefully will feel no hesitation in stating that it is possible to gain as perfect a knowledge of the Welsh as of any other tongue. It is admitted that its idioms and peculiarities are many; but still they are capable of explanation, and are reducible to very plain and definite rules.

This Grammar, or rather this attempt to lay down a foundation of a Grammar of the Welsh Language, was commenced about three years ago; and it has been continued, as other employments afforded opportunities, from that time up to the present. But those who are acquainted with the state and contents of our existing Grammars will, I doubt not, at once confess that a longer period of uninterrupted study is necessary to bring out a work that could pretend to the accuracy and completeness of the Latin and Greek Grammars.

In its preparation, such Welsh Grammars were consulted as were likely to render the greatest aid, as those of Dr. Davies and Dr. W. O. Pughe; but in "Syntax," the greatest amount of assistance was obtained from the very learned and accurate Essay of the Rev. T. J. Hughes, who, at the Aberffraw Eisteddfod, obtained the prize offered by the Lord Bishop of St. David's, and the Rev. Charles Williams, of Holyhead. This Essay, independently of its intrinsic worth, merits great praise, as being the first regular attempt to explain the principles of Welsh Syntax. In giving definitions of points belonging to universal Grammar, and in exhibiting correspondence of idiom between the Welsh and the Latin and Greek languages, much help was also derived from Zumpt, Key, Arnold, Matthiæ, and Kühner.

All will allow that a Welsh Grammar, superior to any of those that have been hitherto published, is very much needed; but whether the present Work surpasses its predecessors, must be determined by the reader. It will be seen, there is no doubt, that many deficiencies exist in this production, and that its shortcomings are numerous. However, should a second edition be called for, it is hoped that these deficiencies may be amended, mistakes rectified, and many observations added which have now been omitted, owing partly to want of time, and partly to want of knowledge. And with this view it would be deemed a kindness if Welsh critics would, either publicly or privately, favour me with hints, emendations, and remarks, so that I may be enabled to send forth a second edition more systematic, more perfect, and more complete.

It is my duty to state that I am under very great obligations to the Rev. Thomas Briscoe, B.D., Vice-Principal and Tutor of Jesus College, Oxford, for the kind assistance he has rendered me, both in looking over the Work before it was sent to the Printer, and in correcting the proof-sheets while passing through the press. Were it not for him, and the Rev. William Briscoe, M.A., Fellow of Jesus College, it is doubtful whether the book would ever have been published; and if the reader derives any benefit from the Grammar, he, no doubt, will join me in acknowledging our gratitude to these two gentlemen.

THOMAS ROWLAND.

WELSH GRAMMAR.

PART I.

ORTHOGRAPHY.

1. The Welsh Alphabet consists of thirty-one letters:—
A a, B b, C c, Ch ch, D d, Dd dd, E e, F f, Ff ff,
G g, Ng ng, Ngh ngh, H h, I i, L l, Ll ll, M m,
Mh mh, N n, Nh nh, O o, P p, Ph ph, R r, Rh rh,
S s, T t, Th th, U u, W w, Y y.

SOUNDS OF THE LETTERS.

2. A is pronounced, when short, like a in man, mat; when long, like a in far, psalm.

B = be, as in English.

C = èk, like k in English. It is never soft like c in city.

Ch¹ = èç (the c aspirated) like ch of the Dutch in nacht, but more guttural than ch in the Scottish loch.

D = de, like the English d in deed, do.

Dd = èth (soft) like th in with, thee: never like th in thought.

E = a, when short, like e in hen, met; when long, like a in cane, mare.

F = èv, like the English v.

¹ Ch, followed by w, is frequently a radical letter: chwaer, sister; chucrthin, to laugh.

Ff = èf, like the English f in fair, for.

G = èg, like the English g in get, dog : never soft like g in giant.

Ng = èng, like ng of the English in long, length.

Ngh has the sound of ng with a very strong breathing. "Its power may be made out in the name Nottingham, by suspending the breath on the letter i, instead of the proper division." Notti-*ng*ham.

H = haitch or he, has the same sound as h of the English in horrid, hand ; but is never silent like h in hour.

I = e, when short, very like i in pin ; when long, like ee in flect.

L = èl, like the English l.

Ll = èll, has no sound in any language corresponding to it. The Spanish *ll*¹ and the Italian gl are somewhat like it.

M = èm, as in English.

Mh has the sound of m with a very strong breathing. "Its power may be found by uniting the sound of m, in the word am, to h, in the word here, by a quick pronunciation of the phrase I am here." I a *m*here.

N = èn, as in English.

Nh has the sound of n with a very strong breathing. "Its power is perceivable in the word inherent."

O = o, when short, like o in not, got ; when long, somewhat similar to o in bone, note.

P = pe, as in English.

Ph = èph, ùph or phe, like the English f in fair, or ph in philosopher.

R = èr, something like the English r in rough.

Rh like the Greek ξ ; as in $\xi\eta\tau\omega\zeta$.

S = ès, like s in sin, same : never like s in praise, choose.

T = te, like the English t in to, fat.

Th = èth (hard) like th in thin, thick ; never like th in thou.

U = è, when short, somewhat similar to i in this, live, or u in busy ; when long, somewhat similar to e in me.

W = oo, when short, like oo in good; when long, like oo in boon.

Y has two sounds. Its primary sound is like that of u in fur, run, or e in her, stern; its secondary sound is like that of the Welsh u. Both sounds are exemplified in myfyr and hyny.

3. The secondary sound of y occurs—

a. In monosyllables; as, llym, sharp, tyn, tight, hyn, this.

(a) But the following words are exceptions, having the primary sound: dy, thy, dyd and dwt, hold! fy (obs. my), my, myn, by, in swearing, y, the, that, and expletive adv., yd and ydd, expletive adv., ym, my and in, yn, in, &c., ynog, in, yr=y, ys, truly, yth, thy, and the expletive y joined to pronouns, as y'm, y'rh, y'i, y'n, y'ch, y'u.

b. In the last syllable of words of more than one syllable; as, ysgrifenydd, writer, erfyn, to beg. If a syllable is added, the primary sound is resumed; as, ysgrifenyddion, writers, erfyniau, petitions.¹

c. If w and y are pronounced separately in monosyllables (as in the words mwyn = mw-yn, bŵyd = bw-yd, cŵyn = cw-yn, gŵyl = gw-yl), y has the secondary sound in the derivatives and compounds of such words; as, mcynhau, enjoy, bwyta, eat, cwyno, complain, gwynhos, wake-night.

(a) But if w and y are pronounced conjointly (as, chwyn, chwyrn, chwgs), y has its primary sound in derivatives and compounds; as, chwyrn, chwyrnau, chwysu. To this there are several exceptions; such as gwnech, gwynfyd, diwygiad, &c.

d. In the prefix cyd, and sometimes in cyn; as cydeistedd, cydfyned, cynoesoedd; and in adjectives and adverbs prefixed to other words; as, synfyfyrio, hyllidremio, cryfarfog.

(a) These are by some written with a hyphen, syn-fyfyrio, cryf-arfog, which may be regarded as indicating that y in the prefixed word is to have the same sound as when the word stands unconnected.

4. In other circumstances this letter has its proper or primary sound; as, cynatf, syndod, cyfiawnder.

Exceptions: teyrnas and its derivatives; the derivatives of rhyw, gwyc, and byw (except bywyd, &c.); and some other words.

5. Thus all the letters of the Welsh alphabet, except y, have only one sound respectively; and in all their combinations this sound is preserved without any change, or without its becoming quiescent. Such diphthongs as ae, oe, (e.g. daeth, ocn;) are often pronounced as if written au and ou; but a correct reader will give them their proper sound. Therefore, as Dr Pughe says, "the sounds of the letters must be considered as the perfect standard of the pronunciation of the Welsh language, and the criterion of correct speaking."

6. J, k, q, v, x, and z, occur in foreign names. Many writers, however, will not admit them into our language, but write all foreign words with our own characters. Thus, Job = Iob; Ezeciel = Eseciel; Quintilian = Cwintilian; Virgil = Fyrgil (or Fyrsil); Alexander = Alecsander; Zadoc = Sadoc.

7. Ch, dd, ff, ll, ng, ph, th, &c., though double letters, represent but one simple sound.

8. Several attempts have been made from the time of Dr. John David Rhys, who lived some three hundred years ago, to that of Dr. William Owen Pughe, to render the established Orthography more simple, and in accordance with the genius and peculiarities of the language; but all their labours have proved in vain.

CLASSIFICATION OF THE LETTERS.

9. Letters are divided into vowels and consonants.

10. Seven of the letters are vowels: a, e, i, o, u, w, y:
a, e, o, w, y, are mutable: i,¹ u, immutable.

(a) I and w are sometimes consonants (§§ 396-398).

11. Consonants are divided into radical (or initial), and derivative (or non-initial).

12. The radical consonants are those which begin words in their original state. The derivative consonants are such as are mutations of some of the radical, and which cannot stand at the head of any Welsh words in their original state. They are always influenced by some preceding word; and when this word is taken away, they reassume their radical form. Thus, words must be looked for in the Dictionary either under the vowels or the radical consonants.²

13. The radical consonants are again divided into immutable and mutable.

14. The immutable consonants are ch (followed by w), ff, h, n, s. These never undergo any change whatever, but remain steady and immoveable under all circumstances.

² But the words fal, fel, felh, fe, fo, fy, which are either contractions or mutations of words beginning with vowels or radical consonants, are to be looked for under f.

Such words as lefain, lamp, lwmp, lŷn, which are not originally Welsh, must be looked for under l.

15. The mutables are nine : c, p, t; g, b, d; ll, m, rh. These are changed into other letters of the same organ, when preceded by certain governing words. C, p, t, undergo three changes ; g, b, d, two; and ll, m, rh, one.

16. The derivative consonants are b, ch, d, dd, f, g, ng, ngh, l, m, mh, n, nh, ph, r, and th, which are modifications of the mutable consonants.

(a) The letters, b, d, g, m, n, are both radical and the derivatives of p, t, c, b, d. They are radical in Bys, finger.

Gwraig, wife.

Nain, grandmother.

Dafad, sheep.

Modryb, aunt.

But they are modifications of p, t, c, b, d, in Dy len (rad. pen).

Dy gar (rad. car).

Fy nafad (rad. dafad).

Dy dad (rad. tad).

Fy mys (rad. bys).

17. Consonants are also divided according to the organs of speech chiefly employed in uttering them.

α. B, f, ff, m, mh, p, ph, are labials.

β. D, dd, n, nh, t, th, s, linguals (or dentals).

γ. C, ch, g, ng, ngh, h, gutturals.

δ. Ll, l, rh, r, palatals.

INFLECTIONS OF VOWELS.

18. The vowels which admit of being changed into other vowels are, a, e, o, u, y. They are changed (a) to distinguish number ; as dafad, sheep, pl. defaid; (b) to distinguish gender ; as llwm, bare, fem. llom; (c) to form the 3rd pers. sing. fut. of verbs ; as safaf, I will stand, 3d pers. saif, he will stand; (d) to render words more euphonious ; as dufr, water, dyfroedd.

A { is { ai ; as dafad, a sheep, defaid, sheep.
changed { e ; as glân, clean, glendid, cleanliness.
into { ei ; as bardd, a bard, beirdd, bards.
 y ; as cadarn, strong, cedyrn, strong, pl.

E into { i ; as draen, thorn, drain, thorns.
 u ; as maes, field, meusydd, fields.
 y ; as pabell, tent, pebyll, tents.

O into y ; as porth, porch, pyrth, porches.

W into { o ; as trwm, heavy, trom, heavy, fem.
 y ; as pwn, pack, pynau, packs.

Y into e ; as brych, speckled, brech. speckled, fem.

DIPHTHONGS.

19. Dr. Davies divides the diphthongs into proper and improper.

20. The proper diphthongs are the following :

ae	alaeth, grief .	eu	breuddwyd, dream .	oian,	to listen .
ai	henaint, old age .	ew	llew, lion .	ow	alas!
au	aur, gold .	ey	teyrn, king .	uw	Duw, God .
aw	llaw, hand .	iw	lliw, colour .	wy	pwyl, who?
ei	heneiddio, to grow old .	oe	oed, age .	yw	rhyw, sort .

21. The improper diphthongs are the following :

I before a vowel.

ia	iâd, pate .	io	Iôr, Lord .
ie	ierthi, goads .	iy	iyrechell, young rose .

W before a vowel.

wa	gwâg, empty .	wo	gwobr, reward .
we	chwêch, six .	wu	gwull, flowers .
wi	gwin, wine .

I before a diphthong.

iae	cyffelybiaeth, similitude .	iei	ieithydd, linguist .
iai	anghyfiaith, of a strange tongue .	ieu	ieuaif, youngest .
iau	lliwiau, colours .	iew	iewan, scream .
iaw	cyfiawn, just .	ioe	erioed, ever .

W before a diphthong.

wae	chwaer, sister .	wew	gweunydd, meadows .
wai	gwain, sheath .	wew	gwew, urgency .
wau	gwaudd, daughter-in-law .	wiw	gwiw, worthy .
waw	gwawd, irony .	wyw	gwyw, withered .
wei	gweini, to serve .

22. Inflections. Ae is changed into ei and eu : as,

Maen, stone, pl. meini.

Maes, field, pl. meusydd.

Ai and ei are in a few instances changed into a : as,

Gwraig, woman, pl. gwragedd.

Lleidr, thief, pl. lladron.

Dail, leaves of a book, sing. dalen.

Neidr, snake, pl. nadroedd.

Chwain, fleas, sing. chwanen.

Deigr, tear, pl. dagrau.

Aw is very frequently changed into o : as,

Mawl, praise, vb. mol.

Caws, cheese, sing. cosyn.

Prawf, proof, vb. profi.

Brawd, brother, pl. brodyr.

Tlawd, poor, pl. tlodion.

Llawr, floor, pl. lloriau.

(a) Aw is sometimes changed into ew and ow. Cawr, giant, pl. cewri. Cawg, basin, pl. cowgiau. But the change of aw into ow is disapproved of by many critics, who maintain that the diphthong should either be changed into o, or remain in its radical form. Thus the derivative of Ŵdiawg, angry, should be either lidiogrwydd or lidiawgrwydd.

Oe is in a few instances changed into wy and ae: as, Croen, skin, pl. crŵyn. Oen, lamb, pl. ŵyn. Troed, foot, pl. traed.

MUTATIONS OF CONSONANTS.

23. "The principle of literal mutation, as a regular system, is peculiar to the Celtic dialects; though the effect of such an aptitude in some of the letters to change their sound, is seen to pervade all languages. But it regulates some of the primary forms of construction in these tongues, as well with respect to syntax as to the composition of words."¹

24. The mutable consonants, or the consonants capable of assuming other forms of modifications, are the following: C, P, T, G, B, D, Ll, M, Rh. These are divided into three classes, or, as Dr. Davies calls them, declensions, with three letters in each.

25. The first class comprises c, p, t: the second, g, b, d: the third, ll, m, rh.

26. When these letters are in their original or unchanged forms, they are said to be in the radical sound; but when they are changed into other letters, owing to the influence that the word or syllable, which immediately precedes, has over them, they are said to be in the middle (or soft), the nasal, or the aspirate sound. Take, for instance, the word câr, a friend.

Rad.	Mid.	Nasal.	Asp.
Câr, a friend.	dy gâr.	fy nghâr.	ei châr.

27. These various alterations in the form of the nine mutables take place, (1) In syntax, which may be called syntactical mutation; (2) In the composition of words, which may be called etymological mutation.

28. Syntactical mutation. To treat of the changes which consonants undergo in Syntax, belongs properly to that division of Grammar; but as this subject is one of peculiar importance, and must frequently be mentioned before we come to treat of Syntax, it is expedient to acquaint the student with its leading principles as early as possible. Persons, who are not acquainted with the Welsh language from their infancy, always complain that they are puzzled with the continual changes of the consonants. This may appear to them a greater difficulty, inasmuch as the languages with which they may be conversant have nothing analogous. This constitutes the most peculiar characteristic of the British tongue; and it is said that very few languages, except its sister dialects, have anything in common with it. "In the changes and variations of these mutables lies a great part of the art and mystery of this very peculiar tongue, the most curious, perhaps, and the most delicate for its structure of any language in the world."¹ It must not be supposed, however, that this difficulty is insurmountable; the mutations are made systematically, and they are all reducible to definite rules, which will be found interspersed throughout the present work, with a synopsis of the whole at the end.

29. The changes are made for two purposes; first, to distinguish words, to show their various relations and connections, and to fix and ascertain their proper meaning;² secondly, "to distinguish the sound, to ease the pronunciation, and to render it smooth and harmonious."³

30. This principle is not confined to those parts of speech denominated "declinable," as the term "declension," used by Dr. Davies, would lead the classical scholar to suppose; but it extends also to some of those which, by grammarians, are termed "indeclinable." Thus the conjunction pan, when preceded by a, takes the aspirate sound. "A phan ddaeth efe, and when he came."

31. The following table exhibits the changes of which each letter is susceptible:—

Observation. — The pronouns, which stand at the head of the table, govern the sounds over which they are respectively placed. They will aid a person well acquainted with the language to find out the names of the different sounds, but are of no assistance to a stranger, whose ear does not immediately direct him to ascertain the vocal mutations.

		Radical.¹ Eu, their.	Middle. Dy, thy.	Nasal. Fy, my.	Aspirate. Ei, her.
1 Class.	{ C P T	Câr, a friend Pen, a head Tâd, a father	Gâr Ben Dâd	Nghâr Mhen Nhâd	Châr Phen Thâd
2 Class.	{ G B D	Gŵr, a man Bara, bread Duw, God	—ŵr ² Fara Dduw	Ngŵr Mara Nuw
3 Class.	{ Ll M Rh	Llaw, a hand Mam, a mother Rhaw, a spade	Llaw Fam Raw		3

32. Thus the first class is susceptible of the three changes; the middle, nasal, and aspirate. The second class of two; the middle and nasal. The third class of one only; the middle.

33.  The radical sound supplies the aspirate of the second class, and the nasal and aspirate of the third. (Ei gwr; fy llaw; ei llaw.)

(a) The words ni, na, and oni form an exception. These are followed by the asp. of the 1st class, and the mid. of the 2d and 3d. (See Synoptical View, at the end.)

34. Etymological mutation.—The mutable consonants are susceptible of changes in composition of words. With few exceptions, their mutations are the same as those in syntax, and the principle by which they are changed into other letters is the same. Thus in the word anfuddiol, compounded of an and buddiol, b is changed into f, because it is governed by the preceding particle an.

(a) Sometimes the last letter of the preceding syllable is influenced by the following syllable.

² Omission of the initial letter is the sign of the middle sound of G.

³ Some few writers, following the corrupt pronunciation of certain parts of S. W., change m into mh and n into nh after the fem. pron. ei, her. Ei mham, her mother. Ei nhain, her grandmother.

The letters g, b, d, are sometimes changed into c, p, t, if a syllable follows ; as Tebyg, like, tehyrach. Gwlyb, wet, gwlypach. Tlawd, poor, tlotach.

P and t are sometimes respectively changed into m and n ; as,

Pump, pummed.	Tymp, tymmor.
Dant, dannedd.	Meddiant, meddiannau.

(b) The letter ff occurs in some words where we should expect f ; as,

Coffâu (cof-hau),	to call to mind.
Cyffylog (cy-hyl),	a woodcock.
Cyffwrdd (cyf-hwrdd),	to touch.
Cyffelyb (cy-mal),	like.

35. Letters are changed in the composition of words merely for the sake of euphony : annysgedig for andysgedig ; diben for dipen. [The same principle extends to a certain degree in Greek and Latin : συλλαμβάνω for συνλαμβάνω ; συνπάζω for συνπάσχω ; colligo for conligo ; accipio for adcupio.]

36. In forming compound words, the preceding component part, whether a mere prefix or a more substantial word, requires that the following syllable should be in the middle sound.

Amgylchu (fr. am-cylchu),	to surround.
Gorseddfainc (fr. gorsedd-maine),	a throne.
Argraff (fr. ar-craff),	inscription.
Brenhindy (fr. brenin-ty),	a king's palace.

37. The above is the rule ; but when the preceding syllable is nothing more than a common prefix, the rule is very frequently violated. The most irregular prefixes are a, an, cy, cyn (first) e, en, gor, tra, and as, es, ys, with their compounds, cys, dis, dys, &c.

The government of these, as well as the other prefixes, is explained under § 386.

ACCENTUATION OF WORDS.

38. Accent on the penult.—Words of two syllables and upwards are accentuated on the penult ; that is, on the last syllable but one.

39. Accordingly, when the word is lengthened by a syllable or syllables suffixed, the accent moves towards the end. Thus,

Perch'en, a possessor	Accent on the first syllable.
Perchen'og, a possessor	„ second syllable.
Perchenog'aeth, possession	„ third syllable.
Perchenogaeth'au, possessions	„ fourth syllable.

40. Accent on the ultima.—Infinitive verbs ending with the suffix hau or au, and such of the finite tenses of the same verbs as have a monosyllable for their termination, are accented on the last syllable.

Infín.	Glanhau'.	Bywhau'.	Cryfhau'.
	Nacáu'.	Caniatáu'.	Iacháu'.
Fin.	Glanhaf'.	Glanhei'.	Glanhawn'.

(a) Some few prefer the open form glanhäau, placing a diæresis over the first syllable of the suffix : others make two syllables of hau, au, &c., and thus accent the word on the penult.

Glanhäu. Glanhëi. Glanhäwn.

(b) The circumflex accent and h.—The circumflex over the verbal suffix hau or au is intended to show the accent, not the quantity: hence some maintain that, as h performs the same office, the circumflex is unnecessary when the h is introduced: others make use of both, writing glanhâu, bychâu, &c. As the accent naturally falls on the syllable beginning with h, it would be better to omit the circumflex except in those cases where h is inadmissible before au. See § 96 (a).

41. Nouns ending with the suffix hâd (or âd) are accented on the last syllable ; as Coffâd ; glanhâd ; bywhâd ; cryfhâd.

(a) This exception is accounted for by the circumstance of two syllables being contracted into one. For instance, glanhâd would be written in full, glanhäad, and it would thus have the accent placed on the proper syllable, that is, on 'ha.' Hence some writers, desirous of lessening the number of exceptions, prefer the more open glanhäad, to the contracted forms glanhâd, &c.

42. Infinitive verbs ending with oi, and some with eu, have the accent on the last syllable.

Oi.	Ymdroi'.	Gordoi'.	Parotoi'.	Cryrhoi'.
	Osgoi'.	Amdoi'.	Cyffroi'.	Deffroi'.
Eu.	Cytleu'.	Dileu'.	Dyneu'.	Dyheu'.

43. And if the termination of the finite tenses of such verbs be monosyllabic, the accent is generally on it ; but if it be of more than one syllable, the accent assumes its proper place.

One syll. Parotoi' ; parotown' ; parotowch'.
Two syll. Paroto'af ; paroto'ais ; paroto'aist.

(a) This exception is accounted for on the same ground as the preceding ; for, etymologically speaking, the terminations oi, eu, own, &c., are not one, but two syllables. For instance, ymdroi, cytleu, parotown, are divisible into ymdro-i, cytle-u, paroto-wn. Hence some writers always place a diæresis over the former syllable, thus indicating that the accent should fall on it : ymdröi, cytlëu, parotöwn. Usually, however, the two syllables are considered as one.

44. The observations made under § 43 (a) are applicable to the finite tenses of bryfa, to eat, addaw, to promise, gadau, to leave, gurandaw, to listen, taraw, to strike, and their derivatives, ymadau, ymurandaw, ymduraw, &c.

One syll.	Gwrandaw'n'.	Gwrandawch'.
Two syll.	Gwrandaw'af.	Gwrandaw'i.

45. Some adjectives in us, formed from verbs in hau or áu, oi, and eu, and from other words, are accented on the ultima.

Bywhaus', enlivening .	Ymarhous', dilatory .
Farhaus', lasting .	Cyfeus', convenient .
Crynhous', tidy .	Chwareus', playful .
Cyffrous', exciting .	Ammheus', doubtful .
Deffrous', wakeful .	Trofaus', perverse .

(a) Or bywhäus, cyffröus, cyfëus, &c., the same as above, § 43 (a).

45 (1). Plural nouns ending in feydd (as porfeydd, pl. of porfa) have the accent on the ultima.

Porfeydd', pastures .	Torfeydd', multitudes .
Golygfeydd', sceneries .	Trofeydd', turnings .

(a) Or porfëydd, golygfëydd, &c., as above, § 43 (a).

46. Dissyllables beginning with the negative prefix di are frequently pronounced as two separate words. Thus,

Diben; dios; diblant; diawch; didraul,
are pronounced as if written

Di ben; di os; di blant; di awch; di draul.

(a) The word dibris, when it signifies priceless, is accented on the ultima,—dibris'; when=reckless, on the penult,—dí'bris.

47. Dissyllabic adjectives beginning with the particle go are frequently pronounced as two separate words. Thus,

Gobrudd; godaer; godrwm; goddig; gogloff,
are pronounced as if written

Go brudd; go daer; go drwm; go ddig; go gloff.

(a) In fact, although these words, and many others, are recorded in Dr. Pughe's Dictionary as compound words, and occur sometimes as such; for example, yet, for the most part, they are very properly written as distinct words.

“O Dduw gwyn! i bryfyn brych On'd oedd odrwm dy edrych?”¹

48. Some verbs, beginning with the prefix ym, have the accent placed on the last syllable of the 3rd pers. sing. of future indic. and 2nd pers. sing. imperative; as,

¹ “O blessed God! to a mean worm was it not melancholy to behold Thee?”

Ymwelwedd: ymwel'w.
Ymolchi: ymolch'w.

Ymguddio: ymgudd'w.
Ymadaw: ymad'w.

49. Some dissyllables beginning with ys are accented on the last syllable; as,

Ysbawd, shoulder.
Ysgrêch, scream.
Yslac, slack.

Ystâd, state.
Ystanc, stake.
Ystôr, store.

Ystên, jug.
Ystorm, storm.
Ystwr, stir.

(a) Some maintain that these words should be considered as monosyllables, and written shawd, sgrêch, slac, stâd, stanc, &c.

(b) When the last syllable is long, it has often, very properly, the circumflex over it: ysgrêch, ystâd, &c.

50. Substantives ending in awdr are generally accented on the ultima.

Creawdr, Creator.
Barniawdr, Judge.
Bywiawdr, Giver of life.
Dysgawdr, teacher.

Iachawdr, Saviour.
Llywiawdr, governor.
Pryniawdr, redeemer.
Amherawdr, emperor.

(a) Instead of awdr, the open form awdwr is now preferred. Creawdwr, dysgawdwr, &c.

51. The personal pronouns myfi, tydi, efe and efo, hyhi, nyni, chwychwi, hwynt-hwy, (I, thou, he, she, we, you, they,) are accented on the last syllable.

Myfi'; tydi'; efe'; efo'; hyhi', &c.

(a) Myfi, tydi, nyni, chwychwi, have, in some districts of North Wales, the accent laid on the proper syllable; that is, on the penult. ('Tyred efo my'fi,' come with me.)

52. Such compound prepositions as goruwch, above, goris, below, uwchlaw, above, gerllaw, near, gerbron, before, heblaw, beside, islaw, below, are accented on the last syllable; as,

Goruwch'; goris'; uwchlaw'; gerllaw'; heblaw'.

(a) But these, except such as are compounded with gor, which is an inseparable preposition, are very properly considered by many as separate words, requiring to be written uwch law, ger llaw, heb law, &c.

52 (1). When the prep. yn is prefixed to a monosyllable (thus forming a dissyllable) the accent falls on the ultima. See § 98 (b).

Y'mhlithl' (=ym mhlith), amongst. Y'mysg' (=ym mysg), amongst.

53. "Names of towns, villages, farms, and other descriptive proper names, present frequent exceptions, which are accented as if the words comprising them were written separately."

Caergrawnt=Caer Grawnt, Cambridge.

Abergwaun=Aber Gwaun, Fishguard.

Penybont=Pen y bont, Bridgend.

(a) Hyphens are sometimes, and very properly, inserted between the component parts of the names.

Pen-y-bont.

Maes-têg.

Glan-llyn.

Cefn-côch.

Bryn-du.

Ty³u-y-llan.

54. Several other words, which do not admit of a classification, are accented on the ultima; such as Achlân, altogether.

Afler, untidy.

Aie (=ai e), is it?

Amgau, to encompass.

Argau, to shut in.

Anghytân, discordant.

Cyd-ddwyn (=cyd ddwyn), to bear with.

Cyd-fyw (=eyd fyw), to live with.

Cyhyd (also cy'hyd), as long.

Cytân, unanimous.

Diwahan, undivided.

Eriôed, ever.

Gwahân, separation.

Onide (=oid e), is it not?

Prydnawn, afternoon.

Trachefn, again.

Ychwaith (or chwaith), either.

Ymdrin (also ym'drin), to meddle.

Ymddwyn, to conceive. (Ym'ddwyn, to behave.)

Ymgau, to shut one's self.

Yngom, chat.

Ymwneyd, to deal with.

Ymhëdd, to entreat.

Ysgolhaig, scholar.

55. Accent on the antepenult.—Some trisyllables having w as the second syllable, have the accent on the first; as,

Medd'wdod; gwel'wlas; gwedd'wdod; gwedd'wdai.

Mar'wnad; hoe'wder; chwel'wder; gwae'wfon.

56. The words Seisneg, Seisones, and Seisonig are accented on the first syllable: Seis'oneg, Seis'ones, Seis'onig. Hence many writers, in order to have the accent placed on the penult, write Seisneg, Seisnes, Seisnig.

QUANTITY OF WORDS.¹

57. All syllables are long, short, or half long (or middle); and, in general, their quantity may be known by their final consonants.

58. Monosyllables.—All monosyllables are either long or short.

¹ A considerable portion of this chapter is taken from 'Ieithyddiaeth' by Cymro llwyr, in the 'Gwladgarwr,' and from the Rev. D. S. Evans' 'Ilythyraeth.' Both these writers have treated the Quantity of words very minutely.

(a) As in gender and pl. number of substantives, so in the quantity of words, the dialects of North and South Wales are often at variance. Some words are long in N. W., and short in S. W.; and vice versâ. For example, llesg and hesp are long in N. W. (llësg, hësp), and short in S. W. (llësg, hësp.) Heb and nid are short in N. W. (hëb, nîd), and long in S. W. (hëb, nîd).

59. Monosyllables ending in ch, d, dd, f, g, s, th, are generally long.

ch. Cwch, boat. dd. Bodd, pleasure. g. Ceg, mouth. th. Llath, yard.
d. Bad, boat. f. Llef, voice. s. Pys, peas. Syth, straight.

(a) Byth (ever) is common (bÿth or bÿth), but should properly be long.

60. Monosyllables ending in c, ng, m, p, t, are generally short.

c. Llac, loose. m. Llam, leap. t. Ffrwt, sudden.
ng. Ing, strait. p. Gwep, visage. Twt, neat.

61. Monosyllables ending in b, ff (ph), ll, l, n, r, are uncertain; i.e. some are short, and some are long.

Short.	Long.	Short.	Long.
Cob, embankment.	Mab, son.	Tal, tall.	Tal, payment.
Chwaff, instantly.	Rhaff, rope.	Bryn, hill.	Bran, crow.
Mwll, sultry.	Oll, all.	Ar, on.	Ar, arable land.

62. A vowel before two or more consonants is short.

Nant, brook. Perth, lush. Camp, game. Llestr, vessel.

(a) But when two vowels of the same name are contracted into one (e.g. aa=a, oo=o.) the quantity of the vowel is long, even when two or more consonants follow.

Cânt=caant, they shall have. Ffônt=ffoont, they may flee.
Gwnânt=gwnaant, they will do. Trônt=troont, they may turn.

(b) In N.W., vowels are long in monosyllables before llt, sg, (sc,) sp, st.

Hâllt, salt. Llësg, feeble. Hësp, barren. Clûst, ear.

63. Diphthongs.—A, e, i, o, u, y, in ai, aw (see below). au, ei, ew (see below), eu, ey, iw, oi, ow, uw, yw, are generally short. A and o in ae and oe are long. Wy is long and short.

Short.	Mâith.	Câwr.	Hâul.	Llëill.	Mëwn.	Nëu.
	Gwnëyd.	Lliw.	Ffôi.	Fföwch.	Dûw.	Ûyw.
Long.	Sâeth.	Bâedd.	Dâeth.	Trôed.	Pöen.	Cöed.
Wy.	Gwÿr.	Mÿwn.	Gwÿn.	Mÿwynder.

(a) A and e before w final are long in N. W. Llâw, hand. Bâw, dirt. Llëw, lion.

64. Penults are either short or half long (or middle).

65. When the penult is short, it must in pronunciation end in a consonant. Thus, àteb, to answer, must be pronounced at-eb, not a-teb: cànu, to bleach, can-u, not ca-nu.

66. When the penult is half long, it must in pronunciation end in a vowel, and the vowel must be pronounced short. Thus, canu, to sing, must be pronounced cà-nu, not can-u: caru, to love, cà-ru, not car-u: glanach, cleaner, glà-nach, not glan-ach.

67. Penults are short, if they are short in their simple, monosyllabic forms.

Cànu, to bleach, fr. càn.

Brônau, breasts, fr. brôn.

(a) Ll and s are always short in penults, although ll is uncertain, and s is long, in monosyllables. Hôll: hëllol, entire. Bÿs: bÿsedd, fingers.

68. Long monosyllables become half long in penults, when a syllable beginning with a vowel is added.

Câr: caru = cà-ru, to love.

Tôn: tonau = tò-nau, tunes.

(a) B, f (ph), and l, are half long in penults, if the next syllable begins with a vowel, although they are uncertain in monosyllables. Hêl: hela = hè-la.

69. Long monosyllables are made short in penults, when a syllable beginning with a consonant is added.

Mâb: mâbsant, patron saint.

Tâd: tâdmaeth, foster-father.

Glân: glânwaith, clean.

Tân: tânio, to fire.

(a) I and w at the beginning of syllables, as above, are consonants.

SYLLABLES AND WORDS.

70. A syllable is a simple sound represented by one or more letters. A-chas, odious. Ffrwyth-lawn, fruitful.

71. "Dividing words into syllables is a very different operation, according to the different ends proposed by it." Words are divided (a) to show their etymology; (b) to exhibit their exact pronunciation in reading.

72. For etymological purposes, words are divided into syllables according to the etymology assigned to them. Therefore hynod, noted, rhagenw, pronoun, cablair, calumny, must be divided into hy-nod, rhag-enw, cabl-air (not hyn-od, rha-genw, cab-lair,) because they are compounded of hy and nod, rhag and enw, cabl and gair.

73. But in reading, words must be divided according to their pronunciation, without any regard to etymology. Thus, tadau, fathers, canu, to sing, glanach, cleaner, must in reading be divided into ta-dau, ca-nu, gla-nach, although etymologically they should be written tad-au, can-u, glan-ach.

74. Words are divided into primitive, compound, and derivative.

75. The primitive words are the most elementary parts of the language, and contain but one syllable. (Bach, pen, ci, cor, llaw, cae, da.)

(a) If we confine the term "primitive" to those small root-words which are not reducible to simpler elements, the primitives are not very numerous; but if under this term we comprehend those monosyllables which can be deduced from still more elementary words, either British or foreign, it may be said that the Welsh language abounds with primitive words. We give a few instances of such words, accompanied by their etymologies.

Brâd, treachery; L. prodo, fr. pro-do. Doeth, wise; L. doctus, fr. doceo. Caeth, bound; L. captus, fr. capio. Clais, a bruise; Gr. κλάσις, fr. κλάω.

Câd, a battle	} from ca, a hold, a shutting on.
Cae, an enclosure
Caw, a band

76. Compound words are formed of two or more of the primitives, or of prefixes and primitives.

Cadfarch (cad-march), a war-horse.	Geirwir (gair-gwir), truth-telling.
Modrwy (bawd-rhwy), a ring.	Ceinfalch (cain-balch), showy.
Geirlyfr (gair-llyfr), a dictionary.	Sychdir (sych-tir), dry ground.
Anneg (an-teg), unfair.	Anghyfiawn (an-cyf-iawn), unjust.
Cyfundrefn (cyf-un-trefn), a system.	Dychryn (dy-cryn), terror.

77. When two or more substantives, or substantives and adjectives, are joined together to form a compound, the adjective or the substantive that expresses the notion of an adjective, takes the precedence.

Iawnfarn , right judgment.	Dwfrbeiriant , water-engine.
Drygfyd , adversity.	Awrgylch , atmosphere.

(a) The latter noun is put in the middle sound: cadfarch. (See § 36.)

(b) But we have several compounds formed contrary to the above rule. In drychfeddwl, pwyslais, mammaeth, the noun in the possessive case is made to follow the other, whereas, according to the genius of the language, it should either precede the governing noun, or the compound should no longer be such. Thus mammaeth should have been written either maeth-fam, or as two distinct words, mam maeth. Names of churches in Wales, and some names of cities, are joined together in the same way; as, Llan-dingad, Llanfair, Llanfôr, Caerfyrddin, Caerlleon, &c., which ought to have been written as separate words: Llan Mair, Llan Mor, Cuer Myrddin, &c.

78. Derivative words are formed of primitives, or of compounds, by the addition of suffixes.

Barnol (barn-ol), judicial.

Colledigaeth (coll-ed-ig-aeth), perdition.

Tragwyddoldeb (tra-gwydd-ol-deb), eternity.

Swyddog (swydd-og), an officer.

Cyfiawnhâd (cyf-iawn-hâd), justification.

Teyrnas (teyrn-as), a kingdom.

(a) Some of the derivative words contain six or even seven syllables : in general, however, they do not exceed four or five, and as Dr. Pughe remarks, "words having more than five are seldom used except from a sort of affectation."

SPELLING.

79. The mode of spelling Welsh words has been, and still is, very irregular and inconsistent. Without referring to individuals, who have ingeniously constructed new systems, among whom Dr. W. O. Pughe may be considered as the leader, it may be said that all the various schools may be regarded under two generic heads : one the New School, and the other the Old School.

80. The members of the New School are those who follow Dr. Pughe's general principles ; those of the Old are such as have perfected into a system what appeared to have been the general tendency of the writers of the oldest manuscripts.

81. The principal points in which these schools differ are (1) the use of double consonants to indicate the quantity of words ; (2) the use of certain prefixes, di, dy, cy, cym, &c. ; (3) the use of the aspirate h ; (4) the use of the preposition yn before m and ng.

82. Since the time that Dr. Pughe introduced his system, Welsh orthography has been a subject of great controversy ; but we regret to say, that scarcely any of the proposed changes and emendations have received a universal acceptance. It has been suggested that a considerable number of the most learned scholars in the principality should be elected to deliberate on this subject, to lay down rules, and to impress on the Welsh literati at large the expediency and the necessity of adopting one universal mode of orthography. Until this be effected, the following rules are proposed, which have been framed as moderately as possible, in order to meet the views of both parties.

83. Words should be spelt according to their etymology.—The following is Dr. Pughe's canon—"It is proper to write every word after the form of its substance, without either more or fewer letters than are to be found in its component parts, taken severally, that its origin or derivation may not be obscured."¹ Therefore consonants should not be doubled unless the etymology of the words demands, nor be omitted if their etymology require their insertion. For instance, the words penau, tori, are compounded of pen and au, tor and i, and should not therefore be spelt pennau, torri, with double consonants. Again, mammaeth, annoeth, are compounded of mam and maeth, an and doeth, and ought not, according to Pughe's canon, to be written mamaeth, anoeth, with single consonants. Their insertion in penau and tori, and their omission in mammaeth and annoeth, would tend to obscure the origin or derivation of the words.

(a) This should be regarded only as a general principle, and must not be applied strictly to every word in the language; for in very many instances words are, and always have been, written with fewer letters than there are in their component parts, taken severally.

The letter g is very often omitted when the word of which it is the initial is preceded by another word or prefix. Cywir = cy-gwir; anweledig = an-gweledig; diorfod = di-gorfod. Again in the following words, with others which might be mentioned, one consonant is omitted: meithrin = maeth-trin; sobrwydd = sobr-rwydd; sierwydd = sier-rwydd; amyd = aml-yd; canwriad = cant-gwr-riad; eneinio = enaint-io; toster = tost-der; amryw = aml-rhyw.

(b) When a short vowel occurs in a syllable, the Old School double the consonant next to it, maintaining that it is necessary in order to show the quantity of the vowel.

Cyfrannu, to contribute; calonnau, hearts.

Hwnnw, that; tonnau, waves.

84. When long and short vowels are to be distinguished in monosyllabic words, let the long be marked with a circumflex, and the short be left without any indication of its quantity.²

Tân, fire; tan, under.

Tôn, tune; ton, wave.

Glân, clean; glan, river bank.

Hŷn, older; hyn, this.

(a) Some writers mark the long and short—tân, fire, tàn, under; others mark the short only—tan, fire, tàn, under.

85. On the contrary, when the quantity of penults is to be distinguished, the short syllable must be marked, because all penults are either short or half long.

² In the present Work long and short vowels are often marked for the assistance of such as are strangers to the language.

Tònau, waves; tonau, tunes. Glànau, river banks; glànach, cleaner.

(a) O in tonau, tunes, and a in glànach, cleaner, have not the same quantity as o and a in tôn and glân, but are half long, and therefore cannot have the circumflex placed over them.

The prefixes an ; di, dy ; cy, cym, cyn, cys ; as, es, ys, and their compounds cys, dis, dys, dos, gos, hys.

86. An.—When an (= un) is prefixed to the nasal sound of g or c, let n be cut off.

Angreddf (an-greddf), without principle.

Anghysson (an-cysson), inconsistent.

Angradil (an-gradd), without a degree.

Anghywir (an-cywir), inaccurate.

Observ.—Ng is the nasal of g ; ngh of c.

87. When an is prefixed to the nasal sound of b or p, let it be changed into am, for the sake of euphony.

Ammraint (an-braint), without privilege.

Anmbrydlawn (an-prydlawn), untimely.

Observ.—M is the nasal of b ; mh of p.

88. Di and dy.—The New School use di and its compound dis (di-ys) when negation is implied ; dy and its compound dys (dy-ys) when intensity is implied.

Negation.

Diog (di-og), idle.

Diorfod (di-gorfod), unconstrained.

Disliw (dis-lliw), colourless.

Intensity.

Dyben (dy-pen), purpose.

Dynoethi (dy-noethi), to make bare.

Dystaw (dys-taw), silent.

The Old School employ di and dis both as negative and intensive prefixes. In many words dy and dys occur, implying intensity.

DI AND DIS.

Diben (di-pen), headless.

Diniwed (di-niwed), innocent.

Disgloff (dis-cloff), not lame.

Diben (dy-pen), purpose.

Dioddef (dy-goddef), to suffer.

Disgwyl (dys-gwyl), to expect.

DY AND DYS.

Dywedyd (dy-gwedyd), to say.

Dychryn (dy-cryn), terror.

Dyweddi (dy-gwedd), a spouse.

Dychymmyg (dy-cymmyg), fancy.

Dyspaid (dys-paid), cessation.

(a) The orthography of the New School is based on the radical meaning of the prefixes ; that of the Old School on the usual pronunciation of the words. In dywedyd, dyweddi, dychryn, dychymmyg, the prefix is pronounced dy, and is therefore so written. In dyben, dioddef, dysgwyl, dy and dys are usually pronounced di and dis, and the words are accordingly written by the Old School diben, dioddef, disgwyl.

In the present Edition we have adopted the orthography of the Old School.

Cy, cym, cyn, cys. = Lat. con.

89. Cym.—When words begin with m, whether m be radical or the nasal sound of b or p, let cym precede them.

Cymmaint (cym-maint), as much. Cymmrawd (cym-brawd), a fellow.
Cymmhorth (cym-porth), help. Cymmhwys (cym-pwys), fit.

Observ. M is the nasal of b; mh of p.

(a) Some prefer cy to cym before mh: cymhorth, not cymmhorth.

90. Cyn.—When words begin with n, whether n be radical or the nasal sound of d or t, let cyn precede them.

Cynniſer (cyn-nifer), as many. Cynnal (cyn-dal), to support.
Cynnhwrf (cyn-twrf), noise. Cynnadl (cyn-dadl), a discourse.

Observ. N is the nasal of d; nh of t.

(a) Some prefer cy to cyn before nh: cynhwrf, not cynnhwrf.

91. Cys.—When words begin with s, let cys precede them.

Cysson (cys-son), consistent. Cyssefin (cys-saf), primary.

(a) A branch of the New School adopts cy in preference to cym, cyn, and cys. It is, however, very doubtful whether it may be correctly used for cym and cyn, as cy has a tendency to govern the labials in the middle, and the dentals in the asp. sound. Cyfrad (cy-brad; cyfoli (cy-moli); cythrwfl (cy-trwfl, fr. trouble).

92. Cy.—When words begin with ng and ngh, the nasal sounds of g and c, let cy precede them.

Cyngwystl (cy-gwystl), a wager. Cyngwerth (cy-gwerth), an equivalent.
Cynghor (cy-côr), an advice. Cynghair (cy-crair), a treaty.

As, es, ys, and their compounds cys, dis, dys, dos, gos, hys.

93. These prefixes, when followed by words beginning radically with d or t, prefer the t sound.

Astell (as-dell), a board. Distaw (dys-taw), silent.
Astrus (=L. abstrusus), perplexed. Ystafell¹ (=L. stabulum), chamber.
Cystal (cys-tal), of equal value. Ystwyll (=L. stella), Epiphany.
Estyn (=L. extendo), to extend. Gosteg (gos-teg=L. taceo), silence.
Estron (=L. extraneus), a stranger.

94. When followed by words beginning radically with g or c, they prefer the g sound.

¹ Ys in ystafell, ystwyll, &c., is not strictly a prefix, but it is convenient to consider it here as such.

Asgafaeth (as-cafaeth), a prey.	Gosgel (gos-cel), a gloom.
Esgyn (=L. ascendo), to ascend.	Gosgordd (gos-cordd = L. cohorte), a retinue.
Esgar (es-car), to separate.	Cysgod (cy-ysgod = Gr. σκῆτος), a shadow.
Ysgafn (ys-cawn), light.
Ysgarm (ys-garm), a scream.
Disgyn (=L. descendo), to descend.	Dysgweini (dys-gweini), to administer.

95. When followed by words beginning radically with b or p, they prefer the b sound.

Ashorth (as-porth), support.	Disbrofi (dis-profi), to disprove.
Ysbryd (=L. spiritus), a spirit.	Dosbarth (dos-parth), a class.
Ysbwrial (ys-bwrw), refuse.	Gosben (gos-pen), a particular.
Ysbod (cys-bod), to co-exist.	Hysbysu (=L. expositus ?) to inform.
Cysbwyll (cys-pwyll), consideration.

96. The use of the aspirate h.—Let h be used as an auxiliary before the substantive termination ad; before the verbal termination au, and the finite terminations formed therefrom.

Cyfiawnhâd; cyfiawnhau; cyfiawnhâf; cyfiawnhei.

(a) Nouns and verbs, whose penults end with c, ch, p, t, or th, cannot admit of the insertion of the aspirate; and it is most frequently omitted after ff (ph), ll, and s.

Nacâd; iachâd; gwylpâu; caniatâu; esmwythâu.
Coffâd; gwellâu; nesâu.

(b) A branch of the New School objects to the use of h in the above-mentioned circumstances, maintaining that it should not be inserted except when it forms an essential part of a word; as in anhawdd, from an and hawdd.

96 (1). Some words, mostly dissyllabic, when a syllable is added to them (thus forming trisyllabic words), have the aspirate h put before the initial vowel of the accented penult, to strengthen the pronunciation. The following are some of them: angen, angeu, bonedd, brenin, cededl, cryno, dammeg, eang.

Angen, need; anghenog, needy; anghenus, needy; anghenion, needs.

Angeu, death; angheuol, deadly.

Bonedd, nobility; bonheddig, noble; bonheddwr, gentleman.

Brenin, king; brenhines, queen; brenhiniaeth, kingdom; brenhinol, kingly; brenhinoedd, kings; brenhindy, king's palace.

Cenedl, nation; cenhedlaeth, generation; cenhedloedd, nations; cenhedlu, to beget.

Cryno, compact; crynhoi, to collect together (§ 43 a); crynhous, tidy; crynhoad, summary.

Dammeg, parable; dammhegion, parables; dammhegol, allegorical.

Eang, spacious; changler, spaciousness; changu, to extend.

(a) The Old School insert h in some of the dissyllabics (brenhin, cenhedl, &c.), although the letter is not heard when the words are uttered. The New School discard the h altogether, writing brenin, breninoedd; cenedd, ceded.aeth, &c., although brenhinoedd, cenhedlaeth, &c., is the usual pronunciation. Others write the words as they are commonly pronounced, omitting the aspirate in brenin, cenedd, &c., and inserting it in brenhinoedd, cenhedlaeth, &c.

(b) In some words the aspirate is sometimes borrowed, and sometimes omitted. In the following words the insertion or omission is optional:—

Aros, to stay; arosiad or arhosiad; arosaf or arhosaf.

Dangos, to show; dangosiad or danghosiad; dangosaf or danghosaf.

Tymmor, season; tymmorau or tymmhorau; tymmorol or tymmhorol.

Tymmer, temper; tymmerau or tymmherau; tymmerus or tymmherus.

97. The use of the preposition yn, in.—Let yn be changed into ym, when it is followed by m and mh.

Ym mynydd yr Olewydd, in the mount of Olives.

Ym mhlwyf Llandingad, in the parish of Llandingad.

Ym medydd Ioan, in the baptism of John.

Ym mhen y mynydd, on the top of the mountain.

98. Let yn be changed into ying, when followed by ng and ngh.

Yng ngwraidd y pren, at the root of the tree.

Yng Nghrêd, in Christendom.

Yng Nghrist, in Christ.

Yng ngwyneb haul, in the face of the sun.

Yng ngharchar y swydd, in the prison of the county.

(a) The New School write yn in all cases: yn mynydd, yn mhen, yn ngwyneb, yn ngharchar.

(b) Some join the prep. to the following word: thus,

Ymmhen, y'mhen, or ymhen.

Yngwreiddyn, or yingwreiddyn.

But this mode is liable to an objection, for when yn is prefixed to a monosyllable (thus forming a dissyllable) the accent falls on the ultimate, y'mhen', y'mhawb', y'ngwraidd', y'nghil'; and thus another exception to the rule of accentuation is added, although it can easily be avoided.

99. The use of *nn*¹ and mm, when mutations of nt and mp.—When a suffix with a vowel initial is added to a word ending with nt or mp, let t be changed into n, and p into m.

¹ The old Italian dialects change d into n after a preceding n. The Umbrian substitutes regularly nn for nd in the middle of words. The Oscan has upsannam for operandam; and Plautus, by birth an Umbrian, says, in the well-known line of the Miles Gloriosus, “Dispennite hominem divorsum et distennite,” using dispennite and distennite for dispendite and distendite. For “to grunt,” one finds grunnire as frequently as grundire.—Dr. Aufrecht.

Meddiannu, to possess , from meddiant.
Dannedd, teeth	„ dant.
Tymmor, season	„ tymp = tempore.
Punnoedd, pounds	„ punt.
Tannau, harpstrings	„ tant.
Pummed, fifth	„ pump.

100. Nc and ngc.—Let nc, rather than ngc, be used in such words as the following:—

Llanc, young man .	Ieuanc, young .	Cainc, branch .	Pwnc, subject .
Sionc, nimble .	Mainc, bench .	Gwanc, .	Llwnc, gullet .

(a) The Old School write llangc, ieuangc, caingc, pungc, &c.

101. Ff and ph.—Let ff, rather than ph, be used in the following words, and words derived from them.

Corff, body .	Sarff, serpent .	Argraff, impression .
Orgraff, orthography .	Ardlygraff, orthography .	Enghraifft, example .

(a) The Old School write corph, sarph, &c.; and it must be confessed that the arguments adduced in favour of this orthography are very strong.

(b) The word philosophydd, philosopher, and its derivatives, and such proper names as Ephesaiad, Pharaoh, Philemon, &c., are written with ph by both Schools. Aipht, Egypt, and prophwyd, prophet, are by some few written Aifft, proffwyd.

102. Eu and au.—The following words, and perhaps some others, are made to end sometimes in au, and sometimes in eu. But as au is a termination of plural substantives, and as etymology and pronunciation are as favourable to the one termination as to the other, it would be better, for the sake of uniformity and distinction, to make them end in eu.

Angeu, death .	Dadieu, to argue .	Goleu, light .
Aminheu, doubt .	Dechreu, to begin .	Goreu, best .
Aseu, left .	Deheu, right .	Gynneu, little while ago .
Boreu, morning .	Edeu, thread .	Maddeu, to pardon .
Ceneu, cub .	Eisieu, want .	Peleu, greenfinch .
Cleddeu, sword .	Geleu, leech .	Teneu, lean .
Cynneu, to kindle .	Geneu, mouth .
Chwareu, to play .	Goddeu, purpose .

103. Words of doubtful origin.—When the etymology of a word is not generally agreed upon, it is more proper to spell that word according to the usual mode. “Diosg,” to undress, is generally written with di; but some scholars write it dyosg, with dy, because, as they think, the word is compounded of dy and osg.¹ But as this etymology is not quite clear, (it being as likely that the word comes from di and gwisgo, quasi diwisg;) we should write it “diosg” according to usual practice.

104. Words cognate with those of other languages.—When words are derived from, or cognate with, words of other languages, their orthography, as touching the number of consonants, should in general be the same. Thus, as there are μμ in the Greek word γραμματική, from which the Welsh term is derived, “grammudeg” should be spelt with mm, and not “gramadeg,” with a single m. Again, as there is only one t in ἐτι and etiam, with which the Welsh word is cognate, we should write “eto” with one t, and not “etto” with tt.

(a) This is only a general rule. Should, however, an adherence to the orthography of another language violate a principle of the Welsh, or disturb a custom of long standing in the mode of spelling some words, the former should in this case submit to the latter; that is, the peculiarity exhibited in the Welsh should be observed and carried out, even though it should differ from that of another language.

PART II.

ETYMOLOGY.

CLASSIFICATION OF WORDS.

105. The parts of speech are : substantive (or noun), adjective, pronoun, verb, participle, article, adverb, conjunction, preposition, interjection.

SUBSTANTIVES (OR NOUNS).

106. A substantive or noun¹ is the name of an object, that has or is conceived to have an independent existence.

107. Proper nouns are such as denote the names of individual men or other objects. (Arthur, Bala.)

108. Common nouns are such as denote any of the individuals that are contained in a class of things. (Dyn, man; tref, town.)

109. Abstract nouns are the names of qualities or properties conceived by the mind as having independent existence. (Cyfiawnder, justice; gwynder, whiteness.)

110. A collective noun, or a noun of multitude, is a singular noun, that expresses a collection of many individuals. (Llu, multitude; tyrfa, crowd.)

NUMBER OF NOUNS.

111. Nouns have two numbers; the singular and the plural.

(a) "In a few words we have a dual number, formed by prefixing du for the masculine, and dy for the feminine, to such words as are required to be of that number."

Deurudd } the two cheeks.
Dwyrudd }
Deudroed, the two feet.

Dwyglust, the two ears.
Deulin, the two knees.
Dwyfron, the breasts.

Dwylaw (the two hands), though strictly dual, is now used for the plural.

¹ Although perhaps open to objection, the term noun has been employed throughout the present Work as synonymous with substantive.

112. Formation of the plural.—Nouns singular are rendered plural in three ways : some by changing a vowel or vowels (bardd, bard, beirdd) : some by adding a syllable (dyn, man, dynion) : and some by changing a vowel or vowels and adding a syllable (mab, son, meibion).

113. α. By changing a vowel or vowels.—The nouns which become plural by inflection of vowels, are for the most part monosyllables and dissyllables, with their compounds.

- a = ai : sant, saint, pl. saint. So brân, erow ; gofant, smith.
a = ei : march, horse, pl. meirch. So sarff, serpent ; arf, weapon ; iarl, earl ; tarw, bull ; carw, stag ; câr, car ; arth, beur ; gast, bitch ; iâr, hen ; gafr, goat ; tywarch, clod.
a = y : bustach, bullock, pl. bustych.
e = i : draen, thorn, pl. drain.¹ So maen, stone.
e = y : cylllell, knife, pl. cyllyll. So Gwyddel, Irishman ; gwden, withe.
o = y : ffôn, staff ; pl. ffyn. So fforch, fork ; ffordd, road ; porth, poreh ; torch, wreath ; mollt, mutton ; post, post ; cort, cord ; corff, body ; pont, bridge ; gordd, mallet ; corn, horn.
a, e = e, y : careg, stone, pl. ceryg.² So aber, confluence ; castell, castle ;
gwaell, knitting needle ; asgell, wing ; astell, board ; padell, pan ; angel, angel ; gradell, griddle ; mantell, mantle ;
maneg, glove ; llawes, sleeve ; bachgen, boy ; llanerch, glade ; caseg, mare.
a, a = e, ai : dafad, sheep, pl. defaid.
a, a = e, y : aradr, plough, pl. erydr. So afall, apple-tree ; paladr, ray ; alarch, swan ; taradr, auger ; myliaran, wether.
a, w = e, y : asgwrn, bone, pl. esgryn.

114. The plural number of the following nouns and their compounds is formed irregularly.

- Ci*, dog, pl. cŵn. Ty, house, pl. tai. Troed, foot, pl. traed.
Croen, skin, pl. crŵyn. Oen, lamb, pl. ŵyn. Gŵr, man, pl. gwŵr.
Milgi, greyhound. pl. milgwn. Arfdy, armoury, pl. arfdai.

115. Very many derivative and compound nouns are made plural by changing a of the ultimate into ai : as,

- Offeiriad*, priest, pl. offeiriad. Canwriad, centurion, pl. canwriad.
Llygad, eye, pl. llygaid. Llyffant, frog, pl. llyffaint.

116. β. By adding a syllable.—The following is a list of the plural terminations of substantives : ain (or en), aint, ¹ It makes no difference whether we say that (e.g.) in the word draen, ae is changed into ai, or that e is changed into i, in the formation of the pl.

² Some write cerig, gweill, llewis ; but it is more uniform to write ceryg, gweyll, llewys.

au and iau, awr, ed (or aid), edd, i, iaid, on and ion, od, oedd, ydd, yr.

Pèn, head, pl. penau.

Esgid, shoe, pl. esgidiau.

Bÿs, finger, pl. bysedd.

Llw, oath, pl. llwon.

Dŷn, man, pl. dynion.

Mynydd, mountain, mynyddoedd.

(a) Au and iau, on and ion, are the terminations most frequently in use.¹ For iau and ion Southwallians say au and on.

(b) Yr is seldom met with. Brawd, brother, pl. brodyr.

"Plural substantives in awr are frequent in the old Welsh poets; nor are they very rare in the poets of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. Gwaew, spear, pl. gwaewawr; ysgwyd, shield, pl. ysgwydawr; cleddyf, sword, pl. cleddyfawr; byddin, army, pl. byddinawr."—Professor Evander Evans.

(c) Od (= Arm. et) is most frequently applied to irrational animals: as, llygod, mice; ysgyfarnogod, hares; cwningod, rabbits; ednod, birds; llwynogod, foxes; buychod, bucks; buwchod, cows; pysgod, fish; draenogod, hedgehogs; hyrddod, rams.

(d) Some writers use aid for ed (pryfaid, worms): and eu for ain (yphen, oxen, Rhydyphen, Oxford). With ain or en, cf. Eng. en in oxen, cowen = kine.

117. Ach and os are added to plurals, ach denoting contempt or wretchedness, and os, affection or tenderness.

"Dowch, y pydron ddynionach, Yng nghŷd, feirw byd, fawr a bach."—Gor. Owen.

"Come together, ye frail mean men, mortals of the world, great and small."

118. γ. By changing a vowel or vowels, and adding a syllable.

a = e: nant, brook, pl. nentydd.

a = ei: mab, son, pl. meibion.

ae = ei and eu: saer, carpenter, pl. seiri; maes, field, pl. meusydd.

ai = ei: gair, word, pl. geiriau; nai, nephew, pl. neiaint.

au = eu: paun, peacock, pl. peunod; ffau, cave, pl. ffauau.

aw = o: awr, hour, pl. oriau; brawd, brother, pl. brodyr.

w = y: bwrdd, table, pl. byrddau; llwdu, young of an animal, pl. llydnod.

w, w = y, y: cwmwl, cloud, pl. cymmylau.

(a) Ai and ei are in the following words changed into a.

Gwraig, woman, pl. gwragedd. Deigr, tear, pl. dagrau.

Lleidr, thief, pl. lladron. Neidr, snake, pl. nadroedd and nadredd.

(b) Aw is sometimes changed into ow and cw. See § 22 (a).

Cawg, basin, pl. cowgiau.

Cawr, giant, pl. cewri.

(c) E in a very few instances becomes y: as,

Angel, angel, pl. angylion.

Blynedd, year, pl. blynyddau.

¹ The most common terminations in Arm. are ou and iou (= au and iau), ien (= ion), and et (= od).—Arch. Brit. p. 183.

119. Many nouns have two plural forms, and some few even three.

a) One formed by vowel-inflections, and another by simply adding a termination.

Pont, bridge ,	pl. pynt or pontydd.
Aber, confluence ,	pl. ebyr or aberoedd.
Alarch, swan ,	pl. elyrch or alarchod.
Astell, board ,	pl. estyll or astellod.
Castell, castle ,	pl. cestyll or castelli.
Padell, pan ,	pl. pedyll or padelli.

b) One formed by vowel-inflections, and another by vowel-inflections and adding a termination.

Sant, saint ,	pl. saint or seintiau.
Bardd, bard ,	pl. beirdd or beirddion.
Ty, house ,	pl. tai or teiau.
Cloch, bell ,	pl. clych or clychau.
Maen, stone ,	pl. main or meini.
Gafr, goat , makes in	pl. geifr, gafrod, or geifrod.

c) By taking different terminations. The terminations mentioned under § 116 were formerly indifferently applied to almost all nouns; but popular custom has confined this liberty, admitting of but one termination to the majority of Welsh words. Yet there are many nouns which still have two, and some even three different plural terminations.

Mynydd, mountain ,	pl. mynyddoedd or mynyddau.
Gordderch, concubine ,	pl. gordderchion or gordderchadon.
Tref, town ,	pl. trefi or trefydd.
Eglwys, church ,	pl. eglwysi or eglwysydd.
Plwyf, parish ,	pl. plwyfi or plwyfydd.
Blynedd, year ,	pl. blynyddoedd or blynyddan.
Llythyr, letter ,	pl. llythyrau (N.W.), llythyron (S.W.)
Meistr, master ,	pl. meistri, meistriaid, or meistradoedd.

d) By adding one pl. termination to another. The instances in which this occurs are very few.

Llo, calf ,	pl. lloi or lloiau.
Neges, message ,	pl. negesau or negeseuau.

120. In limiting the use of the terminations, care should have been taken to restrict each to a particular class of substantives; but we find that this was very much neglected. Hence the impossibility of laying down any definite rules for their formation. The following are laid down as general rules.

121. Derivatives ending in der, did, dod, edd, yd, aeth, as, es, are rendered plural by adding au.

Cyfiawnder, justice, cyfiawnderau.
 Gwendid, weakness, gwendidau.
 Awdurdod, authority, awdurdodau.
 Gwaeledd, lowliness, gwaeleddau.

Bywyd, life, bywydan.
 Marwolaeth, death, marwolaethau.
 Priodas, marriage, priodasau.
 Brenhines, queen, brenhinesau.

(a) Substantives ending in ant and iant often change t into n, and add au: meddiant, possession, pl. meddiannau.

122. Derivatives ending with the following suffixes are too promiscuous to be classified.

ach (reproach) pl. -od.

Bwbach, bugbear, bwbachod.

Gwrâch, hag, gwrachod.

ad and iad, pl. -au, -on, -aid and -iaid. When this suffix denotes a verbal noun, it is made plural by adding au: when signifying a person, it becomes pl. by changing a into ai, or sometimes by the addition of on.

Toriad, cutting, toriadan.

Ceidwad, keeper, ceidwaid.

Offeiriad, priest, offeiriad, or offeiriadon.

adur and ur, pl. -iaid, -on, -iau. When the word denotes a person, the pl. termination is -iaid: when it denotes a thing or instrument, the termination is -on, if the noun is mas.; -iau, if feminine.¹

Pechadur, sinner, pechaduriaid.

Geiriadur, m., dictionary, geiriaduron.

Pladur, f., scythe, pladuriau.

Cwilttyr, coulter, cwllytrau.

Gwerchyr, cover, gwerchyriau.

Canwyllyr, chandelier, canwyllyron.

(a) Awd and od; awdr and odr; awg and og; awr and or, are respectively different forms of the same terminations.

123. Nouns ending in nc are made pl. by adding iau.

Llanc, youth, llanciau.

Cainc, branch, ceinciau.

Ystanc, stake, ystanciau.

Pwnc, subject, pynciau.

Mainc, bench, meinciau.

Pranc, prank, pranciau.

(a) But crafanc, claw, is made pl. by changing nc into ng, and adding au. Crafanc, pl. crafangau.

124. Many nouns are made pl. by adding the dissyllabic termination adau or ialau; i.e. they borrow the form of the verbal nouns derived from them, and add the pl. suffix au. Thus coll, failing, makes in the pl. colliadau, borrowing the verbal noun colliad.

Serch, affection, serchiadau.

Crwydr, wandering, crwydradau.

Cân, song, caniadau.

Tuedd, inclination, tueddiadau.

Addurn, ornament, addurniadau.

Ysgrifen, writing, ysgrifeniadau.

Dinystr, destruction, dinystriadau.

(a) Cyfarwyddyd, direction, discards yd and adds iadau : cyfarwyddiadau.

125. Some few nouns are made pl. by adding the pl. suffix to the adjectives of the singular noun.

Credadyn, believer , pl. credinwyr,	fr. credin, believing .
Cristion, christian , pl. cristionogion,	fr. cristionog, christian .
Grâs, grace , pl. grasusau,	fr. grasus, gracious .
Gwlaw, rain , pl. gwlawogydd,	fr. gwlawog, rainy .
Llif, flood , pl. llifogydd,	fr. llifog, streaming .

126. Some nouns borrow the pl. of another form of the same nouns.

Cam, step , pl. camrau,	fr. camre.
Cydymaith, ¹ companion , pl. cymdeithion,	fr. cymdaith.
Chwaer, sister , pl. chworiydd,	fr. chwior.

„ load ,	pl. llwythi.

129. Some nouns are used in the plural number only.

Ymysgaroedd, bowels.

Gwartheg, cattle.

(a) The pl. nefoedd, heavens, is continually used for the sing. nef, heaven. "Y nefoedd ven," the blessed heaven.

130. The pl. of compound nouns, formed regularly (see § 77), is the same as the plural of the last of their component parts. Thus

Swynur, magician , pl. swynwyr ,	like gwr, pl. gwyr.
Amherawdur, emperor , pl. amherawdwyr ,	" " "
Gweithiwr, workman , pl. gweithwyr , note (a)	" " "
Llaethwraig, dairymaid , pl. llaethwragedd ,	" gwraig, pl. gwragedd.
Cyrchfan, resort , pl. cyrchfanau ,	" mân, pl. manau.
Trigle, dwelling-place , pl. trigleoedd ,	" lle, pl. lleoedd.
Tafarndy, public-house , pl. tafarndai ,	" ty, pl. tai.

(a) Observe that i in the suffix iwr is dropped when the word is made plural.—gweithiwr, pl. gweithwyr, not gweithiwyr. But if i in iwr is a part of the preceding word, and not of the termination, the plural is iwyr. Gweddiwr (fr. gweddi), one who prays, pl. gweddiwyr. Ysbiwr (fr. ysbio), a spy, pl. ysbiwyr.

131. Plural number wanted.—Many substantives want the pl. number: such as, a. Abstract nouns ending in âd and hâd, dib, did (lid, tyd), dra (tra), i, ioni, ineb, ni, rwydd, wch, wg, yd, ydd.

Ffyddlondeb, faithfulness.
Tyndra, tightness.

Atgasrwydd, hatfulness.
Tristwch, sadness.

β. Most of the diminutive nouns.

Dynyn, little man.

Oenig, little ewe-lamb.

γ. Nouns denoting substance, mass, &c.

Aur, gold .	Arian, silver .	Prës, brass .	Efydd, copper .
Baw, dirt .	Gwaed, blood .	Bara, bread .	Ymenyn, butter .
Llaeth, milk .	Mêl, honey .	Caws, cheese .	Pridd, soil .

(a) But such words as ôd, corn; haidd, barley, &c., which may be termed nouns aggregate, take a plural termination when various collections of the same are designed to be expressed. Yd, corn; ydau, various sorts of corn.

132. Formation of the singular from the plural.—Some nouns of the singular number are formed from the plural by suffixing yn for the mas., and en for the fem. gender.

Caws, cosyn , a cheese.	Yd, yden, a grain of corn.
Adar, aderyn , a bird.	Mes, mesen, an acorn.
Plant, plenty , a child.	Derw, derwen, an oak.

Eirin, eirinen or eiren, a plum.

Rhwnyn, rhwnynen or rhwen, a pear.

(a) Cyll makes collen, hazel-tree; and ŷn makes onen, ash-tree.

(b) Cf. Arm. Bleo, hair, sing. bleven; colo, straw, sing. coloen; dero, oak, sing. deruen; fau, beans, sing. fauen.

GENDER OF NOUNS.

133. Nouns are either of the masculine or feminine gender. The Welsh language does not recognise what is called the "neuter gender;" hence all inanimate things, which are classed as neuter in English, are considered either as masculine or feminine in our language; and 'this is done by conceiving their properties to bear some resemblance to the qualities that are characteristic of sex in animated beings.'

(a) "Thus the masculine gender is given to substantives, which are conspicuous for the attributes of energy, and of acting upon and communicating to others. To such substantives as seem to denote the passive attributes of bearing, containing or bringing forth, we give the feminine gender."—Dr. Pughe's Grammar, p. 30.

134. Some nouns are of common gender; that is, masculine and feminine. Cyfylder, second cousin; dyn, person, male or female; dynan, little person, male or female. Dyn mwyn. Dyn fwyn. Dynan fechan fach. [Cf. ὁ ἡ θῆρ; hic et hæc parens.] Some are epicene. Plentyn, child, baban, babe, rhiant, parent, are mas., whether the male or female is spoken of: colomen, dove, cwningen, rabbit, ysgyfarnog, hare, are fem., whether the male or female is intended. (See § 137, d.) [Cf. ὁ ἀετός, το βεῖρος; hic passer, hæc aquila.]

135. The Welsh language, by not recognising a neuter gender, expressive of inanimate objects, presents to the student a difficulty not to be surmounted in many cases but by observation and memory.

136. Animate objects.—"With respect to those which are the names of males and females no difficulty exists; they are either male or female, in accordance with their signification." Dyn, man, tarw, bull, mas. Dynes, woman, buwch, cow, fem.

137. The gender of such nouns is distinguished,

a. By different words.

Mas.	Fem.
Adiad, drake.	Hwyaden, duck.
Bachgen, boy.	Geneth, girl.

Taid, N. W.	Nain, grandmother.
Tad cu, S. W.	Mam gu, grandmother.
Tad da, POWIS	Mam dda, grandmother.
Tarw, bull.	Buwch, cow.

(a) The compounds of the above are distinguished in the same manner.

Priodfab, bridegroom.	Priodferch, bride.
Golchwr, washer.	Golchwraig, washerwoman.
Milgi, a greyhound.	Miliast and Milgast, a greyhound bitch.

β. By adding the termination es to the masculine gender.

Mas.	Fem.
Arglwydd, lord.	Arglwyddes, lady.
Mynach, monk.	Mynaches, nun.
Dyn, man.	Dynes, woman.
Brenin, king.	Brenlincs, queen.
Tywysog, prince.	Tywysoges, princess.

(a) In a few instances the fem. is formed by adding es to the plural number of the masculine.

Mas.	Fem.
Lleidr, thief, pl. lladron.	Lladrones, female thief.
Sais, Englishman, pl. Seison.	Seisones, Englishwoman.

γ. By changing the termination yn into en.

Asyn, he-ass.	Asen, she-ass.
Hogyn, young lad.	Hogen, young girl.
Coegyn, saucy fellow.	Coegen, saucy girl.
Merlyn, pony.	Merlen, pony.
Clobyn (=clamp), large mass.	Cloben. ¹

¹ "Clobyn (or clamp) o ddyn," a big strapping fellow. "Cloben o ddynes," a big strapping woman.

(a) Some few are made feminine by changing w of the root into o, as well as yn into en.

Crwtyⁿ, little boy.

Croten, little girl.

Cyn, fem. cen ; ryn, fem. ren, occur in a few words.

Ffwlcyn, silly fellow.

Ffolcen, silly woman.

Llipryn, fribble.

Llipren, fribble.

ð. By placing the word gwrryw or benyw after the object spoken of. But the mas. gender is sometimes formed from the fem. by prefixing the word ceiliog, a cock, or buch, a buck.

Eyrw gwrryw, a he-eagle.

Eyrw benyw, a she-eagle.

Colomen wrryw, a he-dove.

Colomen fenyw, a she-dove.

Ceiliogwydd, a gander, from gwydd, a goose.

Bwch gafr, a he-goat, from gafr, a goat.

(a) The nouns to which gwrryw and benyw are added are, some masculine, and some feminine ; and we must know the gender before we can correctly apply these words. If the noun is mas., gwrryw and benyw will take the radical ; if fem. they will be changed into the middle sound.

Eyrw gwrryw } mas.
Eyrw benyw }

Colomen wrryw } fem.
Colomen fenyw }

138. With regard to the names of inanimate objects, the following rules may be laid down ; but they extend to certain classes only, and must be regarded merely as general rules.

139. a. Primitive nouns have their gender often denoted by their vowels.

a) Nouns having w or y as their final vowel are masculine.

Pŵn, a pack.

Tŵrch, a hog.

Hŷd, length.

Pŷd, appearance.

Dŵrn, a fist.

Dŵfr, water.

Bŷd, world.

Brŷn, a bank.

Cŵr, a corner.

Cŵd, a bag.

Clŵyf, disease.

Bŵyd, food.

b) Nouns having o or e for their final vowel are of the feminine gender.

Tôn, a ware.

Tôrch, a chain.

Gwén, a smile.

Sêdd, a seat.

Brôn, a breast.

Ffôrch, a fork.

Gén, a chin.

Gwlêdd, a banquet.

Ffôn, a staff.

Côd, a bag.

Llêf, a cry.

Nêf, heaven.

(a) The remaining vowels are not susceptible of any kind of classification, being used indifferently in masculines or feminines.

140. β. Compound nouns, formed regularly, have their gender assigned to them in accordance with the gender of the last of their component parts.

Elusendy (elusen-ty), almshouse, mas.

Arfdy (arf-ty), armoury, mas.

Ceuffordd (cau-ffordd), tunnel, fem.

Craesffordd (croes-ffordd), cross-road, fem.

(a) But when compounds are formed contrary to the rule (§ 77, b), that is, when the adjective or the genitive is placed last, the gender of the compound word depends on that of the first of its component parts. Thus, mammaeth, nurse, treftad, patrimony, Llanfor (name of a village), Caerfyrddin, Cardmarthen, are feminine, because mam, tref, llan, caer, are feminine.

141. γ . Derivative nouns have their gender indicated by their respective terminations.

142. Derivative nouns with the following suffixes are generally of the masculine gender.

a) The following occur most frequently: âd, iâd; âd, hâd; ant, aint, iant; deb; der (ter); did (tid); dyd (tyd); dod (dawd); dra (tra), edd; i; ineb; ioni; ni; rwydd; ur, adur; wch; ydd; yn. (Toriad; cyfiawnhâd; maddeuant; purdeb; cyfiawnder; gwendid; dyndod; cyflensdra; puredd; brynti; doethineb; daioni; oerni; perffeithrwydd; henadur; tristwch; darllenydd; bachgenyn.)

b) These are less common: awdr (odr); cyn; eu (or au); el; id (yd); ing; ol; on; or (owr); w; wg; wy; yf; yll; yr. (Iachawdr; brynceyn; angen; cantel; rhyddid; gwyning; trosol; gwyddon; cantor; tarw; tywyllwg; cymorthwy; peryf; brithyll; canwyllyr.)

143. Derivative nouns ending with the following terminations are generally feminine.

a) The following occur most frequently: aeth, iaeth; aeg, eg; as; ed; ell; en; es; fa; ig (diminutive). (Gwardigaeth; Cynraeg; cyndeithas; colled; bwyell; mesen; dynes; porfa; ynysig.)

b) The following are less common: ain; cen; eb; iar; red. (Celain; ffolcen; deiseb; toniar; gweithred.)

144. Ach, in, and og.—Ach, when it denotes a person is masculine; in other circumstances it is feminine.

Mas. Corach , pigmy .	Bwlach , bugbear .
Celach , fribble .	Buach , clown .

(a) Gwrâch, a hag, is feminine.

Fem. Cyfeillach , friendship .	Ceintach , brawl .
Cyfrinach , secret .	Cyfeddach , carousal .

In, when it denotes a person, is masculine; when it denotes an instrument, &c., it is feminine.

Mas. Brenin , king .	Dewin , wizard .
Fem. Melin , mill .	Cribin , rake .

Og (or awg) is sometimes masculine, and sometimes feminine. When it is a diminutive suffix, it is always feminine.

Mas. Marchog , horseman .	Swyddog , officer .
Fem. Ffolog , silly woman .	Clustog , pillow .
Dimin. Pwtog , a short little woman .

145. Aid, an, and od.—The gender of derivative nouns ending with aid, an, and od (or awd) is masculine or feminine, according to the gender of the word to which the termination is suffixed.

Aid.

Mas. Dyrnaid, handful ,	fr. dwrn, m., fist .
Celyrnaid, tubful ,	fr. celwrn, m., tub .
Fem. Llwyaid, spoonful ,	fr. llwy, f., spoon .
Ffedogaid, apronful ,	fr. ffedog, f., apron .

An.

Mas. Maban, labe ,	fr. máb, m., son .
Llyfran, little book ,	fr. llyfr, m., book .
Fem. Trefan, a small town ,	fr. tref, f., a town .

(a) An is of common gender, if the word to which it is suffixed is common. Dynan, a little person, male or female; fr. dyn, a man or a woman.

Od (or awd) = a thing done.

Mas. Cledddyfod, the stroke of a sword ,	fr. cleddyf, m., sword .
Dyrnod, a blow given with the fist ,	fr. dwrn, m., fist .
Fem. Cernod, a blow on the cheek ,	fr. cern, f., side of the head .
Palfod, a blow with the palm of the hand ,	fr. palf, f., palm .

(a) When it implies a verbal noun (= ad or iud) it is mas. Darllen-awd, a reading. Gyrawd, a driving.

146. Ai, denoting animate objects, is generally of common gender.

Telynai, n. c., harpist.

Magai, n. c., one who rears.

(a) When implying a thing or instrument, it is mas. Awyrbwysai, barometer. Exc. buddai, f., churn.

147. Proper names of objects are of the same gender as the common nouns which denote the same objects. Thus the common nouns gwlad, country, dinas, city, tref, town, llan, village, afon, river, llythyren, letter, coeden, tree, are feminine: hence the proper names of countries, cities, towns, villages, rivers, letters, and trees, are of the feminine gender.

The common nouns mis, month, dydd, day, are masculine: hence the proper names of months and days are masculine.

148. The infinitive mood of verbs, employed substantively, is masculine.

Gweithio da, good working.

Dyrnu buan, quick thrashing.

149. Many words, which are masculine in one district are used as feminine in another. For instance, the word troed, a foot, is masculine in the dialect of North Wales, as y troed hwn; but in South Wales it is of the feminine gender, as y droed hon. The words hanes, cyflog, clôd, clorian, gâr, gwniadur, ciniau, munud, are mas. in N. W., but fem. in S. W. Cwpan, pennill, pontbren, canryllbren, canrif, clust, are fem. in N. W., and mas. in S. W.

150. The same words are often mas. or fem., as in English, in accordance with the idea they convey. For example, the word doethineb, wisdom, has the construction of a masculine noun in ordinary discourse; but when it is, by a figure of speech, considered as a person or agent, it takes the construction of a noun of the feminine gender.

“Doethineb a adeiladodd ei thy, hi a naddodd ei saith golofn. Hi a laddodd ei hanifeiliaid; hi a gymmysgodd ei gwin, ac a huliodd ei bwrdd.” (Prov. ix. 1, 2.)

151. Gambold's rule.—The following rule, intended for discovering the gender of nouns beginning with the mutable consonants, may prove useful to such as are well acquainted with the language, but who may be uncertain as to the gender of many nouns, except when they are in construction with other words. “Any word [of the singular number] beginning with any of the mutable consonants, except ll and rh,¹ if upon putting y in apposition before it, its initial consonant does naturally change into its light [or middle] sound; as, melin, y felin; caseg, y gaseg; such words are infallibly of the feminine gender. But if the initial consonant change not thereupon, we may justly conclude such words to be of the masculine gender; as, brethyn, y brethyn; march, y march.”²

CASES OF NOUNS.

152. In Welsh, nouns have no endings to denote their various relations to other notions, as they have in Greek and Latin; but, as in English, their relation is shown by means of prepositions. (Aethym o dŷ Ioan i dŷ Arthur). It is, however, convenient to adopt the terms nominative case, possessive (or genitive), objective (or accusative), and vocative.

¹ Feminine nouns sing. retain the radical sound after ll and rh; as y llong; y rhan.

ADJECTIVES.

153. Primitive adjectives.—"The adjectives of the primitive form consist of elementary words, without the additions of the common terminations, which characterise the derivatives."¹ (lawn; da; crwn.)

154. Compound adjectives are such as are formed by the union of two or more of the primitives, or of a prefix and a primitive. (Glewdaer; gorwypmp.)

155. "The derivative adjectives are other words becoming such, by the addition of certain characteristic terminations."² (Goludog; duwiol; gwaedlyd.)

TERMINATIONS OF ADJECTIVES.

156. The following terminations, which will be exemplified hereafter, are those which occur most frequently in the composition of derivative adjectives. Adwy; aid; aidd; ain; awr; ed (fed); edig; edd; fawr; gar; ig; llawn (lawn); in; llyd (lyd); og (awg); ol (awl); us; ydd.

GENDER OF ADJECTIVES.

157. Adjectives are of the masculine, feminine, or common gender.

158. In Welsh, 'the discrimination of gender is partial with respect to primitive adjectives, and the derivatives (except two or three) are exempt from it.'

(a) This is said with respect to gender formed by inflection of vowels, not to gender indicated by a change of the initial consonant.

159. Inflection of vowels.—The fem. gender is formed from the masculine, a) by changing w into o; b) by changing y into e.

a) By changing w into o.

“Nos da i'r ynys dynell.

Ni wn a oes un ynys well.”—Lewis Glyn Cothi.

(a) A few of the cardinal and ordinal numbers have their vowels inflected to form the feminine gender. [See § 177 (a), 178 (a).]

(b) In modern Welsh the masculine form of most of the adjectives, above enumerated, is oftener met with than the feminine, even when the substantive is of the fem. gender. Geneth glws, pretty girl; dynes hull, ugly woman, occur more frequently than geneth glos, dynes hell. But in the use of the following words the rule is still adhered to: bechan; ber; brêch; bront; braith; cron; creî; dofn; gwen; hesp; hon; hona; hono; llom; melen; trom; and their compounds pengron, pengreî, &c.

161. “The adjectives with gender [i.e., formed by vowel inflections], lose that characteristic when they take the plural form, or have any of the terminations by which they become derivative, or are in a state of comparison; and by losing such a characteristic they retain the form under which they denote the masculine gender.”¹

Careg wen, white stone; pl. ceryg gwynion, not gwenion.

Careg drom, heavy stone; comp. careg drymach, not dromach.

162. Mutation of consonants.—If an adjective, beginning with any of the mutable consonants, follows a feminine noun singular, its gender is also indicated by changing the initial consonant into the middle sound.

Careg drwm, a heavy stone (rad. trwm).

Dynes dda, a good woman (rad. da).

(a) If an adjective precede the noun, or if the noun be plural, no indication of gender is made by consonant mutations.

Trom gareg.

Ceryg trymion.

163. An adjective is said to be of common gender, when it can undergo no change whatever; i.e., when it does not contain a mutable w or y, or begin with one of the nine mutable consonants.

Gwr hael, a liberal man.

Bachgen segur, an idle boy.

Gwraig hael, a liberal woman.

Geneth segur, an idle girl.

NUMBER OF ADJECTIVES.

164. Some adjectives are susceptible of a plural number to agree with a plural noun or pronoun; others are used in the singular, even when the noun is plural. (Dyunion duon. Dyunion du.)

165. The adjectives which admit of being made plural are mostly primitives; but sometimes compounds and derivatives.

166. The plural number is formed

a. By adding the syllable on or ion.

Du, black, pl. duon.

Gwyn, white, pl. gwynion.

(a) The termination ion is the more usual. "But after w, u, br, dr, ddf, gr, and thr, on is employed."¹

Chwerw, bitter, pl. chwerwon.

Lleddf, flat, pl. lleddfon.

Du, black, pl. duon.

Hagr, ugly, pl. hagron.

Cyfebr, with foal, pl. cyfebron.

Llathr, smooth, pl. lleithron.

Budr, dirty, pl. budron.

But tew, fat, glew, bold, make tewion and glewion in N. W.

B. By changing a vowel or vowels.

Buan, swift, pl. buain.

Cadarn, strong, pl. cedyrn.

γ. By changing a vowel or vowels, and adding on or ion.

Garw, rough, pl. geirwon.

Tlawd, poor, pl. tlodion.

(a) Gwân, weak, makes gweiniaid (seldom gweinion) in the plural.

(b) The plural number is formed from the masculine gender, never from the feminine. Ceryg gwynion, not ceryg gwenion.

167. The vowels undergo the following changes in the formation of the plural number of adjectives.

A is changed into ai without the addition of a syllable; as,

Eychan (f. bechan), bychain, small .	Buan, buain, quick .
Llydan, llydain, wide .	Byddar, byddair, deaf .
Ieuan, ieuaing, young .	Truan, truaing, miserable .

A is changed into ei, sometimes with and sometimes without the addition of a syllable; as,

Hardd, heirdd, beautiful .	Llall, lleill, the other .
Marw, meirw, dead .	Gwag, gweigion, empty .
Arall, ereill (or eraill), another .	Garw, geirwon, rough .

A and a are respectively changed into e and y; as, cadarn, cedyrn, strong.

A and e are respectively changed into e and y; as, caled, celyd, hard.

Ae and ai are respectively changed into ei with the addition of a syllable; as,

Llaes, lleision, trailing .	Main, meinion, thin .
------------------------------------	------------------------------

W is changed into y with the addition of a syllable; as, trwm, trymion, heavy.

Aw is changed into o with the addition of a syllable; as, tlawd, tlodion, poor.

168. Some adjectives have two plural forms; as, caled, hard, pl. celyd or caledion; hardd, beautiful, pl. heirdd or heirddion.

169. Most adjectives, however, have no plural forms, the singular number, as in English, being put in construction with nouns and pronouns of the plural number; as,

Primitives: da; teg; glân; hen; iawn, &c. (Dynion da; rhesymau teg; rhianod glân.)

Compounds: hyglo; mawrbarch; hynaws, &c. (Gwŷr hyglo.)

Derivatives: such as end with the suffixes aid, aidl, gar, ig (not edig), in, llyd (or lyd), adwy, fawr, llawn (or lawn). (Llancian mynyddig; dynion clodfawr.)

(a) But derivatives ending in edig, og, ol, and us, admit of a plural form when they are used substantively; as, dysgedigion, learned men; goludogion, wealthy persons; duwiolion, pious persons; anwybodusion, ignorant people. They sometimes take a pl. form when in construction with nouns; as, nefolion leoedd, heavenly places.

(b) Many primitive, compound, and derivative adjectives, when used substantively, are made pl. by adding iaid. Ffyddoniaid, faithful ones. Gweiniaid, weak ones.

DEGREES OF COMPARISON.

170. There are in Welsh four degrees of comparison; the positive, the equal, the comparative, and the superlative.

171. The positive is expressed by the adjective in its simple and absolute state ; as, glân, fair ; rhyfelgar, warlike.

172. The equal denotes equality or admiration, and is expressed in English by as, so, or how, with the positive. It is formed a) By suffixing *ed*¹ to the positive (and to the comparative of some irregular adjectives), with or without cyn or can going before ; as, cyn laned, as fair ; can gynted, as swift.

(a) Admiration is most frequently, and equality sometimes, expressed without cyn or can ; as, wyned yw'r eira, how white the snow is !

b) By placing mor before the positive ; as, mor lân, as fair.

(a) Mor is frequently found with ed ; as, mor laned ; but most grammarians condemn this construction.

c) It is sometimes expressed by the inseparable prefixes cy, cyf, cym, cyn, cys ; as cyhyd, cyfuwch, cymmaint, cyn-ddrwg, cystal.

(a) Cyn (or can) is often found before cymmaint and cystal, and sometimes before cyfuwch. “Y mae hwn cyn gystal a'r llall,” this is as good as the other.

173. The comparative expresses a greater degree of the quality expressed by the positive. It is formed by suffixing *ach*² to the positive ; as, glanach, fairer ; or by placing mwyr or llai (more or less) before it ; as, mwyr rhyfelgar, more warlike ; llai rhyfelgar, less warlike.

174. The superlative denotes the greatest degree of the quality expressed by the positive. It is formed by suffixing *af*² to the positive ; as, glanaf, fairest ; or by putting mwyaaf or lleiaf (most or least) before it ; as, mwyaaf rhyfelgar, most warlike ; lleiaf rhyfelgar, least warlike.

² With ach, cf. Arm. o'ch ; as, uhelo'ch = uchelach. With af (formerly am, as kinham = hynaf), cf. Arm. af and aff (diesaf = diwedaf ; furhaff = ffuraf) ; and Latin imus (minus, optimus).

Gwlyb, wet .	gwlyped.	gwlypach.	gwlypaf.
Rhad, cheap .	rhated.	rhatach.	rhataf.

(b) When ai, aw, w, occur in the last syllable of the positive, they are respectively changed into ei, o, y, in the other degrees; as, main, mained; clawd, cloted; llwm, llymed.

(c) "The vowel i is often prefixed to the terminations for the sake of euphony; as, peraidd, delicious; percididd, perciddiach, perciddiaf."

174 (1). The comparison made by suffixes may be called the "inflected comparison," and that made by placing mor, mwy, &c., before the positive, the "periphrastic comparison." All adjectives may not be compared by inflection; but almost all regular adjectives may be compared periphrastically: therefore, if you are uncertain whether a given adjective is compared by inflection, use the periphrastic.—[See Rowland's "Welsh Exercises," § 176.]

175. Some adjectives are compared irregularly.

§ Those that are printed in Italics may also be compared regularly (e.g., hawdd, hawdded, hawddach, hawddaf); but the irregular forms are usually preferred by good writers.

NUMERALS.

176. Numerals are partly adjectives, partly adverbs.

177. The cardinal numbers are un, dau, tri, &c. The first ten and the numbers twenty, hundred, thousand, and a few others, are expressed respectively by radical words: the others are formed either by simply uniting two or more numerals, as trigain = tri ugain, three score; or by the aid of the prep. ar, upon, over, or the conj. a, and. The numbers between 10 and 20, and between 20 and 40, are expressed by the aid of ar: as, un ar ddeg = one over ten, 11; un ar hugain = one over twenty, 21. Numbers above 40 are formed by the aid of a: as, un a deugain = one and forty, 41.

(a) The cardinals have no plural number, except when (as in English) they are used substantively. Degau, tens; ugeiniau, scores; cannoedd, hundreds.

(b) The compound numbers in Gaelic are formed in the same manner as in Welsh. "Thirty:" deich ar fhichead = deg ar hugain. "Fifty:" deich is da fhichead = deg a deugain.

(c) 'Dau, tri, pedwar, have duy, tair, pedair, for the feminine gender, which form they assume in all their combinations, when used with feminine nouns.' Tair dynes, tair dynes ar ddeg.

These numerals have a mas. and fem. form in the cognate dialects.

Welsh.	Cornish.	Arm.	Irish.
Dau.	dou.	dou.	da.
Dwy.	diu.	din, deu.	di.
Tri.	try.	tri.	tri.
Tair.	ter.	teir.	teoir.
Pedwar.	peswar.	pevar.	cethir.
Pedair.	pedar.	peder.

178. The ordinals are cyntaf, ail, trydydd, pedwerydd, pummed, &c., which, with the exception of the first four, are formed by suffixing ed or fed to the cardinals; as, chweched, seithfed.

(a) The ordinals have no plural number, and no distinction of gender, except deufed, trydydd, and pedwerydd, which make dwyfed, trydedd, and pedwaredd in the feminine.

179. The adverbial numerals, answering to the question how many times? are made by affixing to any proposed numeral the word gwaith (f.), time, or tro (m.), a turn. Pumwaith, five times; pumtro, five turns or times. [Gwaith is the more usual.]

14. Pedwar (f. ped- air) ar ddeg.	{ Pedwerydd (f. pedwar- edd) ar ddeg.	{ Pedeirgwaith ar ddeg.
15. Pymtheg (for pump ar ddeg).	{ Pymthegfed.	{ Pymthengwaith.
16. Un ar bymtheg.	Unfed ar bymtheg.	Unwaith ar bymtheg.
17. Dau (f. dwy) ar bymtheg.	{ Ail or eilfed ar bym- theg.	{ Dwywaith ar bym- theg.
18. Tri (f. tair) ar bymtheg, deunaw.	{ Deufed (f. dwyfed) ar bymtheg.	{ Teirgwaith ar bym- theg.
19. Pedwar (f. pedair) ar bymtheg.	{ Trydydd (f. trydedd) ar bymtheg, deunawfed.	{ Pedwirgwaith ar bym- theg.
20. Ugain.	{ Pedwerydd (f. pedwar- edd) ar bymtheg.	{ Ugeinwaith.

² Or, un waith, un tro; dwy waith, dau dro, &c.

Cardinals. (one, &c.)	Ordinals. (first, &c.)	Numeral adverbs. (once, &c.)
30. Degar hugain.	Degfed ar hugain.	Dengwaith ar hugain.
40. Deugain.	Deugeinfed.	Deugeinwaith.
50. Deg a deu- gain.	Degfed a deugain.	Dengwaith a deugain.
60. Trigain or tri- ugain.	Trigeinfed, tri ugeinfed.	Trigeinwaith.
80. Pedwar ugain.	Pedwar ugeinfed.	Pedwar ugeinwaith.

2000. Dwyfil.	Dwyfilfed.	Dwyfilwaith.
10,000. Myrdd.	Myrddfed.	Myrddwaith, &c.

181. The ordinals have often, like the cardinal numbers, gwaith, time, or tro, turn, put after them, gwaith (fem.) taking the middle, and tro (mas.) the radical sound : as, y seithfed waith ; y seithfed tro.

Position of substantives joined to periphrastic numerals. See § 502.

PRONOUNS.

182. Pronouns are divided into Personal, Demonstrative, Relative, Interrogative, Possessive, and Indefinite.

PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

183. The Welsh language has personal pronouns in great variety of forms, which were designed in order to speak of a person or thing with a less or greater degree of emphasis. Thus when no great emphasis was to be laid on the pronoun, the simple form mi, &c., would be employed ; as 'mi a ddeuaf,' I will come. When the pronoun required to be marked with emphasis, the emphasis would be expressed by doubling the simple form ; thus, myfi = mi mi ; as, 'myfi a ddeuaf,' I will come. When the pron. was to be conjoined, or set in opposition to a word in the preceding clause, this was done by suffixing the word tau, 'too,' 'also,' to the simple form : thus we have minnau, tithau, fr. mi-tau, ti-tau ; as, 'minnau a ddeuaf,' I also will come. When emphasis and conjunction were to be expressed in the same pronoun, the simple form would be prefixed to that which expressed conjunction or opposition ; thus, myfinnau, tylithau, efyntau, are compounded of mi-minnau, ti-tithau, ef-ymtau.

Observ. At present, however, the distinction is not strictly observed between 'the simple' and 'the antithetic,' and between 'the conjunctive' and 'the antithetic and conjunctive.'

184. (a) Simple. (I, thou, he, &c.)

- | | |
|------------------------------------|---|
| 1. Mi (fi, i). | 1. Ni. |
| 2. Ti (di). | 2. Chwi. |
| 3. { E, ef, fe, o, fo, mas. | 3. Hwyt, hwynt (coll. nhw, nhwy). |
| { Hi, fem. | |

185. (b) Antithetic. (I, thou, he, &c.)

- | | |
|----------------------------|--------------|
| 1. Myfi. ¹ | 1. Nyni. |
| 2. Tydi. | 2. Chwydwi. |
| 3. { Efe, efo, mas. | 3. Hwyt-hwy. |
| { Hyhi, fem. | |

186. (c) Conjunctive. I also, but I, I on the other hand, &c.

- | | |
|-------------------------|--|
| 1. Minnau, innau. | 1. Ninnau. |
| 2. Tithau. | 2. Chwithau. |
| 3. { Yntau, mas. | 3. Hwytthau, hwyntthau (coll. nhwtthau, nhwyntthau). |
| { Hithau, fem. | |

187. (d) Antithetic and conjunctive. (I also indeed, &c.)

- | | |
|---------------------------|------------------|
| 1. Myfinnau. | 1. Nyninnau. |
| 2. Tydithau. | 2. Chwydwithau. |
| 3. { Efyntau, mas. | 3. Hwyt-hwythau. |
| { Hyhithau, fem. | |

(a) Some of these pronouns suffer an elision when preceded by the prep. i; as, im' for i mi; it' for i ti; in' for i ni; and iweh is found for i chwi.

(b) Of me, of thee, of him, &c., will not be expressed in Welsh by o fi, o di, o ef, &c., but by the following form, which Dr. J. D. Rhys considers the genitive of the personal pronouns.—Grammar, p. 74.

- | | |
|-----------------------|------------------------|
| 1. O honof = of me. | 1. O honom = of us. |
| 2. O honot = of thee. | 2. O honoch = of you. |
| 3. { O hono = of him. | 3. O honynt = of them. |
| { O honi = of her. | |

Or, o hanof, o hanot, &c., where the root is more clearly seen. Hanu is to proceed from: hence hanof = proceeding from me.

188. Reflective pronouns are formed by adding, to the possessive pron., hun or hunan, self; hun or hunain, selves.

¹ In colloquial, and sometimes in written language, this form is corrupted into y fi; y ti; y fe, y fo; y hi; y ni; y chwi; y nhw or y nhwy.

"Y hi oedd yn barnu Israel."—Judges iv. 4.

"Dymunais ef, eb y hi."—1 Sam. i. 20.

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1. Fy hun or hunan, myself . | 1. Ein hun or hunain, ourselves . |
| 2. Dy hun or hunan, thyself . | 2. Eich hun or hunain, yourselves . |
| 3. Ei hun or hunan, himself , &c. | 3. Eu hun or hunain, themselves . |

189. Reciprocal pronouns are formed by adding gilydd, one another, to the plural of the possessive.

First person, ein gilydd ; second person, eich gilydd ; third person, eu gilydd.

190. "One another is expressed also by y naill y llall = the one, the other : in this case two distinct persons or parties are spoken of. Hwy a laddant y naill y llall, they will kill one another." ¹

191. Inseparable pronouns are so called because they are united to verbs and prepositions to indicate the person and number intended to be expressed : thus, caraf is compounded of car and fi ; ataf of at and fi.

DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

192. The demonstrative pronouns of the Welsh language are divided into six classes, and "make a discrimination of persons and situation, for which the English this and that are not equivalent." ²

193. The demonstrative pronouns are used in two ways, as in English : (a) by themselves ; and (b) in construction with substantives.

194. When they stand by themselves, they are thus declined :

- | | |
|--------------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 195. | |
| 1 Class. { | Y rhai hyn or yma, m. these . |
| { Hwn, m. this . | Y rhai hyn or yma, f. these . |

| { Hon yma, f. = this here . | Hyn yma, m. = these here . |
| { Hyn yma, m. = this here . | |

This form is stronger and more emphatic than the preceding.

| { Hona, f. = that there . | Hyna, m. = those there . |
| { Hyna, m. = that there . | |

Speaking of an object under cognizance, and near.

	{ Hyn yna, m. = that there .	Hyn yna, m. = those there .

This form is stronger and more emphatic than the preceding.

199.

6 Class.	{ Hwn acw, m. = that yonder .	Y rhai acw or hyn acw, m. = those yonder .

	{ Hyn acw, m. = that yonder .	Hyn acw, m. = those yonder .

	{ Hono, f. that (out of sight) .	Y rhai hyny, f. those (out of sight) .
	{ Hyny, m. that .	Hyny, m. those .

Speaking of an object not under cognizance.

(a) Y rhai hyn, and y rhai hyny, are frequently contracted into y rhai'n, and y rhei'ny. The contracted forms are sometimes, but erroneously, coupled with substantives; as, "y dynion rhai'n," "y dynion rhei'ny." The correct construction is, "y dynion hyn," "y dynion hyny."

(b) The words yma, yna, acw (here, there, yonder) are strictly adverbs of place, but they are regularly used as demonstrative pronouns.

201. The adverbs of showing, dyma and dyna, are very frequently used as demonstrative pronouns.

Dyma, m. = hwn	} this .	Dyna, m. = y rhai hyn	} those .
Dyma, f. = hon		Dyna, f. = y rhai hyn
Dyma, m. = hyn		Dyna, m. = hyn
Dyna, m. = hwna	} that .	Dyna, m. = y rhai yna	} those .
Dyna, f. = hona		Dyna, f. = y rhai yna
Dyna, m. = hyna		Dyna, m. = hyna

(a) Dyma and dyna most generally include the copula. Dyma'r dyn = hwn yw'r dyn, this is the man.

202. When demonstrative pronouns (or adverbs used pronominally) are put in construction with substantives, they are thus declined:

Hwn or yma, m.	} this .	Hyn or yma, m.	} these .
Hon or yma, f.		Hyn or yma, f.
Yna (or hwna), m.	} that .	Yna, m.	} those .
Yna (or hona), f.		Yna, f.
Acw, m.	} that .	Acw, m.	} those .
Acw, f.		Acw, f.
Hwnw, m.	} that .	Hyny, m.	} those .
Hono, f.		Hyny, f.

203. Demonstrative pronouns, when put in construction with substantives, follow them, an article or its equivalent always preceding. [Order: art. subs. pron.]

Y dyn hwn = the man this; this man.

Y dynion hyny = the men those; those men.

Dy fab hwn = thy son this; this thy son.

RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

204. The form yr hwn, yr hon, &c., is varied to denote gender and number: some are varied to denote number only: and others have no variation at all.

205. a) Sing. Yr hwn, m. who, which, he that. Pl. Y rhai.
 Yr hon, f. who, which, she that. Y rhai.
 Yr hyn,¹ m. what, that which, which. Yr hyn.
 b) Sing. Pa un (Arm, pehini), who, which. Pl. Pa rai (Arm, pere).
 c) Sing. Y neb, yr un, whosoever. Y sawl.²

d) Ag (Arm. hag) and a'r, who, which, that, as, are indeclinable.

e) Pwy bynag, whosoever, is mas. and fem., sing. and pl.

f) Pa . . bynag, what or which . . soever, may be of any gender and number, according to the word inserted between pa and bynag: as,

- Sing. Pa ddyn bynag, m. Pl. Pa ddynion bynag, m.
 Pa ferch bynag, f. Pa ferched bynag, f.

(a) Some grammarians consider a as a relative pronoun; as in the sentence "Ti yw y ferch a garaf," thou art the maid I love. But as a in such sentences is really nothing else than the auxiliary adverb, which in affirmative clauses is placed before the verb when the nom. or the objective precedes, it has been thought proper to deny it a place among relative pronouns.

INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.

206. The interrogative pronouns are pwyl and pa (and formerly py) for both numbers. [Cf. pwyl = quis; pa, py = πῃ, quā.]

207. Pwy (what man or woman, who), is both mas. and fem., and being itself a substantive pronoun, it should not be joined to a noun.

208. Pa (what) is an adjective pronoun, and is followed by a noun or a substantive word. Pa ddyn? Pa un? Pa rai?

(a) When pwyl and pa are accompanied by bynag = L. cunque, they form indefinite relatives. See above, § 205.

POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

209. 1. Fy,³ ym, my. Ein, our.
 2. Dy, yth, thy. Eich, your.
 3. Ei, his, hers, its. Eu, their.

¹ Yr hyn usually refers to a whole or part of a sentence, as its antecedent.—(See Syntax.)

² Y sawl is sometimes considered as singular. "Y sawl ni rodia, dedwydd yw."—Edm. Prys. "Fod yn rhaid i'r sawl a chwennychai wrth-ladd awdurlod, gymmeryd y baich arno ei hun."—Ed. Samuel.

³ The radical form my is obsolete.

(a) When ym, yth, ei, cin, eich, eu, come after a, o, i, y, fe, ni, na, pe, mo, tua, gyda, and sometimes after other words ending with a vowel, they are abbreviated:

'm=ym; 'th=yth; 'i=ei; 'n=cin; 'ch=eich; 'u=eu.

Mi a'm tad. Ti a'th dad. Efe a'i dad.

Nyni a'n tad. Clwydhi a'ch tad. Hwyt-hwy a'u tad.

(b) "I'w."—When ei singular and eu plural are preceded by i, they are changed into w: i'w=i ei, to his, to her, to its; i'w=i eu, to their. Aeth i'w dy; aethant i'w tai.

| | { Eiddi or eiddo, hers . | |

211. Man (= mens), my, and tau (= tuus), thy, are obsolete, except in poetry.

212. Ill (probably = illi), their, is joined to numerals of the third person, and most commonly to no more than two or three persons. "Aethant yno ill dau," they both went there. So ill tri or trioedd, they three.

INDEFINITE OR ADJECTIVE PRONOUNS.

213. An indefinite or adjective pronoun has been defined as a word which includes the attribute of an adjective and that of a noun or pronoun. In the following list, however, there are several words which do not quite come up to this definition, but which have been inserted in order to add a few explanatory notes.

Tipyn, a little.

Un, any.

Yr un, the same.

Unrhyw, any; the same.

Ychydig, a few; a little.

Y naill, the one.

Y llall, pl. Y lleill, the other, pl.
the others.

Y sawl, such.

Y rhan fwyaf (= the greatest part), most.

214. Arall, pl. ereill, and oll, follow the substantives which they qualify; the others precede.

"Y goeden arall," the other tree. "Y gerddi oll," all the gardens.

(n) So also all the cardinal and ordinal numbers precede, except cynaf, first, which follows its substantive.

215. The following are accompanied by a substantive or substantive word: ambell, holl, pob, rhyw, sawl, unrhyw (any).

"Pob dyn," every man. "Unrhyw beth," any thing.

216. These admit of being employed with or without a substantive word: amryw, amrai, arall, pl. ereill, cyfryw, y fath, dim, neb, peth, rhai, un, yr un, unrhyw (the same), y naill, y sawl.

"Amryw gyfeillion," several friends. "Daeth amryw," several came.

216 (1). The following either stand alone or have the prep. o (of) between them and the substantive or substantive word: cymmaint, cynnifer, chwaneg, gormod, mwy, pa faint, rhagor, rhy fâch, tipyn, y rhan fwyaf.  Llawer, ni . . . fawr, ni . . . nemmawr, ychydig: see Syntax.

"A oes genych chwi gymmaint," have you as many? "Cymmaint o gnau," as many nuts.

217. Pawb, and y llall, pl. y lleill, are never accompanied by a substantive or substantive word.

"Daeth pawb," all came. "Dyma'r lleill," here are the others.

218. Dim, neb, peth, pob, llawer, rhai, sawl (not y sawl), un (mas.), yr un (mas.), govern the radical sound; the others govern the middle.

"Pob planhigyn," every plant. "Peth daioni," some good.

"Canlyn y sawl bethau," follow such things.—Com. Prayer.

VERBS.

219. Verbs are divided into Active and Passive. Active verbs are again divided into Transitive and Intransitive.

220. "A transitive verb expresses an action exerted upon some object ;" as, 'caraf y dyn,' I love the man.

221. "An intransitive verb expresses an action or a state, which is not communicated from the agent to any other object ;" as, 'rhedaf,' I run.

222. "A passive transitive verb denotes that its nominative is suffering or acted upon." It is formed from the active transitive by suffixing the passive terminations to the root of the verb : thus, 'car-af,' I love; passive, 'cer-ir fi,' I am loved.

223. A passive impersonal verb is formed by adding the passive suffixes to the root of the intransitive : thus, 'rhed-af,' I run; impers, 'rhed-ir,' it is run; men run. It has not, strictly speaking, a nom. case, but fe, fo, e, frequently precede it in affirmative main clauses ; as, 'fe redir yn gyflym.'

224. A reflective (or middle) verb denotes that an action is exerted by the agent upon himself. It is formed from transitive verbs by prefixing *ym*¹ to them ; as, golchi, to wash, ymolchi, to wash one's self. [Cf. Gr. λούω, I wash; λούομαι, I wash myself.]

FORMATION OF THE MOODS.

225. The root of a verb is a word in its radical, unchanged form, without any termination added thereto, and it is most usually traced in the Infinitive mood; the third pers. sing. fut. of the Indic.; or the second pers. sing. of the Imperative.

(a) Valpy remarks respecting the 2d Aorist Imperative of the Greek : "This tense appears to be the simplest form of the root of the verb. The first use of language is to express a want ; hence the Imperative was naturally one of the first objects of speech."²

¹ Ym is probably either another form of the pron. mi or cognate with the Greek ου-αι.

² Valpy's Greek Grammar

226. The infinitive mood.—Many verbs are used in the infinitive without any addition of suffixes designative of that mood.

Dangos, to show. Ateb, to answer. Són, to mention.

227. But, in general, certain endings, characteristic of the Infinitive, are appended to the root-words; and if the root-words contain any of the mutable vowels, a, ai, au, aw, w, these mutables generally undergo a change, according to the system of vowel mutations. Ai, au, aw, w, are respectively changed into ei, eu, o, y; and a is changed into e before the suffixes i, yll, ych, and sometimes u.

Infín.	Root.	Infín.	Root.
Dysg-u, to learn.	Dysg.	Cysg-u, to sleep.	Cwsg.
Pcid-io, to cease.	Paid.	Per-i, to cause.	Par.
Blodeu-o, to blossom.	Blodau.	Sef-yll, to stand.	Saf.
Por-i, to graze.	Pawr.	Chwennych, to desire.	Chwant.

228. Verbs are formed from nouns sing. or pl.; from adjectives; and occasionally from some other parts of speech.

Caru, to love, fr. câr, friend. Blodeuo, to blossom, fr. blodau, blossoms
Cyfiawnhau, to justify, fr. cyfiawn, just.

229. The Infinitive endings most frequently in vogue are the following: a; hau (or âu); i; o (or aw); io (or iaw); and u.

Bwyta, to eat.	Bywhau, to quicken.	Tori, to break.
Curo (curaw), to beat.	Ceisio (ceisiaw), to seek.	Rhanu, to divide.

230. The following Infinitive endings do not occur so frequently: acl (or el); aeth; ain; ian; al, ial; ed, ied; eg; fan; ur; w; y; ych; yd; yll.

Gallael (gallel), to be able.	Nychial, to be in pain.	Bwrw, to throw.
Marchogaeth, to ride.	Ystyried, to consider.	Hely, to gather.
Llefain, to cry.	Rhedeg, to run.	Chwennych, to wish.
Ichian, to screech.	Hedfan, to hover.	Cymmeryd, to take.
Arthal, to bark.	Gwnenthur, to do.	Sefyll, to stand.
Cerdded, to walk.

231. Observations.—a) O and io are used in simple or historical language: aw and iaw in poetry and in nervous prose. But some prefer aw and iaw, even in simple prose, when the following word begins with o. "Syrthiaw o'r awyr," to fall from the sky.

b) Hau (or âu) is generally attached to adjectives. Llawenhau, from llawen, cheerful; iachâu, fr. iach, healthy. The open form hâau or âau, is also occasionally met with.

c) The difference between i and u.—(a) If the preceding syllable contains oe or o (whether radical or a mutation of aw); or if it ends in w, the suffix i is employed: as, poeni, poeri, oeri; tori, ofni, lloni; profi (fr. prawf), noddî (fr. nawdd); syhwi, meddwi. (b) If a of the penult has been changed into e, i is generally used: as, peri (fr. par), geni (fr. gan), erchi (fr. arch).

(c) In other cases u is the common termination ; as, malu, pechu, baeddu, cysgu. But there are several exceptions ; such as medi, gwaeddi, &c. Some words are written both ways : gweini or gwein, crawni or crawnu, cyflawni or cyflawnu, &c.

d) The affix a generally signifies to gather or collect ; as, afaleua, to gather apples ; gwiana, to gather wool ; ceinioca, to gather peice.

e) Ain, ian, al, ial, fan, imply frequency, or a gradual and continued action. Ochain, ichian, arthal, naddial, bedfan. F is sometimes prefixed to ain ; as, wylo-fain, ewyno-fain.

232. Finite Moods.—The finite moods are formed from the infinitive.

233. When verbs have no infinitive endings, nor any of the mutables a, ai, au, aw, and w, in the last syllable, the finite moods¹ are formed simply by adding to the infinitive the various terminations characterising them : as,

Ateb, to answer : ateb-af, ateb-wn, ateb-ais, ateb-aswn, ateb-wyf.

234. But if the last syllable of the infinitive contains any of the above mutable vowels, these vowels are often changed into others, when finite suffixes are added. Ai and w are changed respectively into ei and y ; a, au, aw, are in some tenses changed respectively into e, eu, ew.

Arwain, to lead, arweiniais.

Hau, to sow, heuais.

Hebrenng, to accompany, hebryngais.

Addaw, to promise, adderais.

Attal, to stop, attellais

Gadaw, to leave, gadewais.

235. When verbs have infinitive endings, most of these are struck off at the accession of finite suffixes : as,

Rhed-eg, to run : rhed-af, rhed-wn, rhed-ais.

a) When a occurs in the root-word, and has been changed into e in consequence of the infinitive endings i and yll, the root-word will re-assume its radical form (i.e., e will be changed into a), when a finite ending is substituted.

a) Such verbs as troi, gordoi, ymdroi, dileu, cysleu, &c., belong to this class. Troi, troaf; dileu, dileaf.

b) Taraw, gadaw, addaw, gwrandaw,¹ and their compounds ymdaraw, ymadaw, &c., retain aw in the finite moods: as, tarawaf, tarawodd, &c.

c) A is generally retained in the finite tenses of bwyta, to eat, lladrata, to steal, marchnata, to market: as, bwytäodd, lladratäodd, marchnatäodd.

237. Such as have io and ied in the infinitive, strike off o and ed, and retain i; and such as have hau (or äu) strike off u, and retain ha (or ä).

Ceis-io, to seek, ceis-iwn.

Tew-hau, to fatten, tew-hawn.

Ystyr-ied, to consider, ystyr-iwn.

Coff-äu, to remind, coff-äwn.

a) Ymddiried, to trust, suffers no elision: ymdiriedaf.

238. Some other verbs, although their infinitives do not end in io, yet borrow i in the finite moods; namely, infinitives ending in l, and some which end in n, id, yg, air, iw: as,

Dal, to hold, daliaf.

Cynnyg, to offer, cynnygiaf.

Arwain, to lead, arweiniaf.

Cynniwair, to frequent, cynniweiriaf.

Ymlid, to pursue, ymli diaf.

Edliw, to upbraid, edliw iaf.

So also erfyn, to beg; benthg, to borrow; cellwair, to jest; erlid, to pursue; ymliw, to reproach; newid, to change.

a) But in the dialect of s. w. the i is scarcely ever borrowed.

239. Infinitive endings retained.—Verbs ending in eu, w, fan, and ych, suffer no elision: as,

Dechreu, to begin, dechreuaf.

Hedfan, to hover, hedfanaf.

Cadw, to keep, cadwaf.

Chwennych, to desire, chwennychaf.

(a) Bwrw, to cast, rejects w, and borrows i: as, bwrw, bwriaf. Creu, to create, rejects u; creu, creaf.

(b) In verbs ending in eu (= ëu), u is cut off: dileu (= dilëu), dileaf. See § 236 (a).

240. Vowel inflections.—Such as have ai and w, followed by a consonant, in the last syllable of the infinitive, respectively change these vowels into ei and y, when a finite suffix is added: as,

Arwain, to lead, arweini af.

Hebrwng, to accompany, hebrwngaf.

Cellwair, to joke, cellweiriaf.

Gostung, to lower, gostungaf.

(a) Æ in aeth, he went, dueth, he came, and gwnaeth, he did, are sometimes changed into eu, in the perf. and pluperfect, when a syllable is added. Aethym or euthym; aethost or euthost, &c.

241. Such verbs as have a in the penult of the infinitive (as caru, to love); and those which retain aw, ha (or â), and a in the finite moods (as taraw, to strike, cyfiawnhau, to justify, bwyta, to eat); and infinitives ending in au (as cau, to shut, argau, to enclose, gwarchau, to besiege), generally, but not necessarily, change a into e before the finite endings i, it, ais, aist, wch, ych, ir, and id; [i.e., in the 2*d* pers. sing. and pl. of pres. and first future (i, wch); 2*d* pers. sing. of imperfect, (id); 1*st* and 2*d* pers. sing. of perfect (ais, aist); and 2*d* pers. pl. of Imperative (wch); and in present, imperfect, and 1*st* future of Passive voice (ir, id).]

Caru. (Active.

Pr. and fut., sing.	2. Ceri = cari .	Pl. 2. Cerwch = carwch .
Imperf., sing.	2. Cerit = carit .
Perf., sing.	1. Cerais = carais .
	2. Ceraist = caraist .
Imperative.		Pl. 2. Cerwch = carwch .

(Passive.)

Pres. and fut. Cerir = carir. Imperf. Cerid = carid.

242. Omission of vowels.—A is cut off before s (i.e., in the pl. number of the perfect, and the sing. and pl. of the pluperfect) when w, preceded by a vowel, ends the root-word; and it is sometimes cut off in the same tenses, when the root-word ends with l.

Clyw-ed, to hear: clywsom = clywasom.
Gwel-ed, to see: gwelsom = gwelasom.

(a) If w is preceded by a consonant, the conjugation is regular; as, berwi, to boil, berwasom.

(b) In colloquial language most verbs omit a in the above-mentioned tenses. Darllensom, cymmiersom, edrychsom, &c.

243. Verbs ending in oi (as, ffoi, ymdroi) retain i of the infinitive, and cut off a of the finite endings before s (i.e., in the pl. number of the perfect, and sing. and pl. of the pluperfect).

Ffoi, to flee: ffoisom = ffoasom.

But some write ffoasom, ffoasoch, ffoasant, &c., regularly.

244. In the finite tenses of some verbs, two of the same vowels meet; and in most cases, as will be seen below, one of them is omitted.

a) In verbs ending in hau (or äu) and such as retain a in the finite moods (as bwyta, to eat) two a's meet in finite tenses ending in af, a, ant, ai: one a is dropped, its omission being indicated by a circumflex over the retained vowel. [Some few writers retain both vowels.]

Cyfiawnhâf = cyfiawnhäaf.

Cyfiawnhâ = cyfiawnhâa.

Cyfiawnhânt = cyfiawnhäant.

Cyfiawnhâi = cyfiawnhâai.

In the perf. plural active, and plup. active and passive of the same verbs, two a's meet, one in the penult and the other in the antepenult: one is always dropped, and no mark is used to indicate its omission.

Cyfiawnhasom = cyfiawnhaasom, &c.

b) In verbs whose infinitives end in io and ied (as ceisio, ystyried), two i's meet where the finite tenses i, it, ir, id, occur: one is always omitted, and nothing indicates its omission.

Ceisi = ceisii.

Ceisit = ceisïit.

Ceisir = ceisïir.

Ceisid = ceisïid.

(a) But if the verb ends in ïo (with a dieresis); as, gweddïo, to pray, mechnïo, to bail, the two vowels are retained.

Gweddïi.

Gweddïit.

Gweddïir.

Gweddïid.

So also in verbs ending in eu = ëu (as dileu, to abolish) the two e's are retained. These vowels meet in the finite tenses which end in em, cch, ent, ed, er.

Dilëem.

Dilëech.

Dilëent.

Dilëed.

Dilëer.

c) In verbs whose root-words end in w (as galw, to call, enw-i, to name, gwrndaw, to listen, ciniaw-a, to dine, clywed, to hear) two w's meet in finite tenses ending in wn, wch, wyf, wyd; and one of them is omitted. [Some writers, however, retain both vowels in such verbs as gwrndawr, ciniawa, clywed.]

Galwn = galwnn.

Gelwch = gelwwch.

Galwyf = galwwyf.

Galwyd = galwwyd.

d) In verbs whose infinitives end in oi (as floi, to flee), two o's meet where the finite tenses end in odd, of, o, om, och, ont; one vowel is dropped, and its omission is indicated by a circumflex. [But some good writers retain both vowels.]

Ffôdd, or ffôodd.

Ffôf, or ffôof.

Ffô, or ffôo.

Ffôm, or fföom.

Ffôch, or fföoch.

Ffônt, or fföont.

DEFINITION OF THE MOODS.

245. A mood expresses the mode or manner in which the verbal action or state is described.

246. "The indicative mood declares the action or state to exist simply, and as a fact."

247. The imperative mood commands, requests, or directs an action to be done, or a state to exist.

248. The subjunctive (or conjunctive) mood declares an action or state conceived as possible under certain conditions.

249. That which is called the "potential mood" (i.e. implying liberty, power, obligation, &c.), is expressed in Welsh, as in English, by the aid of auxiliary verbs; as, gallaf fyned, I may go; medraf ddysgu, I can learn; dylech fyned, you ought to go.

250. "The infinitive mood is the notion of the verb standing in its simplest form, without reference to any particular subject."

TENSES OF VERBS.

251. A tense expresses the time of the action or state of the verb.

252. Tenses are divided into past, present, and future; or more minutely, into present, imperfect, perfect, pluperfect, future, and future perfect.

253. Present.—Present tense Indicative describes an action or state conceived as doing or existing at the present time. The Welsh language has no inflected form to describe present tense for any of its verbs, except bod, to be, and the irregular gwn, I know, and its compound adwaen, I know: hence this tense either borrows the form of the future, as, dysgaf, dysgir fi; or is expressed periphrastically by the inflections of bod and the present participle of the other verb: as, wyf yn dysgu, I am learning; ydys yn fy nysgu, I am being taught. [One of the passive forms borrows bod, to be, and cael, to have; as, wyf yn cael fy nysgu = I am having my teaching.]

(a) There is the same difference between dysgaf and wyf yn dysgu, as there is between I learn and I am learning; but this difference of meaning is not strictly attended to. The periphrastic form is the more frequent, and is always used when the time of an action is to be marked with exactness.

(b) Habit or custom is expressed by the future of bod with a participle: as, byddaf yn myned yno, I am in the habit of going there.

254. The present Subjunctive is the same as the inflected form of the future perfect; as, dysgwylf, dysger fi.

255. Imperfect.—The Imperfect Indicative describes (a) “An action or state continuing and not completed, at some given point of past time.” This is expressed in Welsh by the imperfect oeddw’n, &c., with the present participle of the other verb; as, oeddw’n yn dysgu; oeddid yn fy nysgu.

(a) The same idea is expressed by the inflected form of a certain class of verbs: such as gwelod, gwybod, cysgu, eistedd.

256. (β) It describes habits, customs, actions frequently repeated, &c., and is expressed by the inflected form of the verb; as, dysgwn, dysgid fi; or by the imperfect byddwn, &c., with the present participle of the other verb; as, byddwn yn dysgu, byddid yn fy nysgu.

257. The imperfect Subjunctive borrows the inflected form of the Indicative, or the periphrastic made by “byddwn,” as, dysgwn, or byddwn yn dysgu.

258. Perfect. — The perfect definite (or present perfect) brings a past action into close connection with present time. (a) It is expressed by the present Indicative of bod with a past participle; as, wyf wedi dysgu, I have learnt; wyf wedi (or wedi cael) fy nysgu, I have been taught. (β) It is expressed frequently, but not so properly, by the inflected form; as, dysgais, dysgwyd fi.

259. The perfect indefinite (or aorist) describes past time indefinitely, and is represented by the inflected form of the verb; as, dysgais, I learnt; dysgwyd fi, I was taught.

260. Pluperfect.—The pluperfect Indic. describes an action as completed before the occurrence of another past action. It is expressed (a) by the imperf. of bod with a past participle; as, oeddw’n wedi dysgu, I had learnt; oeddw’n wedi (or wedi cael) fy nysgu, I had been taught; (β) by the inflections of the verb ; as, dysgaswn, dysgasid fi. [The periphrastic occurs oftener than the inflected form.]

261. The pluperfect Subjunctive is expressed either by the inflected form of the plup. Indic., as, dysgaswn, dysgasid fi; or by buaswn, &c., with a participle ; as, buaswn wedi dysgu, buasid wedi fy nysgu.

262. Future.—The future speaks of an action or state in future time. It is expressed by inflection of the verbs ; as, dysgaf, I will learn ; dysgir fi, I shall be taught ; and often by the future of the auxiliary gwneyd, to do, with the infinitive verb ; as, gwnaf ddysgu ; gwneir fy nysgu.

263. Duty, compulsion, &c., will be expressed by the future of cael, to have, with the other verb in the infinitive mood ; as, caf ddysgu, I shall learn.

264. Future perfect.—This tense expresses that an action will have been completed before the occurrence of another action. It is expressed (α) by the first future of bod and the past participle of the other verb ; as, byddaf wedi dysgu, I shall have learnt ; byddaf wedi (or wedi cael) fy nyrru, I shall have been taught ; (β) by an inflected form, in subjoined clauses ; as, pan ddysgwyrf, when I shall have learnt ; pan ddysger fi, when I shall have been taught. [This latter form, however, occurs oftener in present Subjunctive.]

265. A progressive state is expressed by the inflections of bod with the present participle, or a compound of the present participle, of the other verb ; as,

Present.	Wyf yn dysgu,	I am learning.
Imperf.	Oeddwn yn dysgu,	I was learning.
Perfect.	{ Bum yn dysgu, Wyf wedi bod yn dysgu, }	I have been learning.
Plup.	{ Buaswn yn dysgu, Oeddwn wedi bod yn dysgu, }	I had been learning.
Future.	Byddaf yn dysgu,	I shall be learning.

PARTICIPLES.

266. Participles are expressed in Welsh by the Infinitive mood of any proposed verb, preceded by certain particles embracing the notion of present, past, and future time.

267. Present.—Present active is formed by placing yn,¹ gan (can), or dan (tan), before the verb; as, yn dysgu, gan ddysgu, dan ddysgu.

(a) Yn is followed by the radical; gan and dan by the middle.

(b) Gan and dan are employed to form apposition-participles; yn is employed to form both apposition-participles, and participles used in periphrastic verbs.

268. Past.—Past active is formed by putting wedi (or gwedi), ar ol, or sometimes yn ol, before the verb; as, wedi dysgu, ar ol dysgu, yn ol dysgu.

(a) Wedi (or gwedi), ar ol, and yn ol, govern the radical sound.

(b) Ar ol, and yn ol, form apposition-participles; wedi (or gwedi) forms both apposition-participles, and participles used in periphrastic verbs.

269. Future.—Future active is made by putting ar, or ar fedr (= L. futurus), before the verb; as, ar ddysgu, ar fedr dysgu.

(a) Ar governs the middle; ar fedr, the radical sound.

270. The passive participle is distinguished from the active by having cael and the possessive pronoun inserted between the time-defining particle and the verb; as, present, yn cael fy nysgu; past, wedi cael fy nysgu (or wedi fy nysgu); future, ar gael fy nysgu.

271. Negation is expressed by heb, without. In present and future heb fod (without being) is followed by the positive forms; in perfect past heb is substituted for wedi, ar ol, or yn ol.

Present.	Heb fod yn dysgu. (Active.)
	Heb fod yn cael fy nysgu. (Passive.)
Perf. past.	Heb ddysgu. (Active.)
	Heb gael fy nysgu. (Passive.)
Future.	Heb fod ar ddysgu. (Active.)
	Heb fod ar gael fy nysgu. (Passive.)

272. Edig and adwy.—Edig has in some words the force of a past passive participle; as, cyfieithiedig gan Arthur, translated by Arthur: in other words it is looked upon as an adjective termination; as, dyn dysgedig, a learned man. Adwy implies power in future time, corresponding to 'able;' as caffaeladwy, obtainable.

¹ There is no difference of meaning between wyf and ydwyf, &c. In South Wales the simple form of the verb is preferred: wyf, wyt, yw; ym, ych, ynt. In North Wales the compound form is preferred: ydwyf, ydyf, ydyw; ydym, ydych, ydynt.

Yd is probably cognate with the Latin id, and might have been formerly employed as a nom. before all persons, like it in English. (It is I, it is they.)

Wyf, wyt, &c., are compounded of yw with a pronoun: thus, wyf = yw-ni; wyt = yw-ti; ym = yw-ni! ych = yw-chwi; ynt = yw-hwynt. Sydd is compounded of sy and ydd = id, and signifies it is.

Oes comes, perhaps, from o = lie or it, and es = ys and Eng. is: oes = he, or it is.

² The difference of meaning between mae, sydd, yw or ydyw, and oes, is explained under the Syntax of "Bod." § 614, &c.

³ The form ydoes, contracted 'does', still exists in colloquial language. "Os 'does dim teimlad ynddo" = os ydoes.

IMPERSONAL PASSIVE OF BOD.

278. INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present.—Ys¹ (s. w.), ydys (n. w.), it is, there is, one is.

Byddir or byddys (of usage).

Imperf.—Oeddid, it was. Byddid (of usage).

Perfect indef. or def.—Buwyd (or bued), it was; it has been.

Perfect def.—Ys or ydys wedi bod,

Pluperf.—Buasid (or buesid); oeddid wedi bod, it had been.

Future.—Byddir or byddys, it will or shall be.

Fut. perf.—Byddir (or byddys) wedi bod; (in subjoined clauses) bydder (contr. bâer), it will have been.

279. IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Bydder, let be.

¹ Ys appears to be the same with the Eng. is, and es of the Gr., Lat., and Welsh, in εσ-τι, es-t, o-es. It is employed in forming the perfect and plup. tenses of Welsh verbs—taking the form os in buost=bu-os-ti, and as in other places; as, carais=car-as-i; caraist=car-as-ti.

280. SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present. Bydder (contr. bâer), (that) it may or should be;

Imperf. Byddid (contr. baid), (that, if) it would or should be.

Plup. Buasid (or buesid), (that, if) it would or should have been.

* * Of the compound verbs of "Bod," see § 321.

AUXILIARY VERBS.

281. Auxiliary verbs serve to produce additional forms to other verbs, and to particularize their signification, and the time of action or event. The auxiliaries are bod, durfod, cael, and gwyneŷt, to which are usually added gallu and medru, dylwn, dichon, rhaid, and mynu.

282. Gallu and Medru.

"Medru implies skill and ability, whether natural or acquired, on the part of the person speaking. Gallu implies power, permission, the non-existence of any external impediment. Thus gallu corresponds nearly to 'may,' medru to 'can.'

¹ This distinction is not strictly observed, gallu being often used as equivalent to may and can.

These verbs are conjugated regularly.

Gallaf, I may or can.

Gallwn, I might or could.

Gellais, I have been able.

Gallaswn, I might or could have.

(Fel y) gallwyf, (that) I may (= may be able).

(Fel y) gallwn, (that) I might.

(Y, pe) gallaswn, (that) I might or could have; (if) I had been able.

Medraf, I can.

Medrwn, I could.

Medrais, I have been able.

283. Dylwn.

Dylwn (fr. an obsolete infin. dylu) implies duty, like the Eng. 'I ought.' It is a defective verb, having only the imperfect tense, which is used to denote present obligation, and the pluperfect, which is used to denote past obligation.

Imperfect.—I ought.

Sing. 1. Dylwn (i).

2. Dylit (ti).

3. Dylai (efe).

Pl. 1. Dylem (ni).

2. Dylech (chwi).

3. Dylent (hwy).

Impersonal.—Dylid, it or one ought.

Pluperfect.—I ought to have.

Form I.

Sing. 1. Dylaswn (i).	Pl. 1. Dylasem (ni).
2. Dylasit (ti).	2. Dylasech (chwi).
3. Dylasai (efe).	3. Dylasent (hwy).

Impersonal.—Dylasid, it or one ought to have.

Form II.

Sing. 1. Dylaswn (i) fod wedi.	Pl. 1. Dylasem (ni) fod wedi.
2. Dylasit (ti) fod wedi.	2. Dylasech (chwi) fod wedi.
3. Dylasai (efe) fod wedi.	3. Dylasent (hwy) fod wedi.

(a) The corresponding verb of “dylaswn” is in the imperf. and perfect indef.; and that of “dylaswn fod wedi” in the present and perf. definite. [“Welsh Exercises,” § 383.]

“Dylaswn anfon, ond ni wnaethym,” I ought to have sent, but I did not.

“Dylaswn fod wedi anfon, ond nid ydwyf (wedi anfon),” I ought to have sent, but I have not (sent).

284. Dichon.

Dichon (= Gr. τυγχανω) is a defective verb, having only the present tense, and one form for sing. and plural.

a) It is used impersonally, implying contingency = “it may be,” “perhaps,” and followed by a transitive clause.

Dichon fy mod yn cyfeiliorni, it may be that I err.

b) It is used impersonally, and implies power, corresponding to may, can, is able, and is followed by the prep. i (to) and a pronoun.

Sing. 1. Dichon i mi.	Pl. 1. Dichon i ni.
2. Dichon i ti.	2. Dichon i chwi.
3. Dichon iddo ef (or iddi hi). ¹	3. Dichon iddynt hwy.

When a substantive or substantive word follows, the prep. i is usually omitted.

Dichon dyn dlïoddef llawer, man can bear much.
A ddïchion ffydd ei gadw ef, can faith save him?
Ni ddïchion llyn fod, this cannot be.

c) When the subject precedes, dichon is used as a personal verb = may, can.

Pwy a ddïchion sefyll, who can stand?

Nid yw'r brenin ŵr [yr hwn] a ddïchion ddim yn eich erbyn chwi, the king is not he that can do anything against you.—Jer. xxxviii. 5.

¹ The prep. i is sometimes omitted before the 3d person sing. “Ni ddïchion efe weled (= iddo ef weled) teyrnas Dduw.”—St. John iii. 3.

285. Rhaid.

Rhaid is both a noun and a verb. It corresponds to "must."

a) When a noun, it is used with the different tenses of Bod.

Present. Y mae yn rhaid i mi ddysgu, } = there is need for Rhaid yw i mi ddysgu, } me to learn; I
 Rhaid i mi ddysgu (omitting the verb), } must learn.

Imperf. Yr oedd yn rhaid i mi, } I was obliged.
 Rhaid oedd i mi, }

Perf. Bu yn rhaid i mi, I was obliged; I had.

Fut. Bydd yn rhaid i mi, I shall be obliged; I shall have.

b) When the subject precedes, being then antithetical, rhaid is a verb, and, like must, is indeclinable.

Pwy a raid ddysgu, who must learn?

Chwychwi a raid ddysgu, you (=it is you that) must learn.

c) Rhaid, preceded by the adv. ni (or nid), is equivalent to "need not:" when followed by peidio â (or ag), it is = "must not."

Nid yw yn rhaid i mi, } I need not; I have no need.
 Nid rhaid [ni raid] i mi, }

(Y mae yn) rhaid i mi beidio â myned, I must not go.

☞ When "must" may be explained by "necessarily," or "it must be that," the Welsh is, y mae yn rhaid, or simply rhaid, followed by a transitive clause. Rhaid eich bod yn newynog, you must be hungry. [For additional examples, see "Welsh Exercises," Ch. 39.]

286. Cael.

Cael strictly signifies to have. As an auxiliary to active verbs, it implies liberty, or freedom from external hindrances; permission; compulsion.

Mi a gaf ddysgu, I shall learn.

Hwy a gaent fyned, they should go.

As an auxiliary to passive verbs, cael retains its radical signification.

Yr wyf yn cael fy nyysgu = I am having my teaching; I am (being) taught.

Cael is an irregular verb. See conjugation, § 319.

287. Gwneyd and Darfod.

Gwneyd, to do, and Darfod, to cease, to finish, serve merely to give a different form to some of the tenses.

Gwnaethym ddysgu, I learnt.

Gwnaf fyned, I will go.

Δ ddarfu i chi dalu, did you pay?

Gwneyd is an irregular verb. See conjugation, § 313.

Darfod is a compound of Bod, and is conjugated like it. When an auxiliary, the 3d person sing. is used, followed by the prep. i, with its case, as above.

The forms darfum ddysgu, darfuost ddysgu, &c., are corrupt forms for darfu i mi ddysgu, darfu i ti ddysgu, &c.

288. Mynu.

Mynu (fr. myn, the will) implies will or determination in spite of hindrance or opposition, and is conjugated regularly.

“Mi a fynaf ddwyfod,” I will come; I am determined to come.

“Efe a fynai fynd,” he would go; he was determined to go.

Generally, however, the meaning of mynu, somewhat like that of will, varies with the clause of which it forms a part. [See “Welsh Exercises,” Ch. 43.]

CONJUGATION OF A REGULAR VERB.

289. ‘There are two conjugations; one by inflection and the other by auxiliaries.’

290. *Terminations of the inflected form, active voice.*¹

INDICATIVE.

Present.			Imperfect.
Sing. 1. -af.	Pl. 1. -wn.		Sing. 1. -wn.	Pl. 1. -em.
2. -i.	2. -wch.		2. -it.	2. -ech.
3. -a (or root).	3. -ant.		3. -ai.	3. -ent.

¹ The terminations of verbs are changes and contractions of personal pronouns, as will appear from the subjoined analysis:—

Pres. Af = fi; i = di; a = e? Wn = ni; wch = chwi; ant = hwynt. (Cf. L. amant.)

Imperf. Wn = mi? it = ti; a = e? Em = ni? ech = chwi; ent = hwynt.

Perf. Ais = as i; aist = as ti; odd, cf. amavit, loved. Asom = as m? asoch = as chwi; asant = as hwynt. [As is a verb, see § 278, note.]

Plup. Aswn = as mi? asit = as ti;asai = as e? Asem = as ni? asech = as chwi; asent = as hwynt. [Cf. L. issem, isses, &c.]

Future, see Present.

Fut. Perf. Wyf, of = fi; ot = ti; o = o. Om = ni? och = chwi; ont = hwynt.

Imperative. Wyf = fi; a, cf. L. ama; ed, cf. L. amet. Wn = ni; wch = chwi; ant = hwynt.

But Dr. Pughe seems to be of opinion, that these suffixes are to be derived from primitive verbs; such as au, addu, &c. His words are: “What appears as the inflections are identified, on due examination, to be these primitive verbs affixed to nouns, so as to form a verbal characteristic in the different moods and tenses.”—Grammar, p. 65.

Dysgu, to learn, to teach.

291. ACTIVE VOICE. INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Form I.—I learn.

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
1. Dysgaf (fi). ¹	1. Dysgwn (ni).
2. Dysgi (di).	2. Dysgwch (chwi).
3. Dysg or dysga (efe).	3. Dysgant (hwy).

(a) If the nominative case precedes, the particle a intervenes between it and the verb, governing the middle sound.

Sing. 1. Mi a ddysgaf.	2. Ti a ddysgi.	3. Efe a ddysg.
Pl. 1. Ni a ddysgwn.	2. Chwi a ddysgwch.	3. Hwy a ddysgant.

¹ The subjoined is the form given by some grammarians for the present tense of the indicative, and is adopted by a few writers of the present day.

Sing. 1. Dysgwyf.	Pl. 1. Dysgym.
2. Dysgwyt.	2. Dysgych.
3. Dysgyw.	3. Dysgynt.

Form II.—I am learning ; I learn.

SINGULAR.

1. Wyf (fi) yn dysgu.
2. Wyt (ti) yn dysgu.
3. Y mae (efe) yn dysgu.
Efe sydd yn dysgu.
Nid yw (efe) yn dysgu.

[In North Wales, “ydwyf (fi) yn dysgu,” &c. See Present Tense of “Bod,” with note.]

(a) When antithesis is to be expressed, the participle may take precedence, the participial sign being omitted.

- | | | |
|------------------------|------------------|-------------------|
| Sing. 1. Dysgu yr wyf. | 2. Dysgu yr wyt. | 3. Dysgu y mae. |
| Pl. 1. Dysgu yr ym. | 2. Dysgu yr ych. | 3. Dysgu y maent. |

PLURAL.

1. Ym (ni) yn dysgu.
2. Ych (chwi) yn dysgu.
3. Y maent (hwy) yn dysgu.
Hwynt-hwy sydd yn dysgu.
Nid ynt (hwy) yn dysgu.

Form III.—I am wont to learn, I am in the habit of learning.

- | | |
|--------------------------|-----------------------------|
| 1. Byddaf (fi) yn dysgu. | 1. Byddwn (ni) yn dysgu. |
| 2. Byddi (di) yn dysgu. | 2. Byddwch (chwi) yn dysgu. |
| 3. Bydd (efe) yn dysgu. | 3. Byddant (hwy) yn dysgu. |

(a) Habit or custom may be expressed by Form II., but it is more idiomatically expressed by this Form.

Imperfect Tense.

Form I.—I used to learn, &c. [Generally of habit or custom.]

- | | |
|------------------|------------------------------|
| 1. Dysgwn (i). | 1. Dysgem (ni). ¹ |
| 2. Dysgit (ti). | 2. Dysgech (chwi). |
| 3. Dysgai (efe). | 3. Dysgent (hwy). |

[Put nom. case before the verb. See Present Tense, Form I. (a).]

Form II.—I used to learn. [Of habit or custom.]

- | | |
|---------------------------|-----------------------------|
| 1. Byddwn (i) yn dysgu. | 1. Byddem (ni) yn dysgu. |

| 1. Dysgais (i). | 1. Dysgasom (ni). |
| 2. Dysgaist (ti). | 2. Dysgasoch (chwi). |
| 3. Dysgodd (efe). ³ | 3. Dysgasant (hwy). |

[Put nom. case before the verb. See Present Tense, Form I.]

(a) This form is sometimes definite = I have learnt.

¹ Or occasionally, dysgym, dysgych, dysgynt. “Nis gwyddynt,” they knew not.—Gen. xlii. 23.

² Or, oeddym, oeddych, oeddynt, yn dysgu.

³ The third pers. sing. ends sometimes in es; in the poets in awdd; and in is, ws, and wsys in the colloquial language of South Wales. As is occasionally met with,

Form II.—Perf. definite. I have learnt.

SINGULAR.

1. Wyf (fi) wedi dysgu.
2. Wyt (ti) wedi dysgu.
3. Y mae (efe) wedi dysgu.
Efe sydd wedi dysgu.
Nid yw (efe) wedi dysgu.

PLURAL.

1. Ym (ni) wedi dysgu.
2. Ych (chwi) wedi dysgu.
3. Y maent (hwy) wedi dysgu.
Hwynt-hwy sydd wedi dysgu.
Nid ynt (hwy) wedi dysgu.

[In N.W., “ydwyf (fi) wedi dysgu,” &c. See Present Tense of “Bod.”]

(a) When antithesis is to be expressed, the participle may take precedence.

Sing. 1. Wedi dysgu yr wyf. 2. Wedi dysgu yr wyt. 3. Wedi dysgu y mae.

Pl. 1. Wedi dysgu yr ym. 2. Wedi dysgu yr ych. 3. Wedi dysgu y maent.

Form III.—I learnt; I did learn; I have learnt.

Inflection of *darfu*d.]

- | | |

Form IV.—I learnt; I did learn. [Colloquial. Inflection of *gwneyd*d.]

- | | |
|----------------------------|------------------------------|
| 1. Gwnaethym (i) ddysgu. | 1. Gwnaethom (ni) ddysgu. |
| 2. Gwnaethost (ti) ddysgu. | 2. Gwnaethoch (chwi) ddysgu. |
| 3. Gwnaeth (efe) ddysgu. | 3. Gwnaethant (hwy) ddysgu. |

Form V.—I have been learning. [Progressive.]

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. Bum (i) yn dysgu.
Wyf (fi) wedi bod yn dysgu. | 1. Buom (ni) yn dysgu.
Ym (ni) wedi bod yn dysgu. |
| 2. Buost (ti) yn dysgu.
Wyt (ti) wedi bod yn dysgu. | 2. Buoch (chwi) yn dysgu.
Ych (chwi) wedi bod yn dysgu. |
| 3. Bu (efe) yn dysgu.
Y mae (efe) wedi bod yn dysgu. | 3. Buont (hwy) yn dysgu.
Y maent (hwy) wedi bod yn dysgu. |

Pluperfect Tense.

Form I.—I had learnt.

- | | |
|--------------------|--------------------------------|
| 1. Dysgaswn (i). | 1. Dysgasem (ni). ¹ |
| 2. Dysgasit (ti). | 2. Dysgasech (chwi). |
| 3. Dysgasai (efe). | 3. Dysgasent (hwy). |

(a) The inflected forms, both of the active and passive of this tense, are oftener used in the subjunctive; but when they can be employed in the indicative without rendering the sentence ambiguous, they are to be preferred to the periphrastic “oeddwn wedi dysgu,” as being more concise. They occur chiefly in subjoined clauses, such as relative, indirect interrogative, antithetic transitive, &c. [See examples in “Welsh Exercises,” Ch. 41.]

Form II.—I had learnt.

SINGULAR.

1. Oeddw'n (i) wedi dysgu.
2. Oeddit (ti) wedi dysgu.
3. Oedd (efe) wedi dysgu.

PLURAL.

1. Oeddem (ni) wedi dysgu.
2. Oeddech (chwi) wedi dysgu.
3. Oeddent (hwy) wedi dysgu.

[Put the participle before the verb. Perfect Tense, Form II.]

Form III.—I had learnt (habitually).

1. Byddw'n (i) wedi dysgu.
2. Byddit (ti) wedi dysgu.
3. Byddai (efe) wedi dysgu.

1. Byddem (ni) wedi dysgu.
2. Byddech (chwi) wedi dysgu.
3. Byddent (hwy) wedi dysgu.

Form IV.—I had been learning. [Progressive.]

1. Oeddw'n (i) wedi bod yn dysgu.
2. Oeddit (ti) wedi bod yn dysgu.
3. Oedd (efe) wedi bod yn dysgu.

1. Oeddem (ni) wedi bod yn dysgu.
2. Oeddech (chwi) wedi bod yn dysgu.
3. Oeddent (hwy) wedi bod yn dysgu.

Future Tense.

Form I.—I shall or will learn.

1. Dysgaf (fi).
2. Dysgi (di).
3. Dysg or dysga (efe).

1. Dysgw'n (ni).
2. Dysgweh (chwi).
3. Dysgant (hwy).

[Put nom. case before the verb. See Present Tense, Form I.]

(a) The third pers. sing. may always be made to end in a; as, dysga, cara, ysgrifena. But a is frequently omitted, and the person made to consist of the root of the verb, either in its pure state, or with a change of some of its vowels.¹

¹ The following remarks are added to show how this person is formed by inflection of vowels.

(a) A is changed into ai.
Sefyll, to stand (fr. sâf), saif. Peri, to cause (fr. pâr), pair. Caff (fr. caff = L. hab-eo), caif.

(b) A is changed into ei.
Taflu, to throw (fr. tafl), teifl. Ymaflyd (fr. ymafl = ymafael), ymeifl. Gallu, to be able (fr. gall), geill. Cadw, to keep, ceidw. Galw, to call, geilw. Llanw, to fill, lleinw. Dal, to hold, deil.

(c) A of the penult is changed into e, and a of the ultima into ei.
Gwahardd, to prohibit, gweheirdd. Gwarchadw, to guard, gwercheidw.

(d) A of the penult is changed into e, and a or e of the ult. into y.
Attal, to stop, ettyl. Para, to last, pery. Ateb, to answer, etyb. Gward, to deliver, gweryd. Darllen, to read, derllyn. Buyta, to eat, is changed into bwyty.

(e) A (and sometimes o) of the penult is changed into e, and o (or aw) of the ult. into y.

Aros, to remain, erys. Marchogaeth, to ride (fr. marchog), merchyg. Adrodd, to relate, edrydd. Dangos, to show, dengys. Gwrandaw, to listen, gwendy. Taraw, to strike, tery. Gadaw, to leave, gedy. Addaw, to promise, eddy. Gosod, to place, gesyd.

(f) O in monosyllables, or in the ultima of words of more than one syllable, is very frequently changed into y.

(b) In colloquial language this person is made to end in iff; dysgiff, ysgrifeniff, which is condemned by Dr. Davies as "most corrupt." Iff may be a corruption of ef, he; dysgiff = dysgeff; or cognate with the L. ab and eb, as in amabit, docebit.

Ith or yth is also a common termination, in coll. language, for the same person; as, dysgith, talith.

Both iff and ith are probably the remains of old forms.

Form II.—I shall or will learn.

SINGULAR.

1. Bydd i mi ddysgu.
2. Bydd i ti ddysgu.
3. Bydd iddo (ef) ddysgu.

PLURAL.

1. Bydd i ni ddysgu.
2. Bydd i chwi ddysgu.
3. Bydd iddynt (hwy) ddysgu.

(a) This form occurs often after os (if), and in dependent clauses. [See examples in "Welsh Exercises," Ch. 43.]

Form III.—I will learn.

[Futurity and promise. Inflection of gwneyd.]

- | | |

| 1. I mi ddysgu, let me learn. | 1. I ni ddysgu, let us learn. |
| 3. Iddo (ef) ddysgu, let him learn. | 3. Iddynt (hwy) ddysgu, let them learn. |

(a) This form is a command given to the 2d pers., sing. or pl., respecting the 1st or 3d person.

Rho and dyro (pl. rhewch), give, are sometimes used; and also occasionally moes (pl. moeswch), give.

Dyro i mi wybod, let me know. Moes i mi glywed, let me hear.

293. SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD. [Syntax, § 612 (1), &c.]

Present Tense.

PASSIVE VOICE.

296. The passive voice is expressed either by inflection or by periphrasis.

297. The inflected form has only one termination for each tense.

INDICATIVE.

Pres.	Imperf.	Perf.	Plup.	Fut.	Fut. perf.
Ir ; as,	Id ; as,	Wyd ; ¹ as,	Asid ; ² as,	Ir ; as,	Er ; as,

IMPERATIVE—Er ; as, Dysger.

SUBJUNCTIVE.

Pres.	Imperf.	Plup.
Er ; as,	Id ; as,	Asid ; ¹ as,
Dysger.	Dysgid.	Dysgasid.

298. These inflections are made to agree with all persons, whether singular or plural, standing as the nominative case ; so that the person and number of the verb are to be determined by the person and number of the nominative case. Thus dysgir when put in construction with mi (as dysgir fi) is of the first person, and sing. number ; when put in construction with chwi (as dysgir chwi) it is in the second person, plural number.

² Sometimes csid ; as dysgesid.

299. A proposition may be expressed by this form in three different ways : (1) with the nom. after the verb ; as, dysgir fi : (2) with the nominative case before the verb ; as, mi a ddysgir : (3) with a possessive pronoun before the verb, with or without the nom. case after the verb ; as, fe'm dysgir ; fe'm dysgir i.

300. The periphrastic is formed—(1) of the inflections of bod with a passive participle of the verb specified ; as, wyf yn cael fy nysgu : (2) of the inflections of the impersonal form of bod with an active participle of the verb ; as, ydys yn fy nysgu.

omitted. (Ni'm dysgir or Ni ddysgir fi, I am not taught. Pe'm dysgid or Pe dysgid fi, if I were taught. Fel y'm dysger or Fel y dysger fi, that I may be taught.)

(b) Observe that the 2d person yth (contr. 'th) takes the middle sound after it: the others take the radical. Fe, fo, and e take the middle; as, fe ddysgir Arthur.

(c) The personal pronouns are generally omitted in Form III., the possessive being thought sufficient to indicate the person; but when they are expressed, they are thus written: 1st pers. sing. i; 2d, di; 3d, ef, e, o: 1st pers. pl. ni; 2d, chwi; 3d, hwy or hwynt.

☞ When the student has learnt the three foregoing examples of the present of the inflected form, he will be enabled to acquire the conjugation of the other tenses without any trouble, as he has only to substitute the inflections of those tenses (see above) for that of the present.

* * See other forms of Passive trans. clause, §§ 767, 768.

Pluperfect Tense.

Form I.—(That) I should, would, or might have been taught ;
(if) I had been taught.

Dysgasid fi, — di, — ef, — ni, — chwi, — hwy.

Form II.—(That) I should, would, or might have been taught ;
(if) I had been taught.

Y'm dysgasid (i), &c. See Present Tense, Form II.

Form III.—(If) I had been taught ; (that) I should, &c., have been taught.

Buasai i mi gael fy nysgu, &c. See Present, Form III.

Form IV.—(That) I should, would, or might have been taught ; (if) I had been taught.

Buaswn (i) yn cael fy nysgu,¹ &c. See Present Indic., periphrastic, Form I.

Form V.—(That) I should, would, or might have been taught ; (if) I had been taught.

Buaswn (i) wedi cael fy nysgu,² &c. See Perfect Indic., Form VI.

Form VI.—(That) I should, would, or might have been taught ; (if) I had been taught. [Inflection of cael.]

SINGULAR.

1. Cawswn (i) fy nysgu.
2. Cawsit (ti) dy ddysgu.
3. Cawsai (efe) ei ddysgu.

PLURAL.

1. Cawsem (ni) ein dysgu.
2. Cawsech (chwi) eich dysgu.
3. Cawsent (hwy) eu dysgu.

Form VII.—(That) I should, &c. ; (if) I had been, &c. [Not common.]

Buasid wedi fy nysgu, &c. See Present Indic., periphrastic, Form III.

(a) The Optative ("would that I had been taught") is expressed by "O na," followed by one of the above forms. [Form II : see Imperfect, note (a).]

(b) When should have been = ought to have been, it is rendered by "dylaswn," &c., or "dylasid." [See Imperfect, Form IV.]

"I should have been taught," dylaswn gael fy nysgu ; dylasid fy nysgu.

(c) Might have been, expressing liberty, power. See Present, Form V., note (a.)

INFINITIVE MOOD.

304. "In Welsh there is no inflection of the verb to express the Infinitive passive ; but that state is indicated by combinations of the possessive pronouns with the Infinitive active," with or sometimes without auxiliary verbs.

305. When the possessive refers to a personal pronoun coming after the Infinitive, expressed or understood, the verb is active ; as, Daeth i'm dysgu (i), he came to teach me.³ But when the possessive refers to the nom. case of the main verb, and does not admit of a pers. pron. after the verb, it indicates a passive state. Thus in the sentence,

¹ = i should have been having my teaching, — progressive.

² = I should have had my teaching, — past and finished.

³ In some cases the poss. is used when a pers. pron. cannot follow ; as, "Yr hwn yr wyf yn ei garu." [See Syntax.]

“Haeddodd Arthur ei garu,” ei refers to Arthur, which is the nom. case to “haeddodd.” So in English: “Arthur deserved to be loved” = that he should be loved.

306. The forms “Fy nysgu,” “ym dysgu” (contr. ‘m dysgu), “cael fy nysgu,” to be taught, may be joined to verbs of any tense. [“Cael fy nysgu” occurs much oftener than the other forms.]

Haeddaf fy nysgu (or gael fy nysgu), I deserve to be taught.

Daethym i'm dysgu (or i gael fy nysgu), I came to be taught.

Deuaf i'm dysgu (or i gael fy nysgu), I will come to be taught.

Some clauses have the infinitive as their main verb. [See Infinitive active, § 294.]

Present and Imperfect.

Fy mod i yn [cael] fy nysgu, &c., that I am or was taught.

Perfect and Pluperfect.

a) Fy mod (i) wedi [cael] fy nysgu, &c., that I have or had been taught.

b) Gael o honof fy nysgu, &c., that I was, have been, or had been taught.

c) (Ddarfod) i mi gael fy nysgu, &c., that I was, have been, or had been taught.

Future.

a) Fy mod ar gael fy nysgu, &c., that I am about to be, or on the point of being taught.

b) Fy mod ar fedr cael fy nysgu, &c., that I am about to be taught.

Perfect. Cafwyd, caffwyd, caed, or cawd fi, &c., I was found.

Plup. Cawsid fi, &c., I had been found.

Future. Ceir or ceffir fi, &c., I shall be found.

Fut.-perf. Caer or caffer fi, &c., I shall have been found (in subjoined cl.)

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Caer or caffer fi, &c., let me be found.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present. Caer or caffer fi, &c., (that) I may be found.

Imperf. Ceid or ceffid fi, &c., (that) I might be found ; (if) I were found.

Plup. Cawsid fi, &c., (that) I would have been found ; (if) I had been found.

321. The compound verbs of BOD are conjugated like it. Most of the contractions, mentioned below, are now obsolete.

Adnabod (ad-nabod), to recognise, see § 317.
 Canfod and canfod (can=Eng. ken, and bod), to perceive.
 Clybod (clyw-bod), to hear. (Infin. obsolete.)
 Cydfod (cyd-bod), to agree.
 Cydnabod (cyd-nabod), to acknowledge.
 Cyfarfod (cyfer-bod), to meet.
 Darfod (dar-bod), to cease to exist, to finish.
 Darganfod (dar-canfod), to discover.
 Gorfod and gorffod (gor-bod), to be obliged.
 Gwybod (gwydd-bod), to know, see § 315.
 Hanfod and hauffod (han=L. ens, and bod), to exist.
 Nabod (gwn=Eng. ken, Gr. γνωσκω, and bod), to recognise.

(a) The present INDICATIVE of these verbs (except gwybod) are formed periphrastically; as, "Wyf yn canfod." Cenyw, deryw, goryw, and henyw, 3rd pers. sing. of canfod, darfod, gorfod, and hanfod, are obsolete.

(b) Imperfect. Hanoeddwn, &c. (conjugated like oeddwn), is an old form. So also is darocdd, 3rd pers. sing. Gorffai=gorfyddai. "A orffai ar gewri."—"I. MSS.", p. 254.

(c) Perfect. Hanbu, obsolete for hanfu.

(d) Future. Such as have a in the penult change a into e in 3rd pers. sing.: as, canfydd, derfydd, adnebydd, cydnebydd, cyferfydd, henfydd, nebydd. Hanfod has a contracted form: hanffaf (=hanfyddaf), henffi, henffydd (hanbydd); hanffwn, henffweh, hanffant.

(e) IMPERATIVE. Darfydded is contracted into derfid. "A fyno Duw derfid." Hanfod has a contracted form: Sing. 3. hanffed, hanboed, hanbid; Pl. 1. hanffwn, 2. hanffweh, 3. hanffant.

(f) Present SUBJUNCTIVE and 2nd future of canfod, darfod, gorfod, hanfod, have contracted forms: canffwyf, darffwyf, gorffwyf, hanffwyf, &c., like bywyf, pres. Subj. of Bod.

(g) Imperfect. Darffai = darfyddai. Gorffai = gorfyddai. Hanffwn, -it, -ai; -em, -ech, -ent = hanfyddwn, &c.

(h) PASSIVE VOICE. Imperfect, Hanffid = hanfyddid. Perfect, Hanffwyd = hanfuwyd. Future, Hanffir = hanfyddir. IMPERATIVE, 2nd future, and present SUBJUNCTIVE, canffer, darffer, gorffer, hanffer = canfydder, &c.

(i) Some modern writers change bod into fydd in the perfect and pluperfect, active and passive, and conjugate these tenses like ysgu. Canfyddais (=canfum); canfyddwyd (=canfuwyd); canfyddaswn (=canfuaswn); canfyddasid (=canfuasid). This is disapproved of by good critics.

322. Ysgwyd, "to shake," forms } its finite tenses from } ysgydw: as, ysgydwaf.

Dwyn, "to bring," . . . dyg (=ducere): as, dygaf.

Cyd-ddwyn, "to bear with," . . . cyd-ddyg: as, cyd-ddygaf.

Ymddwyn, "to behave," "conceive," . . . ymddyg: as, ymddygaf.

Dianc, "to flee," . . . diang: as, diangaf.

Chwerthin, "to laugh," . . . chwardd: as, chwarddaf.

(a) Dwyn has dug or dygodd in 3rd pers. sing. perf.; dwg or dyg in 3rd pers. sing. fut.; and dug in 2nd pers. sing. Imperative. Its compounds follow the same rule.

(b) Ciwerthin in colloquial language retains th in finite tenses: as, chwerthaf, &c.

323. Rhoi, “to give,” has usually dyry (for rho or rhy) in 3rd pers. sing. fut.; and dyro (for rho) in 2nd pers. sing. Imperative.

Dywedyd, “to say,” has occasionally dyrawd, dyfed, or d-wad (for dyweddod) in 3rd pers. sing. perf.; and dyryd, dyryf, or dyraid (for dywed) in 3rd pers. sing. present and future.

Codi, “to raise” or “rise,” has cŷyd (for côd or coda) in 3rd pers. sing. fut., and 2nd pers. sing. Imperative.

Cymmeryd, “to take,” canu, “to sing,” and gwanu, “to pierce,” make occasionally cymmerth for cymmerodd, cânt for canodd, and gwânt for gwanodd, in 3rd pers. sing. perfect.

The final s in Aros, “to stay,” was formerly sometimes cut off in the finite moods. Aroais (= arosais), I stayed. Aroaf (= arosaf), I shall stay.

Tewi, “to be silent,” had formerly tau as well as taw and tawu in 3rd pers. sing. future.

Tawed doeth, annoeth ni thau, let the wise be silent, the unwise will not be silent.

Fel y tau dafad, as a sheep is silent. Is. liii. 8.

Several verbs have p sometimes inserted between the root and the termination in the perfect of the passive voice; as,

Claddpwyd for claddwyd .	Gwanpwyd for gwanwyd .
Daethpwyd for daethwyd .	Gwnaethpwyd for gwnaethwyd .
Dycpwyd for dygwyd .	Gwelpwyd for gwelwyd .
Dywedpwyd for dywedwyd .	Lladdpwyd for lladdwyd .

Lladd, “to kill,” has sometimes llás as well as lladdpwyd for lladdwyd.

“Gan y tri llyn y llás traian y dynion.”—Rev. ix. 13.

DEFECTIVE VERBS.

324. Medd, to say.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present.	Say I.	Imperfect.	Said I.
SINGULAR.	PLURAL.	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.

2. Meddi.	2. Meddweh.	2. Medlit.	2. Meddech.
3. Medd.	3. Meddant.	3. Meddaf.	3. Meddent.

325. Eb (cf. εἶπον : ἔπος), to say = 'quoth.'

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present and Past. Say I; said I.

Sing. Ebe fi, ebe ti, ebe efe. Pl. Ebe ni, ebe chwi, ebe hwy.

(a) Ebe is also written eb, chyr, or ebai.

(b) Its compounds ateb, to answer, cyfateb, to correspond, gohedu, to correspond, and gwrtheb, to answer, are conjugated like regular verbs.

(c) Meddaf and ebe are used in quotations, and are generally placed in the middle or at the end of a clause: ebe in quoting the exact words, and meddaf in quoting the sentiment or the exact words.—[“Welsh Exercises,” Ch. 22.]

326. Piau, to own, to possess.¹

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present. I (= it is I) own.

Myfi, tydi, efe, biau. Nyni, chwyhwi, hwynt-hwy, biau.

(a) The particle a is occasionally put before the verb,—“myfi a biau.” The initial p frequently remains unchanged,—“myfi piau.” Piau is sometimes written pia; and pioedd, of the past, piodd.

Past. I owned.

SINGULAR.

PLURAL.

a) Myfi, tydi, efe, bioedd. Nyni, chwyhwi, hwynt-hwy, bioedd.

b) Myfi, tydi, efe, oedd piau. Nyni, chwyhwi, hwynt-hwy, oedd piau.

Future. I shall own.

[a) Myfi, tydi, efe, bieufydd. Nyni, chwyhwi, hwynt-hwy, bieufydd.²]

b) Myfi, tydi, efe, fydd piau. Nyni, chwyhwi, hwynt-hwy, fydd piau.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Imperfect. (That) I should own; (if) I owned.

[a) Myfi, tydi, efe, bieufyddai. Nyni, chwyhwi, hwynt-hwy, bieufyddai.²]

b) Myfi, tydi, efe, fyddai piau. Nyni, chwyhwi, hwynt-hwy, fyddai piau.

Pluperfect. (That) I should have owned; (if) I had owned.

Myfi, tydi, efe, fuasai piau. Nyni, chwyhwi, hwynt-hwy, fuasai piau.

327. Hwde (N. W.); Hwre (S. W.) are used only in the Imperative.

Sing. 2. Hwde or hwre, (here) take.

Pl. 2. Hwdiweh or hwriweh, (here) take.

¹ The clause, of which piau is the verb, may often be rendered into English by “. . . is mine,” or “. . . belongs to me.” “Nyni biau'r tai hyn,” these houses are ours; these houses belong to us.

² These forms are now obsolete except occasionally in poetry.

328. Moes, give. The Imperative only is used.

Sing. 2. Moes, give thou.

Pl. 2. Moeswch, give ye.

It also forms an auxiliary, similar to the Eng. "let."

Moes i mi glywed, let me hear. Moes i ni fyned, come, let us go.

Byw, to live, and Marw, to die.

329. Byw and marw, having no inflections, borrow the auxiliary verb bod to express their various tenses.

Yr wyf yn byw, I live.

Yr wyf yn marw, I am dying.

330. Byw and marw are also adjectives, corresponding to alive and dead.

When adjectives, they assume the middle sound after the particle yn ["yn apposition"], which is usually expressed;¹ when verbs, they preserve their radical initials after the particle ["yn participial"].

Adjectives.

Y mae yn fyw, he is alive.

Y mae yn farw, he is dead.

Verbs.

Y mae yn byw, he is living.

Y mae yn marw, he is dying.

330 (1). When byw and marw are put in construction with the tenses bum (I was or have been), byddaf (I shall be), bydd (be thou), byddwyf (I may be), byddwn (I might or should be), buaswn (I should have been), and unaccompanied by the particle "yn," they are translated into English by the same tenses of the verbs live and die.

330 (2). The initial sound of byw and marw after the above-named tenses is irregular; but the general tendency is to put byw in the radical or middle (oftener in the radical), and marw in the middle.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Perfect.

Bu efe byw or fyw, he lived.

Bu efe farw, he died.

Future.

Bydd byw or fyw, he will live.

Bydd farw, he will die.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Bydded byw or fyw, let him live.

Bydded farw, let him die.

¹ Yn is sometimes omitted, especially in negative propositions. "Yoseph nid yw fyw," Joseph is not alive.—Gen. xliii. 36.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present.

Byddo byw or fyw, he may live.

Byddo farw, he may die.

Imperfect.

Byddai byw or fyw, he might live.

Byddai farw, he might die.

Pluperfect.

Buasai byw or fyw, he would have lived. Buasai farw, he would have died.

(a) When byw and marw are put in construction with any of the above-mentioned tenses, and are accompanied by "yn participial," they express the progressive form of the verbs.

Bun yn byw, I have been living.

Byddaf yn byw, I shall be living.

Pe byddwn yn byw, if I were living, if I lived.

Pe buaswn yn byw, if I had been living, if I had lived.

Y mae genyf (fi), I have.

331. The tenses of have = possess, are expressed in Welsh by the 3rd person of the verb bod, and a preposition with its case.

[Have = get, obtain, is expressed by cael: § 319.]

332. The prepositions are gan, with, gyda, with, and i, to; so that the sentence (e.g.) "I have a book," may be expressed by

a) Y mae genyf lyfr (N. W.) = there is with me a book.

b) Y mae gyda fi lyfr (S. W.) = there is with me a book.

c) Y mae i mi lyfr (S. W.) = there is to me a book.

(a) With this construction compare the Latin "est mihi," and the Greek ἐστὶ μοι.

(b) When the nom. case is indefinite, the order of the sentence is as above, verb—prep. with its case—nom.; or, but less common, verb—nom.—prep. with its case. If the nom. is definite, the order is verb—nom.—prep.

Indef. Mae—genyf—lyfr, I have a book.

Mae—llyfr—genyf (less common), I have a book.

Definite. Mae—y llyfr—genyf, I have the book.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present. I have a book.

SINGULAR.

1. Mae genyf (fi) lyfr.

2. Mae genyt (ti) lyfr.

3. Mae ganddo (ef) lyfr.

Mae ganddi (hi) lyfr.

PLURAL.

1. Mae genym (ni) lyfr.

2. Mae genych (chwi) lyfr.

3. Mae ganddynt (hwy) lyfr.

Mae ganddynt (hwy) lyfr.

Imperfect. I had a book.

1. Yr oedd genyf (fi) lyfr, &c. The same as Present.

Perfect. I (once) had a book.

1. Bu genyf (ſ) lyfr, &c. The same as Present.

Future. I shall or will have a book.

1. Bydd genyf (ſi) lyfr, &c. The same as Present.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Have thou (or mayest thou have) a book.

2. Bydded genyt (ti) lyfr, &c. The same as Present Indicative.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present. (That) I may have a book

1. Byddo genyf (ſi) lyfr, &c. The same as Present Indicative.

Imperfect. (That) I might have a book; (if) I had a book.

1. Byddai genyf (ſi) lyfr, &c. The same as Present Indicative.

Pluperfect. (That) I would have had a book; (if) I had had a book.

1. Buasai genyf (ſi) lyfr, &c. The same as Present Indicative.

333. The participle, equivalent to "having" = possessing, is expressed by a or ag (or ac), and a preposition with its case.

(a) The order of the words is :

Indefinite. A—chenyf—lyfr : a—llyfr—genyf, having a book.

Definite. A'r—llyfr—genyf, having the book.

Having a book.

SINGULAR.

1. A chenyf (ſi) lyfr.
 2. A chenyf (ti) lyfr.
 3. A chanddo (ef) lyfr.
- A chanddi (hi) lyfr.

PLURAL.

1. A chenyum (ni) lyfr.
 2. A chenydh (chwi) lyfr.

Or : Ag i mi, ag i ti lyfr, ag iddo (ef) lyfr, &c.

A chyda fi lyfr, a chyda thi lyfr, a chydag ef lyfr, &c.

334. Genyf and (in S.W.) gyda fi, accompanied by the verb bod and a predicative adjective, express other notions ; such as to be or feel glad, to be or feel sorry, to hate, to be surprised, to doubt, to be certain, &c.—[“Welsh Exercises,” Ch. 29.]

Mae yn dda genyf (or gyda fi) = it is good with me ; I am glad, I am fond of.

Mae yn llawen genyf, I am delighted.

Mae yn ddrwg genyf, I am sorry.

Mae yn edifar genyf, I am sorry = I regret.

Mae yn arw genyf, I am sorry.

Mae yn gas genyf, I hate.

Mae yn ffaidd genyf, I abhor.

Mae yn rhyfedd genyf, I am surprised.

Mae yn sier genyf, I am certain.

Mae yn ammheus genyf, I doubt.

(a) ~~ŷw~~ The negative of mae in this construction is yw or ydyw. Nid yw yn dda genyf, I am not glad.

334 (1). The prep. ar (on or upon) with its case, accompanied by the verb bod and a noun, expresses (generally) what is not pleasant to have or to bear.

Mae arnaf ofn=there is on me fear; I am afraid.

Mae arnaf eisien, I want.

Mae arnaf hiraeth, I long.

Mae arnaf ddyled, I owe.

Mae arnaf annwyd, I am cold.

Mae arnaf newyn, I am hungry.

Mae arnaf syched, I am thirsty.

Mae arnaf chwant, I am inclined or have a mind.

Mae gorfod arnaf, I am compelled.

Mae y ddannodd arnaf, I have toothache,

Mae y pás (or *deubas*¹) arnaf, I have the whooping-cough.

Mae yr annwyd arnaf, I have a cold.

THE ARTICLE.

335. The Welsh language has no indefinite article, corresponding to a or an of the English.

336. The definite article is *y*² or yr (contracted 'r), corresponding to the, and like it defines a noun, or a word standing for a noun.

337. Y is used before a consonant; yr before a vowel and the letter h; 'r before a vowel or a consonant, if the preceding word ends with a vowel.

Yr aur; yr haul; y galaru; y cyflawn; y tad a'r fam.

(a) The articles y and yr are to be distinguished from the affirmative adverbs y and yr (= it is) and the conjunctions y and yr (= that).

ADVERBS.

338. Adverbs may be divided into simple and compound. By "simple adverbs," we mean such as express the notion of an adverb by one term, without being necessarily simple and elementary in point of etymology; as ynd, yndd, allan,

¹ Deubas (in the Powis dialect) is either for dubas, black cough, or for dyheubas, panting cough.

² Y is probably cognate with the Gr. article ὁ or ἡ.

ymaith, &c. By "compound adverbs" are meant such as express the notion of an adverb by two or more words ; as oddi uchod, o hyn allan.

339. Many of the adverbs are really substantives, or substantive words in a state of construction. Some may be still looked upon as such ; but others, having thrown aside the governing and the concomitant words, and preserving only the mere substantive, are conveniently reckoned as adverbs.

340. The following may be looked upon as substantives in a state of construction. Yn y fun = on the spot ; immediately. Ar wahan = on a separation ; apart. Ym mron = on the slope ; nearly. O hyn allan = from this out ; henceforth.

341. These may be reckoned as adverbs, though strictly substantives under the government of prepositions. Sut (for ym mha sut), how ? Weithian (for ar y waith hon), now. Lle (for ym mha lle), where ?

342. Motion to is often expressed by the prep. i, with another word significant of place. I fyny = to the mountain ; upward. I maes = to the field ; out. I lawr = to the ground ; downward. I mewn = to within ; in. I waered = to the bottom ; down.

343. Motion from is often expressed by oddi and o, from, with another word significant of place. Obry = from the hill ; below. Oddi uchod, from above. Oddi yma = from here ; hence. Oddi acw, from yonder. Oddi isod, from below.

344. Some adverbs are formed by uniting a whole sentence, so as to form one compound word. Sef (namely) is compounded of ys, is, and ef, he or it, and literally signifies it or that is. Malpai (as if it were) is divisible into mal, as, pe, if, bai, were. Ysgatfydd (perhaps) is formed of ys-gadbydd = allow that it will be or occur.

345. Adverbs of quality are formed from adjectives by setting before them the particle yn (hence called ' yn adverbial,') and changing their initial consonant into the middle sound. [Their English equivalents are made by suffixing ly to the adjective.]

Uniawn, upright. Yn uniawn, uprightly. Drwg, bad. Yn ddrwg, badly.
Cyfiawn, just. Yn gyfiawn, justly. Teg, fair. Yn deg, fairly.

(a) These adverbs are capable of the same degrees of comparison as the adjectives, and by the same characteristic forms; as, yn decach, &c., more fairly.

346. Adverbs of number are made by adding gwaith or tro to any numeral adjective. [§§ 179, 180.]

Unwaith, once .	Untro, once .
Dwywaith, twice .	Dendro, twice .
Teirgwaith, three times .	Trithro, three times .

(a) These are really substantives under the government of such prep. as ar or am.

347. Adverbs of order are formed by setting 'yn adverbial,' before ordinal numbers, and the usual terms of succession.

Yn gyntaf, first .	Yn olaf, lastly .
Yn ail, secondly .	Yn ddiweddaf, finally .

CLASSIFICATION OF ADVERBS.

The principal heads into which adverbs are usually divided are the following:—Adverbs of quality. (See above.)
Adverbs of number. (See above.) Adverbs of order. (See above.)

348. Adverbs of place.

Acw (= ékēi), yonder .	I fyny, upward, up .
Adref, home .	I lawr, downward, down .
Gartref, at home .	I waered, downward, down .
Allan, out .	Yn ol, back .
Fry, above .	Ar ol, behind .

354. Adverbs of affirmation.

Yn ddiau, undoubtedly.

Yn wir, truly, indeed.

Yn ddilys, certainly.

O'r goreu, very well.

Purion, very well.

Sef, namely.

Do, yes.

Ië, yes.

Nid amgen, not otherwise.

355. Adverbs of interrogation.

A, simple interrogative. [§ 819.]

Ai, is it? [§ 822.]

Ai ni, nid, or nis, is it not?

Oni, onid, onis, is it not?

Aie (= ai ië), is it so? indeed?

Sut, pa sut, how?

Lle, pa lle, where?

Pam, pa ham, why?

Pa fodd, pa wedd, how?

Pa bryd, pryd, when?

356. Adverbs of comparison.

Cyn (can, gan), as; so; how.

Go, rather, pretty.

Iawn, very.

Lled, rather, pretty.

Mor, as; so; how.

Pur, very.

Tra, very, pretty.

Rhy, too (noting excess).

Po (= quo), by how much; the.

Digon, sufficiently.

Yn hytrach, rather.

Fel, as.

Felly, so.

Mwy, more.

Llai, less.

Mwyaf, most.

Lleiaf, least.

357. Auxiliary affirmative adverbs. [§§ 699–722.]

A; 'Duw a ddywedodd.'

Y; 'Yna y dywedodd.'

Yd; 'Basaf dwfr man yd lefair.'

Ydd; 'Cyflym ydd a rym yr oes.'

Yr; 'Hwyr yr erys Duw cyn taro.'

(a) E, fe, and fo, called by some auxiliary affirmative adverbs, are more properly auxiliary pronouns.

358. In Welsh, as in other languages, many of the adverbs are to be distinguished from conjunctions and prepositions by their use and signification, not by their form; for it happens that the same word is in one place an adverb, and in another a conjunction or a preposition. In the sentence, "Deuaf yna y fory," I will come there to-morrow, yna is an adverb; but in the sentence, "Os felly, yna mi a ddeuaf," if so, then I will come, yna is a conjunction.

359. Conjunctive adverbs.—Such words as cyn, pryd, pan, wedi, tra (whilst), hyd, hyd oni, hyd nes, &c., are by some called adverbs, by others conjunctions, and by others conjunctive adverbs, on the ground that they combine the notion of both an adverb and of a conjunction. In the sentence,

"I will visit you when I return," the word when includes the notion of an adverb, as it refers to a point of time; but it includes also the notion of a conjunction, as it connects the clause "when I return," with the preceding, "I will visit you." But as these particles have an influence over their verbs, and require a particular construction, it is better to disregard their adverbial import, and classify them under conjunctions.

CONJUNCTIONS.

360. "Conjunctions are usually divided into the two principal classes of conjunctives and disjunctives." These again are capable of subdivisions, of which the following are the most important:

a) Copulative.—A, ac, and. Hefyd, also.

β) Disjunctive.—Neu, or.

Naill ai . . . ai, neu, ynte, either . . . or.

Na or nac . . . na or nac, neither . . . nor.

γ) Suppositive (or hypothetical). [§ 839, &c.]—O, od, os (formerly or), if. Pe, ped, pes, pei, if. Oni, onid, onis, if . . . not; except, unless. Oddieithr, oddigerth, except.

δ) Concessive. [§ 789, &c.]—Er, serch, cŷd, although.

ε) Causal. [§ 774, &c.]—O achos, o herwydd, o waith, o blegyd, o ran, am (formerly o ethryb, o blaid), because. Gan (can), since, seeing that, as. Yn gymmaint ag, inasmuch as. Canys, for.

(a) O is sometimes omitted in o achos, o herwydd, &c.

ζ) The conjunctions of motive or purpose.—Mal, fal, fel, megys, modd, in order that. Rhag, in order that . . . not.

η) The conjunctions of effect or result.—Mal, fal, fel, so that.

θ) Explanatory. [§§ 770–772.]—Y, yr, mai, taw, that.

ι) Temporal. [§ 789, &c.]—Pan, pryd, when. Cyn, before. Wedi, gwedi, ar ol, yn ol, after. Tra, whilst. Cyhŷd ag, cŷd, cŷd ag, as long as. Er pan, since. Hyd, nes, tan, oni, onid, onis, &c., hyd nes, until. Cyn gynted ag, gynted ag, er cynted ag, as soon as. Pryd bynag, pa bryd bynag, whenever. Newydd, just when. Gyda (cyda), the moment that.

z) Comparative.—Na, nag (no, nog), than. Mal, fal, fel, megys, ys, as. Ag, as.

(a) Mal, fal, fel, and megys are sometimes followed by ag : mal ag, &c.

λ.) Adversative.—Ond, either, but. Namyn, onid, oddi-eithr, oddigerth, except. Eto, er hyn, er hyny, yet, notwithstanding.

μ) Illative (or inferring).—Yna, then (= in that case). Ynte, then (= therefore). Am hyny, gan hyny, o achos hyny, &c., therefore.

PREPOSITIONS.

361. Prepositions may be divided into the following classes :—

α) Simple prepositions are such as express the notion of a preposition by one term, without being necessarily simple and elementary as to etymology ; as, am, mewn, gerfydd.

β) Compound prepositions are such as express the notion of a preposition by two or more words ; as, ar led, oddi amgylch, tu mewn i.

γ) Pronominal prepositions are such as enter into combination with personal pronouns ; as, genyf, with me, from the prep. gan, with, and the pronoun mi or fi, me.

δ) Inseparable prepositions, or prefixes. are such as enter into combination with nouns, adjectives, &c., to form compound words ; as, af in aflwydd ; gor in gorthwrn ; dy in dygynnull.

SIMPLE PREPOSITIONS.

362. As the government of the prepositions is of great importance in the Welsh language, it will be useful here to arrange them under different heads, that the student may with greater facility acquaint himself with the governing power of each.

363. Prepositions proper.—Some may be denominated “prepositions proper,” or those that seem to have the greatest claim to such a name, in opposition to nouns used prepositionally by an ellipsis of a particle.

364. a) The following govern the radical sound:—

Cyn, before .	Heibio, by, past .
Er, since . ¹	Is, below .
Erys, er's (vulgo es), for . ¹	Mewn, in (indefinite).
Erbyn, against; by .	Myn (= μην), by (in swearing).
Ger (gar), } by, at .	Rhag (= πρὶν), from; for .
Cer (car), }	Serch, notwithstanding .
Gerfydd (cerfyddl), by .	Rhwng, between .
Gwedi, wedi, } after .	Uwch (uch), above .
(Cwedi), }

365. b) The following govern the middle sound:—

Am (= Gr. ἀμφὶ), about, on	I, ³ to, into; for .
account of, of, for .	Tros, dros, over; for .
Ar, on, upon; at .	Trwy, drwy, through .
At, to, close to.	Wrth, close to, by, at; to .
Gan, can, with; by; from .	O, ⁴ out of, from; of .
Heb, without .	Tan, dan, under, until .
Hyd, ² as far as; until .

(a) The prep. oddi, from, usually governs the middle; but sometimes the radical.

(b) Idd, to; odd, and the obsolete oc, from, precede nouns only when they have an article or its equivalent before them; as, idd y tŷ; odd eu tai. They are peculiar to s. w.

366. c) The definite preposition yn, in, governs the nasal sound.

(a) In certain cases yn becomes ym and ymg. [See § 97, 98.]

(b) “Yn participial” governs the radical; “yn adverbial,” and “yn apposition,” govern the middle. Thus the different functions of the word yn are distinguished by its government.

¹ The difference between “er,” since, and “erys,” for, is explained in “Welsh Exercises,” § 335.

² Hyd and ar hyd sometimes govern the radical. “Ar hyd llwybiau uniondeb.”—Ps. xxvii. 11.

³ I governs the pron. ti and its compounds in the radical; as, “peri i ti dewi:” it governs mi and its compounds, and mewn and maes, in the rad. or middle; as, “dywed i mi or i fi.”

⁴ O in some cases governs the rad. or middle; as, o mewn or o fewn; o tan or o dan.

367. d) The following govern the aspirate of class first (c, p, t); and radical of classes second and third (g, b, d; ll, m, rh).

A,¹ with. Ag, before vowels.

Gyda, cyda, with, along with. Gydag, cydag, before vowels.

Tua, towards; about. Tuag, before vowels.

Efo, with.

Tra, beyond.

(a) A circumflex is usually placed over a and ag when prepositions; as, hladd á chleddyf, to kill with a sword.

368. Substantive prepositions.—Some prepositions may be termed “substantive prepositions,” or substantives employed as prepositions.

369. A substantive, when followed by another substantive in the possessive case, governs it in the radical sound; e.g. “planwr gwinllan,” where we see that gwinllan retains its radical sound after planwr.

Accordingly we find that all substantive prepositions govern the radical sound.

Achos (=causâ), on account of.

Cylech, amgylech, about.

Parth, parthed, as to.

Plegyd, because of.

Gwaith,² because of.

Herwydd, because of.

Traws, draws, over.

COMPOUND PREPOSITIONS.

370. Compound prepositions are made up (1) Of two or more simple prepositions; as oddi ar, tuag at am. (2) Of prepositions and substantives (or substantive words); as ar led, tu cefn i.

371. As some of these end with a preposition (oddi ar, hyd at), and some with a substantive (ar led, ger bron), they are hence divisible into two classes.

372. Compounds ending with a preposition.—These govern the same sound as the simple prepositions with which they end. For example, ar governs the middle sound; as, ar fynydd: hence its compound oddi ar governs the same sound; as, oddi ar fynydd.

¹ A and its compounds govern the pron. mi in the rad. or the middle; as, gyda mi, or gyda fi.

O dan, under.

Oddi ar, } from upon, from.

Odd ar, } from upon, from.

Oddi dan or tan, from under, under.

Oddi wrth, from beside, from.

Ar gyfer (i), opposite to; before.

Ar gyferyd i, opposite to; before.

Cyferbyn â (âg), opposite to.

Cyfarwyneb â (âg), opposite to.

Gwydderbyn â (âg), opposite to.

Parth â (âg), towards.

Parth ag at, towards.

Tuag at, towards.

Tuag at am, as to.

Hyd at, as far as.

Hyd ar, as far as.

Hyd yn, as far as.

Yng nghyda (âg), together with.

Yng ngwrthwyneb i, against.

Oddi maes i, } from without.

Oddi allan i, } from without.

Oddi mewn i, from within, within.

Tu blaen i, before.

Tu cefn i, behind.

Tu maes i, } outside.

Tu allan i, } outside.

Tu draw i, } beyond.

Tu hwnt i, } beyond.

Tu isaf i, below.

Tu ol i, } behind.

Tu yn ol i, } behind.

Tu mewn i, within.

Tu uchaf i, above.

Tu yma i, this side.

Tu yna i, that side.

373. Compounds ending with a substantive.—These govern the radical sound, like substantive prepositions.

*Am ben*²=about the head; on, at.

*Ar ben*²=on the head; on, at.

Ar gyfer, opposite to; before.

Ar hyd, along.

Ar led, over.

Ar ol, after, behind.

Ar draws, over.

Ar warthaf, upon.

Er mwyn, for the sake of.

Er gwaethaf, in spite of.

Ger bron, in presence of, before.

Ger gwydd, in presence of, before.

Ger wyneb, in presence of, before.

Ger llaw, at hand, near, by.

Rhag bron, in presence of, before.

Rhag wyneb, in presence of, before.

O flaen, before.

O fewn, within.

Heb law, besides.

Is law=below the hand; below.

O achos=from the cause of; because of.

O blegyd, because of.

O herwydd, because of.

O ethryb, because of.

O waith, because of.

O gylech, o amgylech, about.

Oddi amgylech, from about, about.

O barth, o barthed, as to.

Oddeutu, o beutu, about.

O gwmpas, about.

O ran, as for, because of.

Yn ol, behind; according to.

Yng nghylch=in a circle; about.

Ym mhlith, among.

I blith=to among; among.

Ym mysg, among.

I fysg=to among; among.

Yng ngwydd, in the presence of, before.

Yn ynyl=at the side of; close to.

Yn lle, instead of, for.

Wrth law=by the hand of; beside.

Yn erbyn, against, in opposition to.

I . . erbyn, against (as, "daeth i'm herbyn").

Ym mhen, in (=in . . 's time; as, "ym mhen mis").

² Chwerthin am ben or ar ben, to laugh at.

PRONOMINAL PREPOSITIONS.

374. The prepositions that admit of being combined with the personal pronouns, so as to form a class of words, which Dr. Pughe very properly calls "pronominal prepositions," are the following:—

a) Simple : ar ; at ; dar ; er ; gan or can ; heb ; hyd ; han or hon (proceeding from) ; i ; rhag ; rhwng ; tan or dan ; tros or dros ; trwy or drwy ; wrth ; yn.

b) Compound : am dan ; o dan or tan ; oddi dan or tan ; oddi ar ; oddi wrth ; oddi gan ; oddi am dan ; oddi rhwng ; ar hyd ; o han or hon ; hyd yn ; hyd ar ; hyd at ; parth ag at ; tuag at.

375. When personal pronouns are suffixed to these particles, they suffer their vowels to be changed and inverted, to render the words more harmonious, and to give a greater variety of forms.

376. The following table exhibits the various forms which each personal pronoun assumes.

1. Af, of (or wyf), yf, fr. f .	1. Om, ym, qu. fr. ni .
2. At, ot, yt, fr. ti .	2. Och, ych, fr. chwi .
3. { O, m. fr. o=e .	3. Ynt, fr. hwynt .
{ I, f. fr. hi .

(a) The 2d pers. sing. sometimes ends in d. ataf, am danaf, &c. The letter t in ynt is sometimes cut off in poetry. "Pan fo caledfyd arnyn." —E. Prys.

377. These pronominals are classified under three distinct heads, distinguished by the termination of the first person singular. Ataf has af for its ending ; hebof has of or wyf ; genyf has yf : hence they belong to three different classes.

378. First class : Af.

Sing. 1. Ataf (at-fi), to me.	Pl. 1. Atom (at-ni ?), to us.
2. Atat (at-ti), to thee.	2. Atoch (at-chwi), to you.
3. { Ato (at-o), to him.	3. Atynt (at-hwynt), to them.
{ Ati (at-hi), to her.

The following belong to this class :—

Arnaf (ar-fi), upon me.	Oddi arnaf, from upon me.
Darnaf (dar-fi), upon me.	Oddi am danaf, from about me.
Tanaf or danaf (tan-fi), under me.	Hyd arnaf, even upon me.
Am danaf, about me.	Hyd ataf, up to me.
O danaf, under me.	Parth ag ataf, towards me.
Oddi tanaf, from under me.	Tuag ataf, towards me.

379. Second class : Of (or wyf.)

SINGULAR.

1. Erof or erddof (er-fi), for me.
2. Erot or erddot (er-ti), for thee.
3. { Erddo (er-o), for him.
Erddi (er-hi), for her.

PLURAL.

1. Erom or erddom (er-ni?), for us.
2. Eroch or erddoch (er-chwi), for you.
3. Erddynt (er-hwynt), for them.

The following belong to this class :—

Hebof (heb-fi), without me.

Hanof or honof (han-fi), of me.

Rhagof (rhag-fi), before me.

Rhyngof (rhwyng-fi), between me.

Tros of or dros of (tros-fi), over or for me.

Trwy of or drwy of (trwy-fi), through me.

Hyd of (hyd-fi), over me.

Ynof (yn-fi), in me.

O hanof or o honof, of or from me.

Hyd ynof, even to me.

Oddi rhyngof, from between me.

Ar hyd of, over me.

(a) N and dd (as in arno, erddo, ganddo) are no parts of the original words, but are thrown in for the sake of euphony. [Cf. Gr. μη-δ-εις.] Instead of dd we sometimes find th and t: ganto, ynthynt, rhyngthynt, ganthynt.

(b) Trwy of often omits the y in 1st and 2nd persons, making trwoj, tricot; trwom, trwoch.

Tros of has t in 3rd person—trosto, trostynt; and colloquially in all the other persons—trostof, trostot, &c.

O hanof, o honof, &c., are conjugated without the aid of dd in any person—o hono, o honi, o honom, o honoch, o honynt. O naddynt is sometimes found for o honynt.

380. Third class : Yf.

1. Genyf (gan-fi), with me.
2. Genyt (gan-ti), with thee.
3. { Ganddo (gan-o), with him.
Ganddi (gan-hi), with her.

1. Genym (gan-ni?), with us.
2. Genych (gan-chwi), with you.
3. Ganddynt (gan-hwynt), with them.

The following belong to this class :—

Wrthyf (wrth-fi), to me; by me.

Oddi wrthyf (= from beside me); from me.

Oddi genyf (= from with me); from me.

(a) Wrthyf and odd wrthyf are conjugated without the aid of dd in the 3rd person, making wrtho, wrthi, wrthynt.

381. The preposition i with a personal pronoun is thus written :—

Simple.

1. Imi (im'), to me.
2. Iti (it'), to thee.
3. { Iddo, to him.
Iddi, to her.

1. Ini (in'), to us.
2. Ichwi (ich', iwch), to you.
3. Iddynt, to them.

Emphatic.

1. I mi.
2. I ti.
3. { Iddo ef or fo.

1. I ni.
2. I chwí.
3. Iddynt hwy.

INTERJECTIONS.

382. Many of the particles, denominated interjections, are 'verbs of the Imperative mood, both in their form and abstract meaning, and mostly of the second person.' Aro! stop, is the Imper. of aros, to stop: wela or wele! behold, the Imper. of gwelw, to see or behold: taw! hush, the Imper. of tewi, to be silent.

383. Some are nouns and adjectives out of construction: as, ffurdd! avaunt; huw! alas; syndod! wonder; dyn! dear me; dyn byw! man alive; druan! poor thing; druan bach! poor little thing. Some are adverbs: as, dyma! here is; ducw! yonder; dyna! there; hwnt! avaunt; llyma! lo here; llyna! lo there; ymaith! avaunt, away.

384. A phrase, or a clause with a portion left opt, will frequently constitute an interjection; as, gwyn ei fyd! would to heaven; ysywaeth (= which is worse), the more the pity.

385. Others are mere ejaculations which cannot be derived from any of the more substantial parts of speech.

Bw! boh.	Hai wehw! }	Och! alas.
Dyt! hold.	Wehw! } murder.	Ow! oh.
Ffi or ffei! fie.	Ho! ho.	Pw! }
Ha! hah.	How! alack.	Twt! } pshaw.
Hai! hey.	O! oh.	Wi! hey.

PREFIXES AND AFFIXES.

PREFIXES.

386. Prefixes, or inseparable prepositions, generally¹ add to or alter the meaning of the words to which they are prefixed. Rhedeg, to run; cylch-redeg, to run round.

A (cf. Gr. a intensivum) augmentative or emphatic. [Government:² asp. of c and t: radical and middle of the other letters.] Achas (cas), odious. Athrist (trist), very pensive. Abwyd (bwyd), bait. Agwedd (gwedd), form. Aball (pall), failing. Afach (bach), grapple.

¹ Generally, because some of the prefixes are sometimes redundant in point of signification,—serving merely to strengthen the form and afford a greater variety of synonymous words.

² In explaining the government of the prefixes, considerable assistance has been derived from Rev. D. S. Evans' "Llytbyraeth."

It seems that a, like a privativum of the Greek, is negative in achlod, from a and clôd, praise; and possibly in afarn (barn), bribery, and afrys (brys), slow.

A, a contraction of an. Anghyfiawn = anughyfiawn, unjust.

Ach, enhanceive. [Middle.] Achludd (lludd), obstruction. Achres (rhês), row.

Ad, back, again = re. [Mid.] Adbrynu (prynu), to redeem. Adladd (lladd), aftermath.

Ad in several words implies negation or contrariety. Adfudd (budd), loss. Adffurf (ffurf), formless. Adfirain (mirain), unseenly. Adfarch (march), gelding. Adflas (blas), ill taste. Adwisg (gwisg), disarray.

“Pob gwledd, er y sydd heddyw,
Wedi ei wledd adwledd yw.”

Every feast, notwithstanding what there is to-day,
After his feast is starvation.

Ad takes also the form at: as, attalu (talu); ateb (eb).

Add, enhanceive. [Mid.] Addfain (main), slender. Addfwyn (mwyn), kind.

It seems to be a modification of ad in addnaid (naid), refuge.

In addfed (written also aeddfed), add is probably a corruption of haedd: haeddfed = deserving (or ready) to be reaped; ripe.

Af (probably a mutation of am = an), negative, privative, like Eng. un and in. [Mid.] Afreolaidd (rheolaidd), irregular. Aflwydd (llwydd), misfortune.

Ail, again = re. [Mid.] Ailfeddyddio (bedyddio), to rebaptize. Ailbrynu (prynu), to repurchase.

Al, enhanceive = great, high, or very. [Radical: sometimes mid.] Albrys (brys), great haste. Alcan (cân), tin. Alwen (gwen) = very white; the name of a river.

“It is often a prefix and affix in the names of places; as, Alban, Penal, Alclwyd: and rivers; as, Alwen, Alun, Alaw, Alwy.”¹

All (cf. Gr. αλλος, L. alius), another, other. [Mid. except t, which retains its rad. M also retains its rad. in allman, allmor, allmyr.] Allwladu (gwlad), to banish. Alleiriad (gair), paraphrase.

Am (cf. Gr. ἀμφι, L. am-bo, Ger. um), round, about, like am, peri, circum. [Mid.] Amdori (tori), to amputate. Amdo (to), shroud.

Am is a mutation of an. [Nasal, § 87.] Anmharch (parch), disrespect. Ammraint (braint), dishonour.

Am is a contraction of aml, many. [Mid.] Amliw (lliw), parti-coloured. Amryw (rhyw), sundry.

An (cf. ἀνευ, in, un), negative, privative, corresponding to dis, mis, in, un. [Nasal of c, t, d: nasal and mid. of g: rad. of ll and rh. Words beginning with p and b are preceded by am.] Anghall (call), indiscreet. Annoeth (doeth), unwise. Angraddol (graddol), ungraduated. Anwir

(gwir), untruth. Anllythyrenog (llythyrenog), illiterate. Anrhanadwy (rhanadwy), indivisible.

Ar, upon or over; high, great, very. [Mid. Ll in some words takes either mid. or rad. M, p, and t in a few instances retain their rad.] Argraff (craff), inscription. Arfri (bri), high dignity. Arloesi or arlloesi (lloesi), to clear.

Ar in a few words seems to correspond to "præ." Arfaeth (maeth), predestination. Argoel (coel), omen. Arwydd (gŵydd), sign.

Arch (cf. Gr. ἀρχή), chief, principal. [Mid.] Archdeyrn (teyrn), monarch. Archddiagon (diagon), archdeacon. Archesgob (esgob), archbishop.

As (cf. ex), parting, separating, like ex: emphatic. [The prefixes as, es, ys, cys, dis, dys, dos, gos, and hys, govern the rad. of m: mid. of ll and rh. Their influence over the other mutable consonants has been explained under §§ 93-95.] Asgon (con), humble. Asgwrn (cwrn or corn), bone.

At is a mutation of ad, q.v. [Middle, except t, which retains its rad. D in many instances becomes t after at.] Atborion (pawr), leavings. Attwf (twf), second growth. Attal (dal), to stop.

At in a few words implies to. Attodiad (dodiad), appendix.

Cam, mis. [Mid.] Camddeall (deall), to misunderstand. Camgymmeryd (cymmeryd), to mistake.

Cy, cyd, cyf, cym, cyn, cys (cf. Gr. σύν, L. con), conjunctive, mutual, like co, col, com, con, cor. [Cyd and cyf govern the mid. Cy occurs before ng, ngh, f, l, th. Cym is found before m, mh, and in a few words before the mid. of t and g. Cyn, before n, nh. Cys = as, q.v. See §§ 89-92.] Cydredeg (rhedeg), to run together. Cyfwerth (gwerth), of equal value. Cynghor (côr), council. Cymmrawd (brawd), fellow. Cymdaith (taith), companion. Cynnal (dâl), to uphold. Cystal (tâl), of equal value.

Cyd is generally changed into cyt before t. Cyttras (trâs), consanguinity.

Cyn is also cognate and synonymous with cynt. [Mid. and nasal of d and t; rad. or mid. of rh; rad. of c and ll; mid. of the remaining mutable consonants.] Cyndad (tâd), first parent. Cynnelw (delw), pattern. Cynrhan or cynran (rhan), primary part. Cyncad (cad), front of battle. Cynllun (llun), model. Cynfab (mab), firstborn son.

Cynt, first. [Mid.] Cyntair (gair), omen. Cyntanedig (ganedig), firstborn.

Cyt, a mutation of cyd, is employed before t, whether a radical or a hardening of d. Cytir (tir), joint land. Cytal (dal), to dwell together.

Dad (dy-ad), repetition, like re; the undoing of an act, like un and dis. [Mid.] Dadroddi (rhoddi), to restore. Dadwisgo (gwisgo), to undress.

Dad is sometimes changed into dat, q.v.

Dam (dy-am) = am, q.v. [Mid.] Damredeg (rhedeg), to run about. Damdrychu (trychu), to amputate.

Dar (dy-ar) = ar, q.v. Darbwylo (pwylo), to persuade. Darllen (lleain), to read.

AFFIXES.

387. Noun Terminations.

Derivative nouns are formed from other simpler nouns, from adjectives, or from verbs, by the addition of a termination.

From NOUNS; as, telynor, from telyn; cyfeillach, from cyfaill.

From ADJECTIVES; as, callineb, from call; gwyllder, from gŵyl.

From VERBS; as, gwybodaeth, from gwybod; darllenydd, from darllen.

388. Abstract.—The following are generally terminations of abstract nouns, denoting the state, quality, or property of the words to which they are suffixed. [English equivalents: ance, ence, head, hood, ness, tude, ty, &c.]

Deb: purdeb, purity; uniondeb, uprightness.

Der, ter: gwylder, modesty; digter, anger.

(a) Dab and dwr are sometimes used for deb and der; as, dyndab, sychdwr, cryfdwr.

Did, dyd, tid, tyd (cf. L. tut in, e.g., servitutis): gwendid, weakness.

(a) Tid and tyd occur after the letter c; ieuenctid, angenctyd.

Dod, dawd (cf. L. tat in, e.g., civitatis): Duwdod, Godhead.

(a) Dod in simple historical prose; dawd in poetry and nervous prose. This remark applies equally to od and awd; og and arg.

Dra, tra: eondra, boldness; cyfleustra, opportunity.

Edd: mawredd, greatness; puredd, purity.

I: brynti, filthiness; caledi, hardship.

Iant, ant, aint: llwyddiant, success; maddeuant, pardon; digofaint, anger.

Id, yd (cf. L. it in, e.g., amicitia): rhyddid, freedom; mebyd, infancy.

Ineb: doethineb, wisdom; gwylltineb, rage.

Wch, wg: tawelwch, quietness; tywyllwg, darkness.

Ydd: llawenydd, joy; dywenydd, pleasure.

389. Agent.—The following denote persons, agents, instruments, &c. [English equivalents: ar, er, yer, ess, &c.]

Wr, iwr (rad. gwr, man), fem. wraig. Carwr, lover. Heliwr, hunter. Golchwraig, washer-woman.

(a) Iwr is used, if the Infinitive ends in io or ied, or when verbs borrow i in their finite tenses. Gweithiwr (infin. vb. gweithio). Ystyriwr (infin. vb. ystyried). Heliwr (fin. vb. heliof, &c.)

Ur, adur (person or thing), fem. ures, uries, adures. Ffoadur, fugitive. Gwniadur, thimble. Golchuries, washer-woman. Pechadures, female sinner.

(a) Some modern critics wish to confine ur and adur to persons, and yr and adyr to things and instruments.

Ydd (person or thing), fem. yddes. Darllenydd, reader. Berwedydd, boiler. Gwasanaethyddes, maid-servant.

Or, awr (person), fem. ores. Cantor or cantawr, singer. Cantores, female-singer.

Awdur, awdwr (person), fem. odres. Llywiadur or llywiawdwr, governor. Amherawdwr, emperor. Amherodres, empress. [Cf. L. ator, atrix; imperator, imperatrix.]

Awdr, odr (person or thing), fem. odres. Amherawdr, emperor. Pwysawdr or pwysodr, rammer.

Yr, adyr (thing, instrument), occur but rarely except in modern words. Canwyllr, chandelier. Cysgiadyr, opiate.

On (person or thing). Gwyddon, philosopher. Byson, ring.

Es (cf. L. ix, Eng. ess), fem. termination added to animate objects. Dynes, woman. Llewes, lioness.

Ai (person or thing). Gwestai, guest. Awyrbwysai, barometer.

Ad, iad (person, or verbal noun=ing, see § 122). Ceidwad, keeper. Offeiriad, priest. Cadwad, keeping. Lladdiad, killing.

An (person or thing). Mudan, dumb one. Cryman, sickle.

In (person = yn; or thing). Dewin, wizard. Brenin, king. Cribin, rake. Melin, mill. Megin, bellows.

Arn (instrument) is probably a contraction of harn or haiarn, iron. Coesarn, defence for the leg. Canwyllarn, candlestick. Llwyarn, spoon.

El (thing, instrument). Pwyntel, pencil. Cantel, rim.

Ell (instrument). Ysgraffell, scraper. Bwyell, axe. Picell, spear.

Ol (instrument). Trosol, lever. Craffol, writing-pen.

390. The Diminutive terminations are the following: an, mas. or fem.; yn, mas., en, fem.; ig, og, and ell, fem. [With ell, cf. L. ella in puella; Eng. el in satchel.]

Llyfran, m., little book. Bwyellan, f., small hatchet. [See § 145.]

Bachgenyn, little boy. Pelen, little ball.

Ynysig, islet. Pwtog, short little woman. Iyrchell, young roe.

391. Promiscuous.—The following affixes are too promiscuous to be classified under distinct heads.

Ach (reproach; union, collection, &c.) Corach, dwarf. Cyfeillach, society. So also blythach, buach, celach, berbach: cyfrinach, cyffeddach, yshleddach, afallach, nodach, sitrach.

Ad and hâd, sometimes äd and häd (abstract, and sometimes verbal noun). Cyhiawnhâd, justification. Cwblhâd, finishing.

Awd or od, denotes (a) an act, verbal noun=äd, iäd. Darllenawd, reading. Gyrawd, driving. (b) A thing done (cf. L. atum); and when suffixed to an instrument, it denotes a blow given with that instrument. Ffonod, a blow given with a stick. So gwialenod, clddyfod, arfod, gorddod.

(a) Compare the Portuguese suffix ada. "The Portuguese is characterised by possessing a distinct set of words to denote a thrust or cut with a sword or other weapon: an idea which, in most languages, cannot be expressed without circumlocution: thus, cutiláda, a cut with a sword; estocáda, a stab with a sword or dagger; pancáda, a blow with a stick or club; pedráda, a blow with a stone."—"Bible of Every Land," p. 272.

Aeg (language). Cymraeg, Welsh language. Ffrancaeg, French language.

Eg (language; science or art). Cernyweg, Cornish language. Rhesymeg, logic. Rheitheg, rhetoric.

Aeth, iaeth (state or quality, abstract noun; science, art, system, &c.) Cadwedigaeth, salvation. Llysieuath, botany. Ieithyddiaeth, philology.

Anaeth, aniaeth=aeth, iaeth. Gwasanaeth, service. Gwlybanaeth, wetness. Gofaniaeth, smith's craft. Cryddanaeth, shoemaker's trade.

Aid (=ful in handful). Basgedaid, basketful. Dyrnaid, handful. [§ 145.]

Ain=en. Celain, carcase. Putain, harlot. Bathain, medal.

As (union, conjunction, &c.) Teyrnas, kingdom. Priodas, marriage. Perthynas, relation. Galanas, massacre. Cymdeithas, society.

Au=eu (see § 102).

Cyn, mas., cen, fem. (=yn, en), occur only in a few words. Ffwlcyn, silly fellow. Ffolcen, silly woman.

Eb (cf. Gr. ἔπος), expression or utterance. Galareb, elegy. Deiseb, petition.

Ed (what is done or suffered; cf. L. atum). Adduned, vow. Tynged, fate. Colled, loss. Niwed, harm. Caethiwed, captivity.

En (fem. : yn, mas., q.v.) is added to pl. nouns to form the singular; and also to sing. nouns and adjectives. Mesen (pl. mes), acorn. Derwen (pl. derw), an oak. Hogen, girl. Llomen, naked female.

Es = as. Llynges, fleet. Llawes, sleeve. Buches, milking fold.

Eu (see § 102). Angeu, death. Geleu, leech. Ceneu, cub.

Fa (place, radical ma). Camfa, stile. Cigfa, shamble. Porfa, pasture.

(a) Fa is also used metaphorically. Cynulleidfau signifies, literally, a place of assembly; but metaphorically, those who assemble, congregation. So also ysfa, llosgfa, cnofa, &c.

Fan (rad. man, place). Trigfan, dwelling-place.

Hâd=âd, q.v.

Iaeth=aeth, q.v.

Iar occurs only in a few obsolete words. Rhodiar, ranger. Toniar, ware. Baniar, banner. Ufeliar, sulphur.

Ing occurs only in a few words. Gwyning, sap of timber. Rhudding, heart of timber. Gweiling, brass.

L is sometimes suffixed to words without conveying any particular meaning. Awdl (= Gr. ᾠδή), ode. Banadl, broom. So also, byddagl, chwilbanogl, tymmestl, chwynogl.

Le (rad. lle, place). Gauafle, winter quarters.

Od = awd, q.v.

Og or awg (one in possession of, having, full of, &c.) Swyddog, officer. Marchog, knight. Ysgyfarnog, hare.

Oni, oneg, oniaeth (science or art). Barddoni, bardic science. Ser-oneg, astronomy. Barddoniaeth, poetry.

Red occurs but very seldom. Gweithred, act. Breithred, conflict.

Ryn, mas. : ren, fem. (= yn, en), occur only in a few words. Llipyryn, fribble. Llipyren, fribble.

W has no peculiar meaning. Tarw, bull. Twrw, noise. Agerw, vapour.

(a) Dr. Pughe says, "The w has a very peculiar quality, as a termination of primitive nouns, of giving a negative or contrary meaning to them. Thus hel, a gathering, with w affixed, implies what is past gathering, or a possession : ul implies what is humid, and with the affix w it implies what is divested of humidity, that is, cinders or ashes ; and thus in all other instances."¹ This, however, should be received with caution, as the etymology and the explanations assigned to almost all the words, adduced to illustrate this signification, are dubious and unsatisfactory.

Wy occurs but seldom. Cynnorthwy, help. Brythwy, tumult. Macwy, youth. Canwy, perversion. Canwy, splendour.

Yf occurs but seldom. Peryf, causer. Gwryf, virgin ; bachelor. Cleddyf, sword.

Yll (mas., perhaps connected with ell). Brithyll, trout. Curyll, sparrow-hawk. Cerfyll, statue. [Camyll = κάμηλος ; ffrewyll = φραγέλλιον.]

Yn (mas. : en, fem., q.v.) is added to pl. nouns to form the singular ; and also to singular nouns and adjectives. Plentyn (pl. plant), child. Aderyn (pl. adar), bird. Cardodyn, beggar. Coegyn, conceited fellow.

392. Adjective Terminations.

Adwy (that may be, capable of = able, ible). Credadwy, credible. Gwerthadwy, saleable.

Aid (made of, covered with = en or n). Euraid, golden. Arianaid, silvred over.

Aidd (cf. Gr. εἶδος : like, resembling = ish, ly, like). Plentynaid, childish. When suffixed to adjectives, it signifies partly, somewhat = ish, some. Pruddaid, somewhat sorrowful.

Ain (full of, possessing = ous, ful, y). Prydain, beautiful. Madiain, bounteous.

Awr or or (full of). Geiriawr, full of words.

Awg or og (cf. L. ox or or in ferox, ferocis : abounding with, full of, possessing). Brwynog, abounding with rushes. Bywiog, vigorous. Arfog, armed.

Awl or ol (cf. L. and Eng. al : relating to ; of the nature of ; having = al). Dynol, human. Gwrol, manly. Synwryol, rational.

(a) Awg and awl are used mostly in poetry : og and ol in prose,—like the verbal terminations aw, iaw, and o, io. [See § 231 (a).]

(b) Some writers, in order to avoid an hiatus, prefer awg and awl, even in prose, when o occurs in the preceding syllable ; and og and ol, in poetry, when the preceding syllable ends in a. Crynhawl, not crynhöol. Athrofaol, not athrofäawl.

De (full of, pervaded with). Creudde, mingled with gore. Gracandde, gravelly. Haiarndde, impregnated with iron.

Ed (cf. Eng. d, th) and fed are the endings of the ordinal numbers = th. Chweched, sixth. Seithfed, seventh.

Edig (probably compounded of the verbal past passive ending wyd or ed, and the adjectival ig), strictly denotes the past passive participle ; but the words, of which it forms a part, are generally used as adjectives = ed, en, t. Dysgedig, learned. Colledig, lost. Caredig, beloved.

Edd, fem. of ydd, q.v. Trydedd, third. Pedwaredd, fourth.

Fawr (rad. mawr, great). Clodfawr, much praised. Gwerthfawr, precious.

Fed = ed.

Gar (rad. câr : fond of, addicted to, having, or endued with). Gwingar, fond of wine. Rhyfelgar, apt to war, warlike.

Ig (cf. L. and Eng. ic in angelicus, angelic : relating to ; relating to a nation. &c. = ish ; full of ; having). Gwledig, rural. Gwyddelig, Irish. Iuddewig, Jewish. Gwenwynig, poisonous. Bonheddig = having a stem ; noble.

In (cf. Eng. en : consisting or made of). Priddin, earthen. Meinin, stony.

Llawn, lawn (full of). Digllawn, wrathful. Ffyddlawn, faithful.

(a) Llawn and lawn are frequently written llon and lon ; as, digllon, ffyddlon ; but as llon signifies cheerful, the forms digllawn and ffyddlawn are to be preferred.

Llyd, lyd, formerly fem. lled, led (cf. L. lent in violentus, &c. : full of, especially of some disagreeable or unpleasant substance). Gwenwynllyd, poisonous. Gwaedlyd, bloody. Tarthlyd, foggy. Creuled, fem. of creulyd, bloody.

(a) Llyd is generally used after ng, m, n, and r ; lyd generally after b, ch, d, dd, f, g, p, s, t, th, and the vowels.¹

Og = awg, q.v.

Ol = awl, q.v.

Us (cf. L. os, and Eng. ous, in vinosus, dangerous : full of). Ofnus, fearful. Rhyfygus, presumptuous.

Ydd, fem. edd (cf. Eng. d, th), the termination of the ordinals trydydd, third, and pedwerydd, fourth.

393. Two adjectival terminations are sometimes joined together, the latter modifying the signification of the preceding. In many instances, however, the latter is redundant and unnecessary.

Og aidd ; as, taiogaidd.

Lawn us ; as, boddlonus.

Aidd ol ; as, sancteiddiol.

Edig ol ; as, caredigol.

Us ol ; as, iachusol.

Us aidd ; as, trefnusaidd.

In ol ; as, gerwinol.

Fawr us ; as, clodforus.

Terminations of Infinitive Verbs have been arranged and exemplified under §§ 229-239 ; and of Finite Verbs under §§ 290, 297.

PART III.

SYNTAX.

THE ARTICLE.

394. The Welsh article has the forms y, yr, and 'r. The difference between y and yr is somewhat similar to that which exists between a and an in English; that is, y precedes a consonant; as, y dyn, the man; yr, a vowel and the aspirate h; as, yr awen, the muse; yr haf, the summer.

395. When a word ending in a vowel precedes the article, the contracted form 'r is frequently used, whether the following word begins with a vowel or a consonant; as,

Yn awr yw'r amser, now is the time.

Y gauaf a'r haf, the winter and the summer.

Y gwir a'r gau, the true and the false.

(a) This contraction is made for the sake of euphony and neatness, the phrase "y gwir a'r gau" being more euphonic and compact than "y gwir ac y gau." But some writers, unwilling to indulge in too many contractions, use this form of the article only when it is preceded by the words a, i, o, na, no, mo, guda, and yng nghyda: as, y tad a'r fam, the father and the mother; lladd a'r cleddyf, to kill with the sword; myned i'r dref, to go to the town; dyfod o'r wlad, to come from the country; gyda'r gwr, with the man.

396. The letter w, standing at the beginning of a word, is a consonant when it is pronounced conjointly with the vowel following. Hence this w is preceded by the form y; as,

Y waedd, the cry.

Y wich, the squeak.

Y weledigaeth, the vision.

Y wynfydedig forwyn, the blessed virgin.

(a) Such words as gwlaw, gwlan, gwledd, gwllth, gwllgdd, gwraich, gwraig, gwrŷf, gwrŷg, are monosyllabic words: hence such of them as are feminine are, as above, preceded by the form y; as,

Y wledd, the feast.

Y wrâch, the hag.

Y wraig, the woman.

(b) It makes no difference with regard to the properties of w whether the word begins in its radical state with gw; as, y wobr (rad. gwobr), the reward; or simply with w; as, yr wythnos, the week.

397. But when w is sounded by itself (i.e. has the same sound as the Eng. oo in good, boon), it is a vowel, and is therefore preceded by the form yr; as,

Yr wden, the withe.
Yr ŵyn, the lambs.

Yr wrthddadl, the objection.
Yr ŵyl, the feast.

398. In some monosyllabic words, the letter i, when followed by a vowel, is in s. w. considered as a consonant or a vowel; and hence is preceded either by y or yr.

Y iaith or yr iaith, the language.

Y iawn or yr iawn, the atonement.

Y iwrch or yr iwrch, the roebuck.

Y iar or yr iar, the hen.

“Yr wyf yn tybied fod y iaith yn rhwydd a deallgar.”—Theo. Evans.

399. The article governs a feminine noun singular in the middle sound: it governs a feminine noun plural, and a masculine noun, sing. and plural, in the radical.

Fem. sing. Y frenhines (rad. brenhines), the queen.

Fem. pl. Y brenhinesau, the queens.

Mas. Y brenin, the king. Y brenhinoedd, the kings.

400. The article affects an adjective or an adverb in the same way as it affects a noun: i.e. the adjective or the adverb is put in the radical or middle according to the gender and number of the noun following.

Y deilwng rian (rad. teilwng), the worthy lady.

Y dra theilwng rian (rad. tra), the very worthy lady.

Y teilwng rianod, the worthy ladies.

Y goruchaf Dduw, the supreme God.

401. Exceptions.—a) The cardinal numbers, even when followed by singular substantives of the feminine gender, retain the radical after the article; as, y pum torth, the five loaves; dammeg y deng morwyn, the parable of the ten virgins. But dau, two, mas., and deu, two, fem., are softened after the article; as, y ddau lyfr, the two books; y ddwy gareg, the two stones.

b) Ll and Rh.—A fem. noun sing. having Ll or Rh for its initial, retains the radical sound after the article; as, y llong, the ship; y rhwyf, the oar.

“Y llinos wâr ar frig y llwyn.”—D. S. Evans.

But a fem. adjective sing. is softened, as above: y lidiog eneth (rad. lidiog), the angry girl; y rhywiog eneth (rad. rhywiog), the kind girl.

c) The names of rivers, although feminine, retain the radical sound after the article. Y Tafwys (not Dafwys), the Thames.

d) Bala (the name of a town), although of the feminine gender, retains its radical sound after the article. Y Bala.

402. Observation.—It has been observed, under “Etymology,” that the omission of the letter g is the sign of its middle sound. Now, if it happens that the initial letter of a word, after the omission of g, is a vowel, that word must be preceded by the form yr; as, yr eneth (rad. geneth), the girl; yr afr (rad. gafr), the goat; yr wrthddadl (rad. gwrthddadl), the objection.

But if the initial letter, after the omission of g, is a consonant, the word should be preceded by the form y; as, y lân (rad. glân), the bank; y landeg ferch (rad. glandeg), the comely girl; y wefus (rad. gwefus), the tip.

403. The article (as in English) must always precede the noun, or the noun and its concomitants, which it defines; as,

Y dyn, the man. Yr hen ddyn, the old man.
Y tra thrugarog Dduw, the very merciful God.

404. When two or more definite nouns come together, one depending on, or governed by the other, the last noun only will admit of the article, or its equivalent; as,

Mab y brenin=son of the king; the son of the king.
Gwâs mab y brenin, the servant of the son of the king.
Tŷ fy nhad=house of my father; the house of my father.
Cronglwyd tŷ fy nhad, the roof of the house of my father.

(a) Compare Irish. “Tighearna an domhain”= Lord of the world; the Lord of the world.—Bourke’s Irish Grammar, § 217.

(b) A ‘definite noun’ is a noun preceded by an article, either really or virtually.

405. When the former of two nouns is definite, and the latter indefinite, no article is used; as,

Mab brenin=son of a king; the son of a king.
Brenin gogoniant, the king of glory.

(a) When a demonstrative pronoun belongs to the former of two substantives, the article is sometimes placed before the first, the demonstrative pron. coming after the second substantive; as, y brenin gogoniant hwn=the king of glory this; this king of glory. This construction, however, is somewhat offensive to the Welshman’s ear, and should, if possible, be avoided.

406. When neither of two nouns is definite, the construction is the same as the above, or the preposition i (to) will precede the latter; as,

Mab brenin, a son of a king. Mab i frenin, a son to a king.

407. When the former of two nouns is indefinite, and the latter definite, the article and the preposition i will precede the latter; as,

Mab i’r brenin, a son to the king.

408. When two nouns come together, the latter in the genitive case, and equivalent to an adjective, the former will admit of an article before it. And in this case the genitive is treated like an adjective; that is, it is put in the rad. or mid. sound, according to the gender and number of the noun on which it depends.

- (m.) { Y pen teulu, the householder.
 { Y llyfr gweddi, the prayer-book.
- (f.) { Y ddinas wagedd (rad. gwagedd), the city of vanity.
 { Yr awr weddi (rad. gweddi), the hour of prayer.
 { Pelydron clauer y seren ddydd, the bright rays of the day star.

409. When two nouns are connected by the preposition o, the article may precede both ; as,

Y rhan fwyaf o'r arian, the greatest part of the money.

410. When two or more nouns come together, referring to the same person or thing, the article should be placed before the first only ; as,

Y pwnc neu fatter, the subject or matter.

Yr ysgrifenydd a thrysorydd, the secretary and treasurer.

411. But when two or more nouns come together, and refer to different persons or things, the article, or its equivalent, should be repeated before each ; as,

Y brenin neu'r frenhines=the king or the queen.

Yr ysgrifenydd a'r trysorydd=the secretary and the treasurer.

Y gwr, y wraig, a'r plant=the husband, the wife, and the children.

Yn dy ffydd, dy ofn, a'th gariad=in thy faith, thy fear, and thy love.

412. Similarly, when adjectives precede a definite noun, it is far more elegant and expressive to repeat the article, or its equivalent, before each of them ; as,

Y caredig, yr hynaws, a'r ffyddlawn gyfaill=the kind, the good-natured, and the faithful friend.

Fy ngharedig, fy hynaws, a'm ffyddlawn gyfaill=my kind, my good-natured, and my faithful friend.

413. An adjective, preceded by an article, is in Welsh, as in English, equivalent to a noun ; as,

Y cyfiawn a ragora ar ei gymmydog, the just excels his neighbour.

414. The article, standing immediately before hwn, neb, sawl, &c., serves to form relative pronouns ; as, yr hwn=the this ; who : y neb=the one, whoever.

415. When a noun is accompanied by a demonstrative pronoun, an article, or its equivalent, will always be placed before the noun,—the demonstrative occupying the last place ; as,

Y dyn hwn=the man this, } this man.
 Y dyn yma=the man here, }

Fy mab hwn=my son this ; this my son.

(a) In Greek the article is sometimes employed in the same manner; as,

Ἀπαρέστη ἐκ τῶν χωρέων τούτων=dychwelodd o'r cyrau hyn.
 ἡ γενέα αὐτῆς=y genhedlaeth hon. Ὁ ἀνὴρ οὗτος=y gwr hwn.

416. Article before proper names.—Names of persons have no article before them, except (a) When they require to be particularly referred to, in which case they are usually accompanied by an adjective; as, Yr Haman ddichellgar, the crafty Haman; y Moses hwn, this Moses. (b) When they are made plural; as, Y Gwyniaid o Lan-Brân, the Gwynnes of Glan-Brân.

(a) The name "Jesus" is, however, usually written yr Iesu=ὁ Ἰησοῦς, the Jesus.

417. Names of rivers have, as in English, the article generally placed before them; as,

Yr Iorddonen, the Jordan. Y Tafwys, the Thames. Y Dyfrdwy, the Dee. [See § 401, c.]

418. Some names of places (countries, towns, &c.) are preceded by the article; as,

Yr Amerig, America.

Yr Affrig, Africa.

Yr India, India.

Yr Aipht, Egypt.

Yr Eidal, Italy.

Yr Ysbaen, Spain.

Yr Almaen, Germany.

Yr Alban, Scotland.

Yr Iwerddon, Ireland.

Yr Amwythig, Shrewsbury.

Y Bala, Bala.

Y Wyddgrug, Mold.

Yr Abermaw, Barmouth.

Y Rhyl, Rhyl.

(a) So in Irish. An Spain=the Spain. An Frainc=the France. An Albain=the Scotland.—Bourke's Gr., § 214.

N O U N S.

419. Apposition.—When two nouns come together, relating to the same person or thing, the latter is said to be in apposition to the former.

420. The noun that is set in apposition retains the radical sound of its initial letter; as,

Paul, gwas Iesu Grist, Paul, the servant of Jesus Christ.

Môn, mam Cymru, Mon, the mother of Wales.

421. The rule is the same when the sentence contains a series of appositions; i.e. the apposition word retains the radical.

Mae genym gyfeillion ffyddlawn, brodyr caredig, merched da, a llyfrau defnyddiol.

(a) If an article, a possessive pronoun, or an adjective intervenes, the apposition word will, of course, be governed by it. Buddug y frenhines. Arthur fy nhad. Môn, hen fam Cymru.

422. But when a common noun, immediately following a proper noun, has acquired the character of an epithet or title, its initial letter should be changed into the middle sound, whether the noun to which it is added be masculine or feminine; as, Dafydd frenin, King David. Idris Gawr, Idris the giant.

Ioan Fedyddiwr, John the Baptist. Mair Forwyn, Mary the virgin.

423. Observation.—In the phrase, “Paul, gwâs Iesu Grist,” gwâs is distinct from the word Paul, and is separated from it by a comma; in the phrase “Dafydd frenin,” the two words coalesce into one notion, and cannot be separated by the intervention of a comma. In other words, gwâs is placed appositively; frenin is placed attributively.

424. This epithet, or common noun (e.g. Dafydd frenin), is virtually definite; and hence, if it be made to precede the proper noun, an article must go before it: as,

Y brenin Dafydd=the king David. Y prydydd Rhys.
Y forwyn Fair. Y frenhines Fuddug. Y cawr Idris.

(a) If the proper noun be feminine, it is sometimes, but not necessarily, softened. Y forwyn Fair (rad. Mair).

425. The common noun may also be preceded by an article, even when it follows the proper noun; as, Dafydd y brenin.

Thus ‘King David’ may be expressed in three different ways. ‘Dafydd frenin;’ ‘y brenin Dafydd;’ ‘Dafydd y brenin.’

426. ‘Yn apposition.’—The particle yn is employed chiefly to set the predicate of a clause in apposition to the subject, or the latter of two accusatives in apposition to the former; as,

Dafydd sydd yn frenin, David is king.

A Duw a alwodd y goleuni yn ddydd, and God called the light day.

* * The use of yn will be more copiously discussed under “Apposition Verbs” and “Participles.”

427. Mal, ful, fel, and megys are strictly modal, corresponding to the English ‘as.’

Efe, megys brenin, a barodd i’w holl ddeiliaid barchu y ddelw, he, as a king, ordered all his subjects to respect the image.

428. Appositions, equivalent to such as are introduced by “being,” are expressed in Welsh by a cause clause; or a relative; or absolutely, thus: a or ac, pers. pronoun, "yn apposition," apposition-word.

"Arthur, being a good poet."

Arthur, gan ei fod yn brydydd da. (Cause.)

Arthur, yr hwn sydd yn brydydd da. (Relative.)

Arthur, ac yntau yn brydydd da. (Absolute.)

Pa ham y mae efe ac ereill, a hwythau yn Iuddewon, yn credu?
Pwy, ac efe yn ddiniwed, a gollwyd? Job iv. 7.

429. Two nouns are set in apposition by means of the prep. o (of), when the one describes the character, occupation, &c., of the other, and when one of them may be converted into an adjective, or, in fact, frequently omitted.

Gwr o brophwyd = gwr prophwydol = prophwyd, a prophet.

Llancesau o wryfon = llancesau gwryfol = gwryfon, virgins.

Benyw o olchyddes, or golchyddes o fenyw = golchyddes, a washer-woman.

(a) A similar idiom occurs in English. "Such expressions as a rogue of a lawyer, a rascal of an attorney, &c., are equivalent to a roguish lawyer, a rascally attorney."¹

So also in Greek. Σὺς μέγα χρήμα. Τοῦ χειμῶνος χρήμα ἀφόρητον.

430. Appositions are sometimes made by placing gan before the apposition-word, if a noun; genyf, &c., if a pronoun; as,

Y milwr gan Arthur.

Y sant gan Bedr.

Y lleidr genyt ti.

Y diogyn ganddo ef.

Dôs i ffwrdd, y lleidr genyt ti, go away, you thief.

431. Nominative case.—The most natural position of the nominative case, whether emphatic or unemphatic, is after the verb, which, owing to its being the 'principal word,' stands at the beginning of the sentence; as,

A dygodd y ddaiar egin, and the earth brought forth grass.

A bendithiodd Duw hwynt, and God blessed them.

432. But when the nominative is antithetic, and frequently even in simple narration, it is made to precede the verb, in accordance with its position in the English language.

Arthur sydd yn myned yno, Arthur (=it is Arthur that) is going there.

A'r Arglwydd Dduw a luniasai y dyn, and the Lord God had formed the man.

² Probably gan here signifies 'with.' If so, Y milwr gan Arthur will be translated by 'the soldier with Arthur;' that is, dwelling with or in the person of Arthur.

433. When the nominative occupies the first place in the clause, or immediately follows its verb, it retains the radical form; but when it follows the verb, and is separated from it by an adverb, or a phrase, its initial letter is changed into the middle sound; as,

{ Dynion dewr a ddaethant yno,
 { Daeth dynion dewr yno,
 Daeth yno ddynion dewr, } brave men came there.

* * The syntax of the nominative case will be enlarged upon under the "Verbs."

434. Genitive case.—When two nouns of different relation come together, one of them is said to be in the genitive case.

435. In Welsh, the noun in the genitive relation is placed after the one on which it depends.

Mab brenin = the son of a king; a king's son.

Mab brenin Lloegr = the son of the King of England; the King of England's son.

(a) But in compounds the one that is in the genitive relation is put first, and governs the other in the middle sound. Brenhindy = ty brenin, a king's house. [See § 77.]

436. The genitive relation is expressed, (a) by mere apposition, i.e. by simply putting the genitive in apposition to the other noun without any sign indicative of a case; (b) by the preposition "o," of; (c) by other prepositions, such as ar, on, at, to, am, for, dros, for, *rha*g, because of, for.

437. The genitive expressed by mere apposition retains the radical sound of its initial consonant; as.

Coron brenin, a king's crown. Olwynion cerbyd, the wheels of a carriage. Heol Babilon, the street of Babylon.

(a) But if any other word intervene between the two nouns, the genitive will, of course, be governed by it.

Ty y frenhines, the queen's house. Ty fy nhad, my father's house.

(b) After teyrnas, kingdom, templ, temple, ty, house, eglwys, church, &c., the word Duw, God, generally takes the middle sound. (Eglwys Dduw; ty Dduw.) So also do the words Dewi and Dafydd. (Esgob Ty Dewi.) But if an adjective belongs to the former substantive, and follows it, the genitive will retain its radical. Eglwys sanctaidd Duw, God's holy Church.

438. The genitive is expressed by mere apposition when possession, property, or relation is denoted; such as the relation of the possessor to the thing possessed; the relation of an agent to an action or effect; the mutual relation of persons; the relation of a whole to its several parts.

Ty brenin, a king's house. Llyfr Dafydd, David's book. Mantell Angharad, Angharad's mantle. Gwaith Duw, God's work. Nyth aderyn, a bird's nest. Teml Solomon, Solomon's temple. Iaith plentyn, a child's language. Lleferydd dyn, a man's voice. Cwmp Adda, Adam's fall. Disgrifiad y bobl, the people's description. Tystiolaeth cariad, love's testimony. Ystyr y gair, the meaning of the word. Rhagoroldeb iaith y Cymry, the excellency of the language of the Welsh. Buchedd ein Prynwyr, the life of our Redeemer. Eisieu bwyd, want of food. Llyfr y Dadguddiad, the book of Revelation. Tâd y bachgen, the boy's father. Mam fy nhad, my father's mother. Gwâs ei frawd, his brother's servant. Wyr brenhines Lloegr, the queen of England's grandson. Olwynion cerbyd, the wheels of a carriage. Hwyl llong, the sail of a ship. To ty, the roof of a house. Sail ty mab brenin Lloegr, the foundation of the house of the son of the king of England.

439. When the genitive expresses the age or price of the object described, the mere apposition is used: and in this case the genitive is treated like an adjective; that is, if the preceding noun be feminine singular, the genitive takes the middle; but if it be fem. plural, or masculine singular or plural, the genitive retains the radical sound.

Gwr canmlwydd = a man of a hundred years.

Gwraig ganmlwydd = a woman of a hundred years.

Llyfr ceiniog, a penny book. Canwyll geiniog, a penny candle.

440. The mere apposition genitive occurs after nouns pl. when it describes the place from which persons or objects come, or to which they belong.¹

Gwyr Athen, the men of Athens. Merched Cymru, the women of Wales.

Gwagedd Llundain. Esgidiau Amwythig. Cylyll Caerangon.

(a) If the former noun be singular, the genitive is preceded by o, unless the genitive is an epithet, in which case it generally takes the form of mere apposition. Gwr o Athen. Merch o Gymru. Lewis Môn. Gruffydd Maelor.

441. When the genitive expresses the material or substance, of which a thing is made, it may be either mere apposition, or preceded by the preposition o: if mere apposition, the genitive is treated like an adjective. [§ 439.]

Ty coed, or ty o goed, a house of (= made of) wood.

Gwialen haiarn, or gwialen o haiarn, a rod of iron.

Ceffyl pren, a wooden horse. Sarff bres, a brazen serpent.

(a) There is the same difference between (e.g.) "gwialen haiarn" and "gwialen o haiarn," as there is in English between "an iron rod" and "a rod of iron."

(b) The prep. o governs the middle: ty o goed. After the word mâth, sort, the word ar is occasionally met with instead of o: "mâth ar liw glâs ydyw," it is a sort of a blue colour.

442. When the genitive describes the quality or property of an object, it is preceded by o.

Dyn o ddysg, a man of (=with, having) learning.

Gwr o ddoniau mawr, a man of great talents.

Bachgen o daldra mawr. Adeilad o uchder rhyfeddol.

(a) This genitive is often equivalent to an adjective. Dyn o ddysg = dyn dysgedig = a learned man.

443. When the genitive is equivalent to an apposition, it is preceded by o. (See § 429.) [Apposition or explanatory genitive.]

Gwr o brophwyd = a man of a prophet; a prophet.

Gwr o saer, a carpenter. Cyfaill o Sais, an English friend.

Y pwnc o gyfiawnlâd, the subject of justification.

Y gelfyddyd o areithyddiaeth, the art of elocution.

444. When the preceding genitive, or substantive word, is contained in the genitive, the genitive is preceded by o. [Partitive genitive.] Such words as the following are contained in the genitive, or are parts of the whole which the genitive expresses: substantive words expressive of number and quantity; numerals; adjectives of the superlative degree; and such pronouns and substantive words as pwyl, who, neb, anybody, hyn, this, llawer, much, amryw, several, rhai, some, ychydig, few.

Lliaws o dlynion, a multitude of men. Llu o filwyr, a company of soldiers. Rhan o'r tir, a part of the land. Darn o'r pren, a piece of the timber. Swm o arian, a sum of money. Ugain o wyr, twenty men. [See below (b).] Y goreu o'r cwbl, the best of the whole. Y flwyddyn olaf o'i deyrnasiad, the last year of his reign. Pwy o honoch? which of you? Hyn o arian, this much of money. Llawer o ddwfr, much water.

(a) Nouns and pronouns, denoting number and quantity (except such words as pwyl and neb), and the numeral adjectives usually employed in speaking of number indefinitely, frequently change position with the genitive; and in this case their initial consonants should assume the middle sound; as,

Rhyfeddodau lawer = wonders many; many wonders.

Dwfr ddigon, plenty of water. Gwyr fagad, a multitude of men.

"Gwrandaw tonau hoff perseiniol Adar yn y goedwig fyrdd."

(b) Numerals, except mil, myrdd, myrddiwn, are used with or without o: if with, the following substantive is plural; if without, it is singular. Ugain gwr; ugain o wyr. (See § 49.)

(c) Some common adjectives are sometimes followed by o. Mae Arthur yn gampus o ysgolhaig (= yn ysgolhaig campus) = Arthur is excellent of a scholar; Arthur is an excellent scholar. Mae'n gwrwilyddus o beth fod Arthur yn y carchar, it is a shameful thing that Arthur is in prison.

445. The objective genitive (i.e. the genitive which "would be the object, if the substantive and its attribute were expanded into a sentence"¹) is sometimes expressed by mere apposition; but oftener by the aid of the preposition o; and after certain classes of words by other prepositions; such as ar, on, at, to, am, for, dros, for, rhag, because of.

Mere apposition.—Ofn Duw, the fear of God. Cariad Crist, the love of (=to) Christ. Rom. viii. 35. Gwybodaeth Crist Iesu fy Arglwydd, the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord. Phil. iii. 8. Arlun fy mrawd, the picture of my brother. Gofal y byd hwn, the care of this world. S. Matt. xiii. 22. [This form of the objective genitive is ambiguous, and hence not very often met with. "Thus ofn y gelyn, the fear of the enemy, may mean the fear felt by the enemy himself, or the fear felt by another towards the enemy."²]

The prep. o.—Mwynhâd o gysur, enjoyment of comfort. Tystiolaeth o'n cariad, a testimony of our love. Longddrylliad o'n ffydd, a shipwreck of their faith. Disgrifiad o'r bobl, a description of the people. Prawf o alar, a proof of sorrow. Arwydd o ddigllonedd, a sign of anger.

Other prepositions.—Serch ar ddifyrwech, love of pleasure. Cariad ar fy enaid, love to my soul. Is. xxxviii. 17. Cariad at Dduw, love to God. Gofal am eich bywyd, care for your life. S. Luke xii. 22. Gofal dros Eglwys Dduw, care for the Church of God. 1 Tim. iii. 5. Hiraeth am heddwch, a longing for peace. Ofn rhag y cleddyf, terror by reason of the sword. Ezek. xxi. 12.

446. The infinitive mood of verbs often stands as a noun in the genitive.

Amser hau, the time of sowing. Amser medi, the time of reaping. Ym mhryd machludo haul, at the time of the going down of the sun.

447. Accusative case.—The place which the accusative case most naturally occupies, both when emphatic and unemphatic, is after the verb and the nominative.

Teifl y bachgen gareg, the boy will throw a stone.

A'r dyfroedd a foddant y lloches, and the waters shall overflow the hiding-place.

448. But when it is antithetical (= "it is . . . that") it occupies the first place; as,

Dwfr a geisiodd efe, llacth a roddes hithau = water he asked for, milk she gave. Judges v. 25.

449. When the accusative begins the sentence, or when it immediately follows an infinitive verb, it retains the radical sound of its initial consonant; as,

Gwialen dy nerth a enfyn yr Arglwydd, the rod of thy power shall the Lord send.

Y mae efe yn moliannu Duw, he praises God.

² T. J. Hughes on Syntax.

450. But when the accusative comes after a finite verb, or after an infinitive separated from it by an adverb or a phrase, its initial consonant should be changed into the middle; as,

Y bachgen a deifl gareg, the boy will throw a stone.
Tynu ymaith bechodau, to take away sins.

451. Prepositions govern different sounds (see §§ 364-373). Hence, an accusative after a preposition must have its initial consonant placed in that sound which the preceding particle governs. For example :

Mewn and rhwng govern the rad. ‘Mewn ty,’ in a house. ‘Rhwng mynyddoedd,’ between mountains.

Tros and heb govern the middle. ‘Tros fôr,’ over sea. ‘Heb Dduw,’ without God, without anything.

452. The accusative of an active, or the nominative of a passive verb is sometimes put absolutely at the beginning of the clause, a corresponding personal pronoun following the verb. This is done when particular attention is called.

A hefyd fy ngelynion hyny, dygwch hwynt yma, and also those my enemies, bring them hither.

Y duwiau, ni wnaethant y nefoedd, difethir hwynt, the gods, that have not made the heavens, they shall be destroyed.

* * * The syntax of the accusative in connection with the verb will be again referred to under the “Verbs.”

453. An accusative is also put absolutely after adjectives, as, “benyw deg ei phryd” = a female fair (as to) her countenance. [See Syntax of “Adjectives.”]

454. Nouns denoting duration and point of time, distance of place, and measure, are put absolutely, as in English. If such nouns stand foremost in the sentence, they usually retain their radical form ; but if they follow the verb, their initial consonant should be changed into the middle ; as,

Deng wythnos yr arosais yno, } I stayed there ten weeks.
Arosais yno ddeng wythnos, }

Lliw nos y daethym ; daethym liw nos, I came by night.

Pymtheg cufydd yr ymgryfhäodd y dyfroedd, } ‘fifteen cubits upward
Ymgryfhäodd y dyfroedd bymtheg cufydd, } ‘did the waters prevail.’

455. Vocative case.—The vocative case is preceded by an interjection, expressed or understood ; and, as all interjections govern the middle sound, the initial of the vocative will accordingly be softened.

O Dad trugarog ! O drugarog Dad ! } O merciful Father.
Dad trugarog ! Drugarog Dad ! }

456. When the interjection is omitted, the vocative sometimes retains its radical form; as,

Duw Dad, o'r nef, trugarha wrthym, O God the Father, of heaven, have mercy upon us.—Prayer Book.

Occasionally the article, with or without an interjection, precedes the vocative; as,

O y Galatiaid ynfyd! O the foolish Galatians! Gal. iii. 1.

Yr ogoned, lân, fendigaidd Drindod, the glorious, holy, blessed Trinity.

457. Proper names.—Welsh critics differ with regard to the initial mutations of proper names. Some treat them like common nouns; i.e., place them in rad., mid., nas., or asp., according to the governing power of the word immediately preceding in the clause. Others treat Welsh, and naturalized proper names, like common nouns; but “show regard to strangers”¹ by allowing them to remain, under all circumstances, in their original form. And others are inclined to leave many Welsh, and all foreign proper names untouched. The following rules exhibit the prevailing usage of the present day.

458. Welsh proper names of places (countries, towns, &c.) are governed in the same way as common nouns. Foreign proper names of places, which by continually occurring have become naturalized, follow the same rule.

Aethym o Lundain i Fangor. Ym Mhennant.

Yng Nghanaan. Yn y Ganaan bur.

459. Foreign proper names of places usually retain their radical sound.

Aeth o Damascus, ac arosodd yn Cæsarea.

460. Welsh proper names of rivers are governed like common nouns. [But, although fem., they retain the rad. after the article.]

Yr hen Dafwys. Yn Nyfrdwy. Y Teifi.

461. Proper names of persons, whether Welsh or foreign, usually retain their radical forms, except when preceded by an adjective, in which case they generally follow the rules of common nouns.

Dywedodd wrth Dafydd. Aeth at Llewelyn.

Yr hen Lewelyn. Yr addawedig Fessiah.

(a) Names of persons beginning with c, p, or t, generally take the asp. sound after a, na, gyda, and cfo. A Chain. A Phedr. Silvanus a Thimotheus.

ADJECTIVES.

462. The agreement of adjectives with their nouns in gender and number is partial.

463. Gender.—Those which agree in gender by vowel inflections are certain primitive adjectives, their compounds, and some few derivatives, of which a list is given in §§ 159, 160.

Ceffyl gwyn, white horse.

Tarw penwyn, white-headed bull.

Caseg wen, white mare.

Buwch benwen, white-headed cow.

464. But if the adjective is in a state of comparison, or has a plural termination, or is put in construction with a plural noun, the radical form (i.e., the masculine) undergoes no change, with respect to vowel inflections, to indicate gender.

Careg drymach (not dromach), a heavier stone.

Ceryg trymion (not tromion), heavy stones.

Merched pengrych (not pengreck), curly-headed girls.

465. When adjectives begin with one of the mutable consonants, and follow their nouns, their gender is also indicated by their initial consonant; as,

Ceffyl cryf, strong horse.

Gwr duwiol, godly man.

Caseg gref, strong mare.

Gwraig dduwiol, godly woman.

(a) If the noun is plural, the initial consonant of the adjective undergoes no change; as,

Cesyg gwynion. Gwragedd duwiol.

466. When adjectives have no vowel inflections, and do not begin with any of the mutable consonants, they are said to be of common gender; as,

Gwr hardd, a handsome man.

Gwraig hardd, a handsome woman.

. See "Government of Adjectives," § 473, &c.

467. Number.—Those which agree in number are mostly primitive adjectives: sometimes compounds and derivatives.

Gwr doeth, a wise man.

Gwr annoeth, a foolish man.

Gwyr doethion.

Gwyr annoethion.

(a) Dr. Pughe, treating of the primitive adjectives, says: "The primitive adjectives may or may not agree in number with their substantives, optionally, as the euphony may require." And again of the derivatives: "The adjectives of this class seldom take the plural form, except in poetical language, when they are made to agree with plural nouns with happy effect."

A very large number of adjectives are never made plural; and only a few necessarily require a plural form.

Several of the adjectives which form their plural by changing a vowel or vowels, are made to agree with their pl. nouns—such as: ieuanc, pl. ieuainc, young; bychan, pl. bychain, small; llydan, pl. llydain, wide; cyfan, pl. cyfain, whole; marw, pl. meirw, dead; cadarn, pl. cedyrn, strong; arall, pl. ereill, other; llall, pl. lleill, the other. "Dwyllaw bychain," small hands. "Dynion meirw," dead men.

Tlawd, poor, and gwan, weak, are generally made plural,—making tlodion, gweiniaid.

Most of the adjectives denoting colours require a plural form: du, pl. duon, black; gwyn, pl. gwynion, white; coch, pl. cochion, red; glas, pl. gleision, blue; gwyrd, pl. gwyrdion, green; melyn, pl. melynion, yellow; brith, pl. brithion, speckled. "Ac o'i ol ef feirch cochion, brithion, a gwynion," and behind him red horses, speckled, and white. Zech. i. 8.

(b) Adjectives should be in the plural form when they stand as plural nouns; as,

"Y nefolion," the heavenly ones. "Y caredigion," the beloved ones.

468. Position.—The place which a common adjective in the positive state occupies in a sentence, conventionally arranged, is usually after the noun which it modifies; as,

Gwr cyfiawn, a just man. Merch landeg, a comely woman.

(a) The position of the adjective is the same in Irish, Gaelic, and Armoric.

Fear mor (= gwr mawr), a big man.—Bourke's Ir. Gr., § 70.

Lann geur (= llafn garw), a sharp blade.—Armstrong's Gaelic Gr., p. 59.

Den honest (= dyn gonest), an honest man.—Arch. Brit., p. 193.

(b) Prif, chief, always precedes: unig, only, precedes; unig, lonely, follows: câm, false, precedes; câm, crooked, follows: hên, old, and gau, false, most generally, and gwir, true, very often, precede.—"Exercise Book," Ch. 3. [In Irish, fiôr (= gwir), true, príomh (= prif), first, and sean (= hên), old, precede their nouns.]

469. But in poetical language and rhetorical prose, the adjective is very often made to precede the noun; as,

"Hyfryd liwiau'r bryniau a'r bronydd,

Gerddi a gweunydd gyll eu gwawr;

Prudd ddistawrwydd sy'n gyffredin.

Heb ddim lleisiau ar y llawr."—D. Davies.

(a) When adjectives are qualified by go, somewhat, rather, and iawn, very, they always follow their nouns; and generally when qualified by other adverbs. Dyn go ddysgedig, a rather learned man. Dyn dysgedig iawn, a very learned man.

(b) An adjective, joined to a noun to form a compound, generally takes the precedence. Mawrfryd=mawr bryd. [§ 77.]

470. Indefinite pronouns (except arall and oll), and numerals (except cynaf), always precede their substantives. [§§ 214, 490, 501.]

471. "Adjectives in a state of comparison are so adapted that they may be optionally made to precede or to follow the nouns."¹

Cyn hardded gwr, gwr cyn hardded, as handsome a man.

Harddach gwr, gwr harddach, a handsomer man.

Yr harddaf wr, y gwr harddaf, the handsomest man.

472. 'Several adjectives may come together, either preceding or following the noun to which they belong ;' or one may precede and another follow it, according to the writer's taste.

Fy anwyl gariadus frodyr,
Fy mrodyr anwyl a chariadus, } my dearly beloved brethren.
Fy anwyl frodyr cariadus,

473. Government.— Positive and superlative adjectives govern the *middle*² sound of the noun following, whether it be sing. or pl., masculine or feminine ; equal and comparative adjectives govern the radical.

Pos. Duwiol bendefig, pious nobleman. Glân rianod, fair ladies.

Sup. Y mwynaf gyfaill, the kindest friend. Ein grasusaf frenhines, our most gracious queen.

Equal. Cyn fwyned gwr, as kind a man. Cyn fwyned gwraig, as kind a woman.

Comp. Mwynach gwr, a kinder man. Mwynach gwraig, a kinder woman.

(a) If the superlative is indefinite, i.e., not preceded by the article or its equivalent, it governs the radical sound. "A thecaf merch dan haul ydoedd." "Goren diod, diod dŵr." Sometimes the superlative is followed by the radical, even when it is preceded by the article. "Y cyntaf peth a welais."

(b) Should an article precede the comparative, the following noun may be softened. "Ond darfu'r harddach ferched llon."—D. S. Evans.

(c) The equal and comparative adjectives govern the radical, whether they have the inflected forms (e.g., mwyned, mwynach), or are formed by putting mor (for equal), and mwyr or llai (for comp.), before the positive state of the adjective. Cyn hardded bachgen, mor hardd bachgen, as beautiful a boy. Gwrolach milwr, mwyr gwrol milwr, a braver soldier.

² The superlatives mwyaaf and lluciaf are adverbs as well as adjectives : when adverbs, they govern the radical sound. (Arthur yw y mwyaaf dysgedig. Y ffordd fwyaaf cyffredin o'u cadw yn awr ydyw drwy y dawns.—Brutus.)

474. When an adjective follows a feminine noun singular, it is changed into the middle sound; but when it follows a feminine plural noun, or a masculine noun, sing. or plural, it retains its radical form.

Fem. sing.	Merch dloeth , wise girl .	Gwraig daclus , tidy woman .
Fem. pl.	Merched doethion , wise girls .	Gwragedd taclus , tidy women .
Mas.	Milwr gwrol , brave soldier .	Milwyr gwrol , brave soldiers .

(a) An adverb, preceding the adjective, is affected in the same way (the adjective being, of course, governed by the adverb.) Gwraig bur daclus. Gwragedd pur daclus. Milwr or milwyr pur wrol.

But go, somewhat, môr, so, cyn, so, and generally rhy, too, retain the radical sound, even after a fem. noun sing. Gwraig go daclus. Gwraig môr daclus. Gwraig rhy annhaclus. Gwraig cyn annhaclus.

(b) In N. W. the word bach, little, often retains its radical form, even after a fem. noun sing. Hanes Jane bach, history of little Jane. Yr eneth bach, the little girl.

474 (1). When nouns of different genders are coupled together, and qualified by the same adjective, the adjective is made to agree with the noun next to it. [Cf. Irish. Bourke's Gr., § 235.]

Dyn a dynes dda, a good man and woman.

475. When a series of attributive adjectives are placed after a noun, the second and following adjectives assume the same sound as the first (the sound of the first depending, of course, on the substantive immediately preceding).

Dyn da, gostyngedig, call, a good, humble, prudent man.

Gwragedd da, gostyngedig, call, good, humble, prudent women.

Gwraig dda, ostyngedig, gall, a good, humble, prudent woman.

476. But when the adjective is set in apposition to a noun, and separated from it by a comma, the adjective will retain its radical form, even when the noun is feminine singular. [The rule is the same as when one noun is set in apposition to another. § 420.]

Trwy ffydd i iachawdwriaeth, parod i'w datguddio. 1 S. Peter i. 5.

Cymerodd aguedd ddynol, cyffelyb i'r eiddom ni.

In the phrase "iachawdwriaeth barod," ready salvation, "parod" is used attributively, and hence assumes the middle sound, "iachawdwriaeth" being fem. sing.; but in "iachawdwriaeth, parod i'w datguddio," salvation, ready to be revealed, "parod" is placed appositively, and therefore retains its radical form.

477. When an adjective follows a proper noun of either gender, as an epithet or agnomen, its initial consonant should be put in the middle sound; as,

Hywel dda, Hywel the good.
 Elen brydferth, Ellen the beautiful.
 Alecsander fawr, Alexander the great.
 Lasarus dlawd, Lazarus the poor.

(a) The position of adjectives of this character is the same in English. (Alexander the great. Cato the wise.)

478. Accusative after adjectives.—Sometimes an adjective is followed by a noun in the accusative, expressing the thing to which the notion of the adjective belongs. In other words, the adjective is made to agree with the object spoken of, rather than with the noun which describes the quality of that object ; as,

Gwr hardd yr olwg=a man beautiful the appearance.
 Gwraig lân ei chalon. Dyn trwm ei glyn.
 Seithwyr da eu gair. A'r adar llawr eu hesgull.
 Gwyn ei fyd y gŵr=happy (as to) his state the man. Ps. i. 1.

In (e.g.) “gwr hardd yr olwg,” the adj. hardd agrees with the word gwr, rather than with golwg, which describes its quality. Here the Welsh and English are at variance ; for in the latter the adjective is made to agree with the describing noun, and not with the noun described. (A man of a beautiful appearance.)

(a) With the above compare the Greek idiom.

Πόδας ὤκεις Ἀχιλλεύς=Archilles swift (as to) feet.
 Καλὸς τὴν ψυχὴν=beautiful (as to) the soul.

479. Occasionally the preposition ‘o’ intervenes between the adjective and the accusative ; as,

Gwr teg o bryd=a man fair of countenance.

480. By modern writers it is frequently made to agree with the quality of the object described, in accordance with the English idiom ; as,

Gwr o olwg hyfryd, a man of pleasant look.

481. Comparison.—The equal degree is expressed (a) simply by the form ending with ‘ed.’ (b) by the same form, preceded by other particles : (c) by the positive state, preceded by môr. This comparison denotes sometimes admiration or vague comparison ; and sometimes equality.

482. It will be expressed in English by the adverbs how, so, or as, with an adjective in the positive state.

“How.” Wynnodd yw’r eira !
 Clynnodd yw’r eira ! } how white the snow is !
 Môr wydd yw’r eira ! }

- "So." Cued ganddo ei bleser, fel na ddaw, he is so fond of his pleasure, that he will not come.
 Mae cŷn ddoethed fel y gŵyr y cwbl, } he is so wise, that he knows
 Mae môr ddoeth fel y gŵyr y cwbl, } the whole.
- "As." Dôs ymaith gynted ag y gelli, }
 Dôs ymaith cŷn gynted ag y gelli, } go away as soon as you can.
 Dôs ymaith môr juan ag y gelli, }

483. In general, however, the form which corresponds to how, marking admiration, is that which ends in ed, either alone or preceded by an interjection :

Duw anwyl, fired einioes ! O fired yw'r einioes !
 Och ! beryeled yw'r daith.

(a) "When the adjective is put absolutely, its initial assumes the middle form ; as, Duw cadw Rys deced ei rôdd."—J. W. ab Ithel.

484. Cŷn (càn or gàn), with the "ed form," and môr with the positive state, are used when we express the notion implied in so and as. and in how when it heads a subjoined clause.

Rhedodd cŷn gyflymed, fel na allodd hi ei ddal, he ran so quickly that she failed to catch him.

Y mae Arthur cŷn hardded a Dafydd, Arthur is as handsome as David.

A welwch chwi môr vŷn yw'r eira ? do you see how white the snow is ?

(a) Observe the corresponding particles :

Cŷn or môr . . . fel = so that.

Cŷn or môr . . . a or ag = as . . . as.

485. When two objects are spoken of, the comparative is used in English : as, "He is the elder of the two." In this case the Welsh employ the superlative ; as, "Efe yw'r hynaf o'r ddau" = he is the eldest of the two. "Efe yw'r gorau o'r ddau" = he is the best of the two.

486. In English "proportionate equality is marked by the . . the with comparatives. 'The more you study the more you will learn.'"¹ In Welsh this is expressed by two superlatives, the particle *po*² (colloquially pwŷ) preceding the former ; as,

Po mwyaf yr edrychaf arno, sicraf wyf o hono = by so much the most I look at him, the most certain I am of him ; the more I look at him, the more certain I am of him.

(a) The words yn y byd (in the world), oll or i gyd (all), buth (ever), are often placed after the latter superlative, to strengthen the assertion.

² With po and pwŷ compare Eng. by, and Latin quo.

"Po mwyaf y carwn Grist, mwyaf oll y myfyriwn ar Ei gariad," the more we love Christ, the more we meditate upon His love.

(b) The two clauses are frequently inverted—especially when there is an ellipsis of one or of the two verbs; as, "Goren po cyntaf"=best by so much the soonest; the sooner the better. "Goreu po cyntaf y daw," the sooner the better he comes.

(c) Po governs the radical sound. Po mwyaf, the more; po cyntaf, the sooner; po gwresocaf, the warmer.

487. Comparison is also expressed by go, partly; lled, partly; digon, sufficiently; iawn, very; wrth, to; tra, very; pur, very; rhy, too; gyda, with.

Gwr tra dysgedig, a very learned man.

Gyda'r goren o honynt, (equal) with the best of them.

Nid yw efe yn ddim wrth ei frawd, he is nothing to (=compared with) his brother.

NUMERALS.

488. Cardinal Numbers.—Cardinals have no distinction of gender, except dau, two, tri, three, and pedwar, four, which have dyw, tair, and pedair for the feminine.

Dau ddyn, two men.

Dwy ddynes, two women.

Pum dyn, five men.

Pum dynes, five women.

(a) When two numerals are put together, either as a compound or separately, the former must be mas., even when the substantive which is qualified is of the fem. gender. Trigain mlynedd, or tri ugain mlynedd, 60 years. Dau gan mlynedd, 200 years.

489. Cardinals have no plural number, except when, as in English, they are used substantively. Degau, tens; ugeiniau, scores; cannoedd, hundreds.

Y mae yn ei lyfrgell ugeiniau o lyfrau, there are in his library scores of books.

490. Cardinals precede their nouns, which may follow either immediately or with the intervention of the preposition 'o,' of. If the nouns follow immediately, the rule is that they should be in the singular number; if with the intervention of 'o,' they must be in the plural; as,

Tri dyn=three man; three individual men.

Tri o ddynion=three of men, from the general class.

(a) Sometimes, however, the nouns are put in the plural, even when they immediately follow the numerals. Thus,

Seithrhyr da eu gair. Y deuddeg apostolion.

Y tri uyr hyn. Pedwar gwyr rhyddion.

(aa) In Armoric "adjectives of number have always a substantive singular; daou den (=dau ddyn), two men; dec bloaz (=deg mlwydd), ten years."—Arch. Brit., p. 193.

(b) Mil, a thousand, myrdd, a myriad, and myrddiwn, a myriad, and their compounds, are always followed by the preposition; as, Mil o wyr, a thousand men. Dwy fil o wyr, two thousand men.

491. Government.—Great irregularity of usage prevails with regard to the sounds which comes after the cardinal numerals, the same numeral being often made to govern two and sometimes even three different sounds. Thus we have the rad. in “saith basgedaid,” seven baskets full, and the mid. in “saith fugail,” seven shepherds. We venture, however, to lay down the following as the rules; and in writing Welsh the student may safely adhere to them.

492. The following govern the radical sound.

Un (mas.), tair, pedwar and pedair;
Pum, chwêch, naw, and deunaw;
Deg, with compounds deuddeg, pymtheg;
Ugain, with compounds deugain, trigain;
Can, with compounds deugan, trichan, &c.

Un corff, one body. Pedwar gwr, four men. Pum gwraig, five women.

493. Un feminine (except before ll and rh), duu and duy, govern the middle. Ll and rh retain their rad. after un fem.

Un ddynes, one woman. Dau ddyn, two men. Dwy ddynes, two women.

Ll and rh. Un llaw, one hand. Un rhaw, one spade.

494. Tri and chwe govern the aspirate of the 1st class (c, p, t); and the radical of the 2nd and 3rd (g, b, d; ll, m, rh).

Tri char, three friends. Tri phen, three heads. Chwe tharw, six bulls. Tri gwr, three men. Tri bys, three fingers. Chwe llew, six lions.

495. Saith and wyth govern the middle of c, p, t; and the radical of the other consonants.

Saith gorn, seven horns. Saith ben, seven heads. Wyth dorth, eight loaves.

Saith gwas, seven servants. Saith bys, seven fingers. Wyth llong, eight ships.

496. Deng, and its comp. deuddeng and pymtheng, which are mostly used before words beginning radically with g, d, m, n, or a vowel, govern the nasal of d; middle of g; and radical of m.

Deng nafad, ten sheep. Deng wr, ten men. Deng mis, ten months.

(a) It is very probable that deng formerly governed g in the nasal, and that such phrases as deng wr, deng air, &c., were written deng ngwr, deng ngair, &c.

497. Pum, saith, wyth, naw, deg, deng, uagain, can, with their compounds, govern the words blynedd and blwydd (a year) in the nasal; and the word diwrnod (a day) in the nasal, or radical.

Pum mllynedd, five years. Wyth mllynedd, eight years. Can mlwydd, hundred years. Saith niwrnod or diwrnod, seven days.

Deng is followed by the nasal of diwrnod, never by the rad. Deng niwrnod.

498. Numerals with nouns sing. equal to pl.—A singular noun preceded by a numeral is equivalent to a plural. Hence,

a) It is followed by a plural verb.

Y ddau ddyn a atebasant, the two men answered.

b) The numerals (except dau and dry) retain the radical sound after the article, even when their substantives are feminine.

Y tair dynes, the three women. Y deng morwyn, the ten virgins.

c) The demonstratives hwn, hwnw, &c., are put in the plural.

Y tair gwaith hyn, these three times.

Y ddau filwr hyny, those two soldiers.

Exceptions.—(a) When a numeral is followed by a substantive and an adjective, the adjective will be singular. Dau ddyn du, two black men. Tri gwr ieuanc, three young men. (b) The adj. pronoun arall is sometimes put in the sing., and sometimes in the plural. Y ddau ddyn arall, the other two men. Y saith niwrnod ereill, the other seven days.

499. Difference between pump and pum; chwech and chwe; deg and deng; cant and can.

a) The contracted forms pum, chwe (N. W.), and can, are adjectives, and followed immediately by substantives: pump, chwech, and cant are substantives.

Pum plentyn, five children. Chwe dafad, six sheep. Can gwr, a hundred men.

Pump o blant=five of children; five children. Chwech o ddefaid, six sheep. Pa sawl dafad sydd genych? Cant. How many sheep have you? A hundred.

(a) The substantive oed, age, is preceded by the full form pump, chwech, and cant. Mae'r plentyn yn bump oed, the child is five years old.

(b) In S. W. chwech is both a substantive and an adjective. Chwech o blant, or chwech plentyn, six children.

b) Deng is an adjective. (§ 496): deg is an adjective and a substantive.

Deng niwrnod, ten days. Deg ceiniog or deg o geiniogau, ten pence. I'a sawl llyfr sydd genych? Deg. How many books have you? Ten.

500. Ordinal Numbers.—Ordinals have no distinction of gender, except deufed, second, trydydd, third, and pedwerydd, fourth, which have dwysed, trydedd, and pedwured in the feminine.

Y trydydd dydd, the 3rd day.

Y pedwerydd boren, the 4th morning.

Y pummed mab, the 5th son.

Y drydedd awr, the 3rd hour.

Y bedwared bennod, the 4th chapter.

Y bummed ferch, the 5th daughter.

501. Ordinals precede their nouns; and the nouns, if masculine, retain the radical; if feminine, they are changed into the middle sound; as,

Y pummed dydd. Y bummed bennod (rad. pennod).

(a) But cyntaf, first, is usually put after its noun; as, Y dyn cyntaf.

(b) Ail, second, is followed by the middle sound, even when the noun is masculine; as, Yr ail ddyn; yr ail bwne.

It appears that formerly the government of ail was regular; that is, it governed a mas. noun in the radical, and a fem. in the middle; as,

m. { Yr ail dydd, the second day. Gen. i. 8.
Yr ail cyfammod, the second covenant.—E. Samuel.
Yr ail peth, the second thing.—M. Kyffin.

f. { Yr ail flwyddyn, the second year. Num. ix. 1.
Yr ail farwolaeth, the second death. Rev. ii. 11.

502. When the names of the objects numbered are joined to periphrastic numerals, they take their place immediately after the first-mentioned numeral; thus,

23 men: tri dyn ar hugain=three man over twenty.

The 30th day: y degfed dydd ar hugain=the tenth day over twenty.

PRONOUNS.

PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

503. The different forms and modifications of personal pronouns depend, to a certain extent, upon the position assigned to them in construction. They are to be considered in their connection with verbs, nouns, and prepositions.

504. Connected with Verbs.—"The personal pronouns may be used or omitted with the verbs, either preceding or following them, in all their inflections. They are more particularly used when an emphasis is required on the pronoun."¹

Simple. Gwelais y dyn.

Emphatic. Gwelais i y dyn.

(a) When the verb is preceded by a particle (mi, fe, nid, &c.), the personal pronoun, even when unemphatic, is very often added in speaking, and pronounced as an enclitic. "Ni allaf-fi fyned," I cannot go.

505. First person singular.—When the nominative case comes after the verb, the first person takes fi or finnau, if the tense of the verb ends in f, r, or d: it takes the form i or innau, if the tense ends in n, m, or s.

f, r, d. Caraf fi.
n, m, s. Adwaen i.

Cerir fi.
Bûm i.

Cerid finnau.
Cerais innau.

506. The pronoun takes the form fi or finnau, when it stands objectively after the verb and the nominative, the nom. being expressed or understood.

Carodd Arthur fi or finnau, Arthur loved me (or me also).

Carodd (efe) fi or finnau, he loved me (or me also).

507.  But when a possessive pronoun precedes the verb, the nominative and the accusative take the form i or innau.

Fe'm cerir i or innau, I (or I also) am loved.

Pan y'm cerir i or innau, when I (or I also) am loved.

Dywed fy mod i yno, he says that I was there.

Arthur a'm carodd i or innau, Arthur loved me (or me also).

Y mae Iorwerth yn fy nyngu i, Iorwerth teaches me.

508. The pl. ni and ninnau will take any position. Ni or ninnau a ddaethom. Daethom ni or ninnau. Carasant hwy ni or ninnau.

509. Second person singular.—When the nominative comes after the verb, the second person takes di or dithau, if the verb is in the imperative mood, or ends in ch, d, r, or in a vowel; as,

Cantlyn di.
Carasid di.

Fel y cerych di cf.
Cerir di. Ceri di.

It takes ti or tithau, if the verb ends in t: as ceraist ti, carasit tithau.

510. The pronoun takes the form di or dithau, when it stands objectively after the verb and the nominative, the nom. being expressed or understood.

Canmolodd Arthur di, Arthur praised thee.
Gwelodd (efe) dithau, he saw thee also.

511.  When a possessive pronoun precedes the verb, the nominative and the accusative take di or dithau, independently of the preceding letter.

Fc'th gerir di or dithau, Pan y'th gerir di.
Dywed dy fod di yno. Arthur a'th garodd di.
Y mae Iorwerth yn dy ddysgu di.

512. The pl. chwi and chwithau will take any position like ni and ninnau.

513. Third person singular.—When the nominative or the accusative precedes the verb, the forms usually employed are efe and efo, for the masculine. Efe or efo a ddaeth. Efe or efo a garaf fi.

514. When the nominative follows the verb, efe, ef, e, or o, are employed.

Dywedodd efe, ef, e, or o, he said.

(a) Efe is the safest form, and should always be used when the nom. and accus. are pronouns, third pers. sing. mas. Dysgodd efe ef, he taught him.

515. When the pronoun stands objectively after the verb, and also as subject after a passive verb, the forms ef, e, or o, are used.

Arthur a'i carodd ef, e, or o, Arthur loved him.
Gwelsom (ui) ef, e, or o, we saw him.
Canmolwyd ef, e, or o, he was praised.

516. The fem. hi and hithau; the mas. yntau; and the pl. hwythau and hwyntau will take any position, like ni and ninnau.

517. Hwy and hwynt.—Hwynt is for the most part an accusative following an active verb; or a nominative following a passive verb. Caraf hwynt. Cerir hwynt. But hwy is preferred to hwynt after nt; as, 'carant hwy,' not 'carant hwynt.'

Hwy may be used in all cases. Hwy a garant; carant hwy; Arthur a'u car hwy.

518. The 'antithetic' forms of all persons and numbers

(except efe, see above), and the ‘antithetic and conjunctive,’ generally precede their verbs. Myfi or myfinnau a erfyniaf. Tydi or tydithau a ddeni. Nymi a atolygwn i ti.

(a) Such expressions as “pa ham y derbyniodd gliniau fyfi?” “canlyn di fyfi,” where the antithetic form is in the accusative, following the verb, are not often met with.

519. Auxiliary pronouns.—Fe, fo, and e are employed as auxiliary pronouns in affirmative propositions, and are placed before the verb when it is followed by its nominative case. They are strictly auxiliaries of the 3rd pers. singular, and in the active voice they seldom occur except before this person of the verb; but in the passive voice they can stand before all numbers and persons.

Fe weryd ef y cyfion, he will deliver the righteous.

E ddaw fy mrawd yma, my brother will come here.

Fe dybir hyn gan lawer, this is thought by many.

Fe ddywedir fod gan Arthur gleddyf, it is said that A. has a sword.

Fe'm or fo'm lluddiwyd i, I was prevented. See p. 86, note (a).

520. Mi (a corruption of me, the radical form of fe) is, in colloquial language, put before verbs of all numbers and persons when they are followed by their nom. case.

Mi feddyliais i. Mi feddyliaist ti. Mi feddyliodd y dynion.

(a) Fe, fo, e, and mi, are followed by the middle sound. Fe ddaw.

521. Hi.—Hi corresponds to it, standing as the nominative case to a verb, descriptive of the weather, circumstances, &c.

Y mae hi yn gwlawio, it is raining.

Y mae hi yn galed arno, it is hard upon him.

Dywed ei bod hi yn galed arno, he says that it is hard upon him.

522. Connected with Nouns.—When the possessive pronoun is to be marked with emphasis, a corresponding personal pronoun is put after the noun. The forms, which they assume when thus employed, will be seen in the following examples:—

1. Fy nhad i, or innau.
2. Dy dad di, or dithau.
3. { Ei dad ef, e, o, or yntau.
- { Ei thad hi, or hithau.

1. Ein tad ni, or ninnau.
2. Eich tad chwi, or chwithau.
3. Eu tad hwy, hwynt, or hwythau.

(a) The personal pronoun is often added when the possessive is not emphatic; but it is then read as an enclitic. “Fy nhad-i,” my father. “Ein dillad-ni,” our clothes.—Exercise Book, Ch. 5.

(b) The personal pronouns are added in the same way in Armoric. “Ma zat-me” (=fy nhad i), my father. “Da dat-te” (=dy dad di), thy father.—Arch. Brit., p. 193.

523. Connected with Prepositions.—The pronouns take the same forms after ‘compound prepositions ending with a substantive,’¹ as those which they take after nouns.

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1. O'm blaen i , or innau . | 1. O'n blaen ni , or ninnau . |
| 2. O'th flaen di , or dithau . | 2. O'ch blaen chwi , or chwithau . |
| 3. { O'i flaen ef , e , o , or yntau .
O'i blaen hi , or hithau . | 3. O'u blaen hwy , hwynt , or hwythau . |

(a) ~~Fe'm~~ I or innau, &c., is the proper form in every case where a possessive pronoun is put before the verb or noun. Fe'm curwyd i, I was beaten. Hi a'm tarawodd i, she struck me. Dywed fy mod i, he says that I am. Yn fy nysgu i, teaching me. Fy nhad i, my father. O'm blaen i, before me.

524. After pronominal prepositions² they assume the following forms :—

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1. Ataf fi , or finnau . | 1. Atom ni , or ninnau . |
| 2. Atat ti , or tithau . | 2. Atoch chwi , or chwithau . |
| 3. { Ato ef , fe , jo , or yntau .
Ati hi , or hithau . | 3. Atynt hwy , or hwythau . |

525. Apposition and Government.—The government of words, put in apposition with pronouns, depends on the force intended to be expressed by the apposition words. They are put either in the radical or the middle sound.

526. When a substantive, or substantive word, is put in apposition with a pronoun, and does not require to be emphatically expressed, its initial consonant is put in the middle sound.

Nyni, bawb oll, a bechasom, we all have sinned.

Glanhewch eich dwylaw, chwi bechaduriaid. S. James iv. 8.

I'ch cadw chwi, ddynionach musgrell, segur.—Theo. Evans.

527. When the apposition is to be marked with emphasis, it very properly retains its radical and strong form ; as,

Chwi, gwyr y doniau mawr, a gyfeiliornasoch.

528. When one pronoun is put in apposition with another, the apposition pronoun generally retains the radical ; as,

Gwerthwyd ni, myfi a'm pobl, we are sold, I and my people.

Dos [di] allan o'r arch, ti a'th wraig, go thou out of the ark, thou and thy wife. Gen. viii. 16.

529. Fy hun, &c. = myself. The pronouns fy hun, dy hun, &c., myself, thyself, &c., have generally the same position assigned to them as their corresponding words in English. [Fy hun, &c. = own, see § 533.]

² See §§ 374-381.

a) Eiddof fi yw'r holl dir yma, all this land is mine.
Eiddot ti yw'r deyrnas, thine is the kingdom.

b) Y llyfr hwn o'r eiddof, this book of mine.

Megys y gwnaeth Duw oddi wrth yr eiddo Yntau, as God did from His. Heb. iv. 10.

Yr eiddo pob prysur [sydd] at eisieu, those of every hasty one [are] to want. Prov. xxi. 5.

A'r eiddo Tobiah oedd yn dyfod atynt hwythau, and those of Tobiah came unto them. Neh. vi. 17.

Cânt wybod gair pwy a saif, ai yr eiddof fi, ai yr eiddynt hwy, they shall know whose words shall stand, mine or theirs. Jer. xlv. 28.

(a) This form of the possessive does not exist in the colloquial language; and as repetition is a peculiarity well agreeing with the idiom of the Welsh language, some good critics doubt the propriety of admitting it as a part of Welsh Grammar. Such expressions as would undoubtedly be more idiomatically expressed in this manner:

“Y llyfr hwn o'r eiddof.”

“Megys y gwnaeth Duw oddi wrth yr eiddo Yntau.”

“Fy llyfr hwn.”

“Megys y gwnaeth Duw oddi wrth ei weithredoedd Yntau.”

The above form, however, is continually met with in the Welsh Bible.

536. The possessives fy, ym, dy, yth, ei, &c., are by a peculiar idiom employed before verbs and participles, and between the component parts of certain compound prepositions.

Duw a'n (=a ein) gwnaeth ni, God made us.

Duw sydd yn ein cadw. Daeth ar fy ol i.

. See Syntax of “Verbs,” and “Compound Prepositions.”

537. Government.—Ym, my; ein, our; eich, your; eu, their; and ill (or eill), their; are followed by the radical sound; as,

Mi a'm tād, I and my father.

Ni a'n tād, we and our father.

Efe a'm cospodd, he punished me.

Daeth i'm cospi, he came to punish me.

538. Dy and yth, thy; and ei, his, by the middle; as,

Dy dad, thy father.

Ei dad, his father.

Efe a'th gospodd, he punished thee.

Daeth i'th gospi, he came to punish thee.

539. Fy, my, by the nasal sound; as,

Fy nhad, my father. Daeth i fy nghospi, he came to punish me.

540. Ei, her, by the aspirate sound; as,

Ei thad, her father. Daeth i'w chospi, he came to punish her.

541.  But when ei masculine and ei feminine are put before finite verbs, they are followed by the radical; as,

Arthur a'i cospodd ef, Arthur punished him.
 Arthur a'i cospodd hi, Arthur punished her.

542. Words beginning with a vowel have the aspirate h prefixed to them after the possessives ym, ei fem., ein and eu; as,

Myfi a'm hawen (rad. awen), I and my muse.
 Efe a'm handwyodd, he ruined me.
 Daeth i'm handwyo, he came to ruin me.

(a) Some words, beginning with i followed by a vowel, are sometimes written without the aspirate h when they are preceded by ein. Ein Iachawdwr (for ein Hiachawdwr), our Saviour. Ein Ior (for ein Hior), our Lord.

(b) With ei and eu compare Irish. "Going before a vowel, a, his, does not aspirate; as, a anam, his soul: a, her, does aspirate the vowel; as, a h-anam, her soul: a, their, causes n to be prefixed; as, a n-anama, their souls."—Bourke's Gr. § 101.

543. ¶ When ei mas. precedes a finite verb beginning with a vowel, the said verb should be preceded by the aspirate; as,

Arthur a'i handwyodd ef, Arthur ruined him.

544. ¶ Thus

a) Ei mas. and ei fem. placed before finite verbs with consonant initials govern the radical.

b) Ei mas. placed before infinitive verbs with consonant initials governs the middle; but ei fem. governs the aspirate.

c) Ei mas. and ei fem. placed before finite verbs with vowel initials require the aspirate h to be prefixed to the said verbs.

d) Ei fem. placed before infinitive verbs with vowel initials requires the aspirate h to be prefixed to the said verbs: but ei mas. does not.

545. Fy, dy, yth, and eich, do not take the aspirate after them.

Fy iaith, my language.

Ti a'rh iaith, thou and thy language.

Dy iaith, thy language.

Eich iaith, your language.

DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

546. Demonstrative pronouns are used either by themselves, or in construction with nouns.

547. When joined to nouns or nouns and their concomitants, they take the last place, and the nouns will always be preceded by an article or its equivalent; as.

Y gwr hwn=the man this.

Fy mab hwn=my son this.

Nis goddef ein corff hwn i ni fod yu philosophyddion iawn.—M. W.

Y llafur blin yma.

Ein blin gaethiwed hwn.

(a) So in Irish. "An fear so"=the man this.

548. A singular noun with any numeral adjective above one requires the demonstrative to be in the plural number.

Y tri dyn hyn, these three men. Y ddau lyfr hyny, those two books.

549. Hyn, hyny, &c. [See §§ 195–200.] The singulars hyn, hyny, &c., this, that, are not, like hwn, hon, &c., put in construction with substantives (e.g., y dyn hwn, y ddyns hon): but are employed when reference is made to a circumstance, a sentence, or part of a sentence, expressed, or understood by the person spoken to.

a) Expressed. The sentence referred to may either precede or follow the clause of which hyn, &c., is a part.

Ni ddaeth fy nghyfaill : hyn sydd yn fy ngofidlo.

My friend came not : this vexes me.

Hyn yw'r cwbl a ddywedais, na ddeuen yno.

This is all I said, that I would not come there.

b) Understood.

Hyn sydd gyfiawnder. this is justice. Hyn yw ei werth, this is its value.
Hyn yw eich ymddygiad, this is your conduct. Hyn yw ei faint, this is its size.

Clodforaf di o herwydd i ti wneuthur hyn. Ps. lii. 9.

Heblaw hyn, besides this.

Fel hyn, in this manner.

O ran hyny, as to that.

Ar hyny, upon that.

(a) In the colloquial language of S. W., hyn and hyny are put in construction with substantives, and are of common gender; i.e., they are employed for hwn, hwnw, and hon, hono. Y llyfr hyn=y llyfr hwn, this book. Y fraich hyn=y fraich hon, this arm.

(b) In written language they are often used for hwn and hwnw after the word peth, a thing, and after some words expressive of time, especially pryd. Y peth hyn=y peth hwn, this thing. Y pryd hyny=y pryd hwnw, that time.

550. Hyn, hyny, &c., followed by the prep. o, are often found before words expressive of quantity or number.

Hyn o beth=this of a thing; this much. Hyn o dân, this much fire.

Hyn o wair. Hyn o lyfrau. Hyn o ddefaid.

Ar hyn o amser cyfarwydda a llywia.—Com. Prayer.

551. Dyma and dyna, which must always take precedence in the clause, may be substituted for hyn, hyny, &c., as nominative or object of a verb, dyma (=that) referring to what has gone before, and dyna (=this) to what is coming.

Dyma a ddywedir, ei fod yn euog o'r trosedd.

This is what is said, that he is guilty of the offence.

Dyna a ddywedais, ei fod yn euog o'r trosedd.

That is what I said, that he was guilty of the offence.

(a) Dyna and dyna are in most instances equivalent to a subject and a copula. Dyna eich ymddygiad=hym yw eich ymddygiad. Dyna'r cwbl a ddywedais=hyma yw'r cwbl a ddywedais.

RELATIVE PRONOUNS. See "Relative Clause."

INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS. See "Interrogative Clause."

INDEFINITE OR ADJECTIVE PRONOUNS. [§§ 213-218.]

552. Ambell = some few, is usually followed by a singular noun or substantive word. [But we say ambell rai.]

Ambell waith, sometimes.

(a) In colloquial language it is often followed by i; as "ambell i waith;" but this is not considered grammatically correct.

553. Amryw and amrai (noun and adj.) = several, divers, are plural.

Yr oedd amryw wedi dyfod yng nghyd, several had come together.
Amryw olchiadau, divers washings.

Amryw, adj., is sometimes followed by a noun in the singular.

Amryw fath, divers kinds. Amryw fesur, divers measures.

(a) Amrai is seldom used except by pedantic writers.

554. Cyfryw and fath (noun and adj.) = such, are both sing. and pl. They are for the most part preceded by y.

Y cyfryw ddyn, such a man. Y gyfryw weithred, such an act.

Y fath lyfr, such a book. Y fath beryglon, such dangers.

Y cyfryw ag a ddelont, such as may come. Y fath ag ydynt, such as they are.

(a) Math (or báth) is always softened after the article. Y fath ddyn, such a man. Y fath ddynes, such a woman. Y fath ddynion, such men.

(b) Some maintain that cyfryw should retain the radical after the article, even when in construction with a fem. noun sing. "Y cyfryw wledd nefol," such a heavenly feast.—Com. Prayer.

(c) Y is omitted when y fath and y cyfryw are preceded by "yn apposition." Y mae efe yn fath gybydd, he is such a miser.

Fath (= sort), preceded by pa, forms an interrogative.

Pa fath ddynion ydynt? what sort of men are they?

555. Dim (noun and adj.) = any; anything.

As a noun it implies quantity and number,—if number it is plural.

As an adjective, when qualifying nouns of quantity, abstract nouns, &c., it is singular; when qualifying numeral objects, it is plural.

Dim, preceded by a negative, is = no or not any; nothing, none or not any.

A oes dim bai ynddo? is there any fault in him?

Cyn bod dim cymmanfäau, before there were any assemblies.

Nid oes dim yn yr ardd, there is nothing or none in the garden.

Y mae genych chwi wyau; nid oes genyf fi ddim, you have eggs; I have none.

Nid wyf fi yn cael dim bai yn y dyn hwn, I find no fault in this man.

A . . dim? with emphasis on dim, is = no or not any? nothing, none or not any?

A oes genych chwi DDIM bara? have you no bread?

A oes ganddo ef DDIM ar ei helw? has he nothing in his possession?

In answers to questions the negative and verb are often omitted, and then dim is = nothing.

Beth a gawsoch chwi? Dim (= ni chfais ddim).

What did you get? Nothing (= I got nothing).

Dim is used as an auxiliary adverb in negative sentences, to strengthen the negation. [§ 689.]

Ni ddaeth efe ddim, he did not come. Nid wyf ddim yn iach, I am not well.

556. Holl and oll = all, whole, differ in that holl precedes, and oll follows, the noun. Each “takes a sing. or pl. noun, according as it means every part of one whole, or every individual of one species.

Y byd oll, yr holl fyd = the whole world.

Y dinasoedd oll, yr holl ddinasoedd = all the cities.”¹

Oll is sometimes used with an ellipsis of the substantive word with which it agrees.

Daethant oll yma (unders. hwy), they all came here.

Ac oll sydd ynddynt (unders. yr hyn), and all that is in them.

Oll, preceded by yr, stands for a substantive word, noting number and quantity = all.

Mae’r oll o honynt yn dra defnyddiol, all of them are very useful.

557. Llauer = many, much.

When llauer is immediately followed by a sing. noun, it refers to number, and is = many a.

Llauer dyn, many a man. [But we say “llauer rhai.”]

When it is followed by "o" (of), it may refer to number or quantity; if to quantity, the following noun is singular; if to number, the noun is plural.

Llawer o win, much wine. Llawer o afalau, many apples.

When it is used by itself it takes a pl. verb, like many in English.

Llawer a farnant fel hyn, many think thus.

558. Ychydig = a few, a little (following the verb); = few, but few, little, but little (preceding the verb.)

A'm clust a dderbyniodd ychydig o hono, and mine ear received a little thereof. Job iv. 12.

Ychydig sy'n bwriadu myned, few intend to go.

When referring to quantity, &c., it takes a sing. noun with or without o.

Ychydig win, ychydig o win, little wine.

Ychydig lesâd, ychydig o lesâd, little benefit.

When referring to numerical objects, it takes a plural noun, with or without o.

Ychydig ddynion, ychydig o ddynion, a few men.

559. Peth (noun and adj.) = some, noting quantity. It is strictly a noun, signifying a thing, something; but it is often used where the word "some" would be employed in English. [Cf. L. aliquid: "aliquid boni."]

Peth daioni a gaed ynddo (= something of good), some good was found in him.

Y mae genyf fi beth, ond nid oes genych chwi ddim, I have some, but you have none.

560. Naill = the one, and y llall = the other, pl. y lleill = the others, are correlatives.

Cymmer y naill neu y llall, take the one or the other.

[Naill is also a conjunction, and followed by ai. Naill ai tyred neu aros gartref, either come or stay at home.]

561. Pob = every. (a) It is most usually followed by a noun in the singular; as, pob dyn, every man. (b) But when signifying every sort or kind, it may have a pl. noun after it.

Ac efe a gedwis lawer o bob anifeiliaid = all sorts of animals.

562. Pawb = all, all men, all persons, is plural, and should not be followed by a noun.

Pawb a ddywedant hyn, all say this.

(a) Some writers erroneously consider it as the plural of the adjective pwb, and hence write "pwb dynion," &c.

563. Rhyw (adj.) = some, some sort of, noting a person or thing, but not specific and definite. It precedes a sing. or plural noun.

Rhyw ŵr, some man. Rhyw wŷr, some men.

564. Rhai (noun and adj.) = some, noting a number of persons or things. It is always plural.

Rhai dynion, some men. Rhai a aethant, some went.

When accompanied by an adjective, it is equivalent to "ones" in English.

Rhyw rai, some (ones). Y rhai goludog, the wealthy (ones).

When preceded by y, and not attended by an adjective, it is used as a relative pronoun (pl. of yr hwn and yr hon).

Y gwŷr, y rhai a ddaethant, the men, who came.

565. Sawl¹ = many; whoever. When preceded by pa (but pa is frequently left out) and followed by a noun, it forms a question.

Pa sawl gwaith, or sawl gwaith? how many times?

When preceded by y and not followed by a noun, it is a relative pronoun.

Y sawl a ddelont, whoever or such as may come.

566. Un = one, any.

Un, "one," a definite numeral.

Y mae yma un, there is one here. Nid oes yma ond un ddafad, there is only one sheep here.

In a negative sentence it is frequently preceded by yr. Nid oes yr un ddafad yn y cac, there is not one sheep in the field.

Un, "any" (and "a" or "an" when = "any"), indefinite numeral, is generally preceded by yr. Preceded by a negative, it is = no, not any, none.

Gellid gweled nas meddai yr un galon, it could be seen that he had no heart.—Ellis Wynne.

Nid adwaen i yr un, I know not any. Is. xliv. 8.

Ni chollais i yr un, I have lost none. S. John xviii. 9.

Nac yr un o'th anifeiliaid, nor any of thy cattle. Deut. v. 14.

¹ Sawl was originally a substantive = "copia," "multitudo," as explained by Zeuss, Gram. Celtica, p. 408.

A . . yr un ? with emphasis on yr un, is = no ? not one ?

A oes ganddi hi YR UN ? has she not one ?

Yr un = the one ; the same ; whosoever.

Efe yw'r un a welais ddoe, he is the one I saw yesterday.

Hi a ddywedodd yr un geiriau drachefn, she said the same words again.

Yr un a ddelo a wobrwyr, he who comes shall be rewarded.

(a) When yr un is equivalent to "the same," it may agree with a singular or plural noun. Yr un llyfr, the same book. Yr un llyfrau, the same books.

567. Unrhyw = any ; the same, is both sing. and plural.

Cymmeraf unrhyw beth (or bethau) a fynoch, I will take anything you like.

Nid oes unrhyw ciriau yn yr iaith nas gall eu swnio, there are no words in the language that he cannot pronounce.

Nid yw pob cnawd unrhyw gnawd, all flesh is not the same flesh.

568. Neb = anybody, any one.

Neb refers to persons, and is generally singular.

Od oes neb yn caru y byd, if any one loves the world.

Neb, preceded by a negative, is = nobody, no one, none.

Ac nid oes iachawdwr iaeth yn neb arall, neither is there salvation in any other. Acts iv. 12.

A . . neb ? with emphasis on neb, is = nobody ? no one ?

A oes NEB yn y ty ? is there nobody in the house ?

In answers to questions the negative and verb are often omitted, and then neb is = nobody, no one.

Pwy a welsoch chwi ? Neb (= ni welais neb).

Whom did you see ? No one (= I saw no one).

(a) Neb is strictly a substantive pronoun, and hence should stand by itself. Yet we sometimes find a noun or substantive word following it, both in composition of words and separately.

Nebawd, nobody; nebdyn, no person; neble, no place; nebrhyw, no, any.

Ac nad elom mewn neb rhyw berygl.—Common Prayer.

Na chymmeradwywn neb rhyw swyddogion nad ydynt yn medru iaith y wlad.—Carnhuanawc.

Compare Cornish. "Dre neb ffordd" (= drwy neb ffordd), through some way.

Neb, preceded by y, forms a relative = whoever.

Y neb a wnelo hyn, whoever does this thing.

568 (1). Tipyn = a little. When a noun follows, tipyn is accompanied by o.

Y mae genym dipyn, we have a little.

Tipyn o wair ac o ffd, a little hay and corn.

568 (2). Chwaneg (or ychwaneg), rhagor = more, any more: mwyr = more. If a noun follows, these words are accompanied by o.

Ni chymmerai efe ychwaneg, he would not take any more.

Nid oes gan yr eneth ragor o gnau, the girl has no more nuts.

Rhoddais fwy na gwerth y tir, I gave more than the value of the land.

568 (3). Cymmaint = as much, as many: cynnifer = as many. When a noun follows, they are accompanied by o.

Y mae ganddo gymmaint, os nad mwyr, he has as much or as many, if not more.

Cymmaint o drafferth, as much trouble. Cynnifer o dyddynod, as many farms.

568 (4). Gormod = too much, too many. It is accompanied by o, if a noun follows.

Y mae gormod cyn waethed a rhy fach, too much is as bad as too little.

Yr ydych yn cadw gormod o gŵn, you keep too many dogs.

568 (5). Nemmawr (always with a negative) = not much, not many; scarcely or hardly any.

Nid oes nemmawr air nad yw efe yn ei ddeall, there is scarcely a word that he does not understand.

Nid oedd nemmawr o'r dynion yn foddllawn, scarcely any of the men were willing.

568 (6). Fawr (always with a negative) = not much or many; little or few. If a noun follows, it is generally accompanied by o.

Nid oes genyf fawr, I have not much.

Nid oes fawr o goed yma, there are not many trees here.

(a) Fawr (which is probably a contraction of nemmawr) is always in the middle sound.—[Welsh Exercises, Ch. 27.]

568 (7). Arall = another, other, pl. ereill = other, others. They are nouns and adjectives: when adjectives they always follow the nouns which they qualify.

Arall a ddaeth ar ei ol, another came after him.

Clywais yr un peth gan ereill, I heard the same thing from others.

A'r coelbren arall dros y bŵch diangol, and the other lot for the scape-goat. Lev. xvi. 8.

Neillduais chiwi oddi wrth bobl ereill, I have separated you from other people. Lev. xx. 24.

(a) Un arall is now more common than the noun arall, and is preferable when in the poss. after a sing. noun; and rhai ereill is preferable to the noun ereill when in the poss. after a plural noun. "Gwas un arall," another man's servant. "Gweision rhai ereill," other men's servants.

VERBS.

569. Agreement.—Nom. preceding.—When the nominative case precedes the verb, the verb will agree with it in number and person ; as,

Myfi a ddywedais, I said.
 Tydi a ddywedaist, thou saidst.
 Efe a ddywedodd, he said.
 Duw a ddywedodd, God said.
 Hwyl a ddywedasant, they said.
 Y dynion a ddywedasant, the men said.

(a) This rule regards only propositions of simple narration ; for when there is antithesis, or when particular emphasis is to be laid on some part of the sentence, the verb may disagree with its nom. both in number and person, as will be seen hereafter. But even in simple narration a verb in the singular number is often joined to a plural nominative.

Gerddi a gweunydd gynll eu gwawr.—D. Davies.
 A dieifl a'i teifl yn y tân.—Gor. Owen.

570. Verb preceding.—When the nominative case is a noun and follows the verb, then the verb is put in the third person singular, whether the nominative be singular or plural ; as,

Daeth y disgybl, the disciple came.
Daeth y disgyblion, the disciples came.

571. “When, however, several verbs are coupled together, and the nom. to the first is the nom. to all the others, then though the first verb be singular with a plural nom. in accordance with the above law, yet the nom. being now known, all the other verbs will be plural ; as,

Crynodd y ceidwaid, ac aethant megys yn feirw, the keepers trembled, and became as dead.”¹

572. When the nom. case is a pronoun, whether preceding or following the verb, the verb will agree with it in number and person ; as,

Efe a ddaeth ; daeth efe, he came.
 Hwyl a ddaethant ; daethant hwyl, they came.

573. A collective noun is sometimes followed by a singular, and sometimes by a plural verb ; as,

A lliaws a ddaeth, and a multitude came.
 A'r holl lliaws a leasant, and the whole multitude cried out.

574. A singular noun with a numeral adjective (except un) is followed by a plural verb ; as,

Y ddau ddisgybl a'i clywsant ef yn llefaru, the two disciples heard him speak.

575. When two or more singular nouns are connected together by a copulative conjunction, they are usually followed by a plural verb : sometimes by a singular ; as,

Pedrac Ioan a atebasant, Peter and John answered.

Arthur a Dafydd a orchfygasant y gelynyon.

Moses ac Elias a ymddangosodd iddynt.

(a) Strictly speaking, the verb should not be put in the singular except when the assertion is true of the nom. cases taken severally.

“ Pedr ac Ioan a aeth ” = ‘ Pedr a aeth,’ and ‘ Ioan a aeth.’

576. When pronouns of different persons, or pronouns and substantives, are coupled together by copulative conjunctions, the verb, if following, will be in the plural number, and refer to the nom. of the most worthy person.

The 1st person is more worthy than the 2nd ; and the 2nd than the 3rd.

Myfi a thithau a awn.

Tydi ac yntau a ewch.

Mi a'm tylwyth a wasanaethwn yr Arglwydd. Josh. xxiv. 15.

577. If the verb precede its nominatives, it will be made to agree in number and person with the one next to it ; as,

Aethym i a thithau. Aethost ti ac yntau. Aethom ni a chwithau.

578. When antithesis or opposition is implied in the nominative case, the verb, following it, is put in the third person singular, for all numbers and persons. This construction will be rendered into English by ‘ it is,’ or (in questions) ‘ is it,’ with a relative sentence, or by emphasising the nominative.

Myfi a usgrifnodd y llythyr lwn, (it is) I (who) wrote this letter.

Tydi a wnaeth hyn. Ai chwydychwi ynte eich cefndyr a ddaw ?

579. Similarly, words connected by disjunctive conjunctions are followed by the third person singular of the verb, for all numbers and persons ; as,

Naill ai tydi ai myfi a ddynwedodd hyn.

Naill ai chwydychwi neu y gwŷr hyn a ddynwedodd.

580. Position.—The position of words in a sentence depends on the emphasis intended to be laid on them. In Welsh, as in other languages, the most important word takes precedence. In ordinary discourse, when no particular emphasis is intended to be expressed, or where the verb, as being the main part of the clause, may be regarded as emphatic, the order will stand thus : verb, subject, predicate or object.

Penodir Arthur yn frenin, Arthur will be appointed king.
Gwnaeth Duw y byd. Ni wnaeth y brenin ddeddf.

So in Irish. "The verb in Gaelic commonly holds the first place; the nominative, which denotes the subject, the second; the accusative, which denotes the object, the last."—Bourke's Ir. Gr. § 257.

(a) In English the case is quite the reverse. "Shines forth the cheerful sun," is said to be rhetorically arranged, whereas, in Welsh, "Ymddysgleiria'r heulwen oleu," is arranged conventionally.

(b) If the predicate is definite, the copula cannot take precedence, but the order must be either subject, copula, predicate, or predicate, copula, subject. Arthur oedd eich cyfaill, or, Eich cyfaill oedd Arthur, Arthur was your friend. [Never, yr oedd Arthur eich cyfaill.]

581. Some clauses will always have this order (§ 580), whether they be simple or emphatic; such as,

Imper. Bydded goleuadau, let there be lights.
Interr. made by a. A wnaeth y brenin ddeddf?
Time. Pan wnaeth y brenin ddeddf.
Motive. Fel y gwnelo y brenin ddeddf.

582. When the verb is periphrastic, the subject, in ordinary discourse, intervenes between the auxiliary and the other part; as,

Y mae y brenin yn dyfod, the king is coming.

(a) Cf. the English interrogative, "Do riches make men happy?"

583. But if the principal part of the periphrastic verb (i.e., the infinitive or participle) is antithetical, the order of the clause is infinitive, auxiliary verb, subject.

Dyfod y mae'r brenin=coming is the king. Gweu yr oedd y wraig.
Beth y mae Arthur yn ei wneyd? Dyrnu y mae.
Dywedyd yr ydwyf y pethau a wnaethym i'r brenin. Ps. xlv. 1.

(a) When the sentence is thus arranged, the participial sign yn is dismissed. Dyfod [not yn dyfod] y mae. But wedi of the perfect, and ar and ar fedr of the future, are retained. Wedi cychwyn y mae. Ar gychwyn y mae.

584. When the subject of the clause is antithetical, the order of construction will be subject, verb, predicate or object.

Arthur a benodir yn frenin. Duw a wnaeth y byd.
Y brenin sydd yn dyfod. Nid y brenin a wnaeth ddeddf.

(a) Good critics are of opinion that this arrangement should be adopted only when the subject of the verb is antithetical, as above; yet many Welsh writers (and especially translators) continually express ordinary discourse in this manner. Occasionally, indeed, this construction is elegantly used, especially when a series of similar clauses follow one another, and where the same order of words would render the sentences too monotonous.

(b) If the subject is a personal pronoun, it is continually, in affirmative sentences, put before the verb, even when the subject is not antithetic. Mi a glywais y chwedl yna o'r blaen, I heard that story before.

585. When the predicate, or the object of the verb is antithetic, the clause will be thus arranged: predicate or object, verb, subject.

Yn frenin y penodir Arthur. Y byd a wnaeth Duw.
Dyfod y mae y brenin. [See § 583.] Nid deddf a wnaeth y brenin.

586. Some clauses will always be arranged according to the order in the two preceding rules, irrespective of emphasis; as,

Rel. { Arthur, yr hwn a'm tarawodd i.
 { Arthur, yr hwn a darewais i.
Interr. made by { Ai Arthur a'm tarawodd i?
 ai and onid. { Ai Arthur a darewais i?
Nominal Interr. made { Pwy a'm tarawodd i?
 by pwy, &c. { Pwy a darewais i?

587. For the sake of still greater emphasis and vivacity, a sentence may be thus arranged: subject, predicate or object, verb; or verb, predicate or object, subject; or we may completely transpose the conventional order, and have predicate or object, subject, verb.

Pob elfen ufudd-dod a roes, }
Rhocs ufudd-dod pob elfen, } every element obeyed.
Ufudd-dod pob elfen a roes, }

588. Thus, in accordance with the foregoing observations on position, the same sentence may be arranged in six different ways.

- | | |
|--|-----------------------------|
| a) Penodir Arthur yn frenin. | } Simple. |
| Rhocs pob elfen ufudd-dod. | |
| b) Arthur a benodir yn frenin. | } Somewhat emphatic. |
| Pob elfen a roes ufudd-dod. | |
| c) Yn frenin y penodir Arthur. | } Rhetorical. |
| Ufudd-dod a roes pob elfen. | |
| d) Arthur yn frenin a benodir. | |
| Pob elfen ufudd-dod a roes. | |
| e) Yn frenin Arthur a benodir. | |
| Ufudd-dod pob elfen a roes. ¹ | |
| f) Penodir yn frenin Arthur. | } |
| Rhocs ufudd-dod pob elfen. | |

¹ Or ufudd-dod, pob elfen a'i rhocs.

589. Government.—When the subject immediately follows a finite verb, it retains its radical initial ; as,

Daetn gwr dieithr ataf, a stranger came to me.
Cerir dyn fyddlawn, a faithful man is beloved.

(a) Mi, ti, and their compounds, take the middle sound ; as, caraf fi ; cerir finnau ; ceri di ; cerir dithau. [See “Personal Pronouns.”]

(b) Some tenses of the verb bod, and especially oes, when preceded by a negative adverb, are sometimes followed by their subject in the middle sound ; as,

Yn yr hwn nid oes dwyll, in whom there is no guile.
Efe a weddiodd na byddai wlaw. S. James v. 17.
Nid oes air o son am gael meddiant o un cwr.—Theo. Evans.

590. A finite verb governs its object in the middle ; an infinitive verb governs its object in the radical sound ; as,

Finite. Gwnawn ddyn, let us make man.
Ceisiaf ddyfod, I will endeavour to come.

Infin. Ofni dyn, to fear man.
Ceisio dyfod, to endeavour to come.

591. The pronoun ti and its compounds are softened after the infinitive.

Y mae yn dy garu di, he loves you. [See “Pers. Pronouns.”]

592. An infinitive verb, heading a transitive clause (= that with a finite verb), is put in the middle sound, whether the verb on which it depends be finite or infinitive. [The transitive clause will be explained hereafter.]

Efe a ddywed ddarllen o hono y llyfr, he says that he read the book.
Dywedir ddarllen o hono y llyfr, it is said that he read the book.
Y mae yn dweyd ddarllen o hono y llyfr, he says that he read the book.

593. But the verb bod, even when it introduces a transitive clause, and is equivalent to that with a finite verb, is by many writers put in the radical or middle, according as the verb, on which it depends, is a finite active verb ; or a finite passive, or an infinitive ; i.e., it is put in the middle sound after a finite active ; but in the radical after a finite passive or an infinitive verb.

Efe a ddywed fod Arthur yn darllen,
Dywedir bod Arthur yn darllen,
Y mae yn dweyd bod Arthur yn darllen, } that Arthur is reading.

(a) This may have arisen from want of due observation of the different meanings of bod. In the sentence, “Yr wyf yn bwriadu bod yno,” bod implies simply “to be,” and should retain its radical initial. In the sentence, “Yr wyf yn meddwl bod Arthur yno,” bod signifies “that . . . is,” and should, according to analogy, have its soft form ‘fod.’

594. If the subject or the object, following the verb, be separated from it by an intervenient word or phrase, the subject or the object will be put in the middle sound.¹ The expression 'an intervenient word or phrase,' which is here used for want of a more suitable term, stands for—

a) An adverb.

Yr oedd yno ddynion dewr, there were there brave men.
Tynu ymaith bechodau. Bwrw allan gythreuliaid.

b) *A word governed by a preposition.*²

Yr oedd yn y synagog ddyn, there was in the synagogue a man.
Y sychedig yn tynu o'r ffynnon ddyfroedd iechydwrïaeth.
Ni a ddylem alw i gof fywyd Crist.—Nieander.
Rhoddwyd iddo bin ysgrifenydd buan.—W. Davies.

c) An address or exclamation.

Yr wyf yn bwriadu, gyfaill, ddyfod i'th weled, I intend, friend, to come to see you.

d) An apposition word.

Yr oedd yn bresennol feddygon medrus, there were present skilful physicians.

e) An auxiliary verb.

Ceisio y maent dduwiau ereill, they seek other gods.
Cadw yr ydys ddeddfau Omri, the statutes of Omri are kept.

595. When an infinitive is the subject, and is separated from its verb by a predicative noun or adjective, unaccompanied by a preposition and its case, or by a phrase, the subject-infinitive will retain its radical sound.

Mae yn anhawdd dweyd, it is difficult to say.
Mae yn rhaid myned, there is need to go.

(a) "But if a word, which of its own nature requires another form, comes between the subject or the object and the verb, then the subject or the object will take that form which this word requires."³

Gwelais ei gwr, I saw her husband.
Gwelais yno dy frawd, I saw there thy brother.

¹ This rule is sometimes violated in poetical works, and occasionally in prose; the word being made to retain its radical sound, whereas it ought to be put in the middle.

"Ni phrofais dan ffurfafen Gwe mor gaeth a'r Gymraeg wen."—E. Prys. [Gwe for we.]

"Trwy gyfrwyddaw yn hydda pob rhyw ansawdd."—Henri Perri. [Pob for bob.]

² Pronominal prepositions are here included.

³ Dr. Davies.

Auxiliary affirmative particles.

Auxiliary affirmative pronouns. [See §§ 519, 520.]

596. The auxiliary affirmative adverbs are a, y, yr (ydl, ydd).

A is used before the verb when the nom. or accus. of the verb precedes; as,

Duw a greodd y byd, God created the world.

Y dyn, yr hwn a darewaist ti, the man whom you struck.

597. Y, yr (and formerly ydl and ydd) are used when the nom. and accus. follow the verb, but some other part of the sentence precedes it; as,

Yna y dywedodd *e*fe = then (it was) he said.

I'r pentref acw yr aeth *e*fe.

(a) A governs the middle sound. Y is used before a consonant, and followed by the radical: yr is put before a vowel.

* * * For further explanation of auxiliary affirmative adverbs, see Syntax of "Adverbs." [§ 699.]

598. The use of Possessive Pronouns before Verbs.—There is a peculiar idiom in Welsh of employing the possessive pronouns before verbs; a point in which the language differs essentially from the Greek, Latin, and English. These possessives, or, as they are called by some, "introductory pronouns," are for the most part used in connection with personal pronouns. Sometimes they serve as harbingers indicating that another pronoun is to follow; and sometimes they reflect on a word that has gone before in the sentence. In some places they are apparently redundant; but when they are employed in a certain case before the infinitive mood, they perform an important office, namely, that of converting active verbs and active participles into passive.

599. These pronouns, when placed before verbs, generally suffer an elision, and are thus written:

SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
1	2	3	1	2	3
'm	'th	'i (or 'w, as i'w)	'n	'ch	'u (or 'w, as i'w)
for	for	for	for	for	for
Ym	yth	ei.	ein	eich	eu.

600. Before Transitive Verbs.—When a personal pronoun is the object of a verb (whether finite or infinitive), and immediately follows it, a corresponding possessive is placed immediately before the verb, indicating that a personal pronoun is to follow. The participles, being compounds of the infinitive, are here included.

Duw a'n gwnaeth ni, God made us.

Arthur a'th garodd di, Arthur loved thee.

Yr eneth ni'm gwel i, the girl sees me not.

Addawodd Arthur fy nysgu i, Arthur promised to teach me.

Rhag iddo eich dyfetha chi, lest he should destroy you.

Y mae Arthur yn ei charu hi, Arthur loves her.

Duw sydd yn fy nghynnal i, God supports me.

Gan ei rwygo ef, tearing him. Wedi ei daraw ef, having struck him.

Compare Breton. "Me ez gar" (= mi a'th garaf), I love thee. "Te am c'har" (= ti a'm ceri), thou lovest me.—Archæologia Britannica, p. 194.

(a) When the possessive precedes, the personal pronoun is usually omitted, unless it is to be emphatic. (Duw a'n gwnaeth. Arthur a'th garodd. Y mae Arthur yn ei charu.)

(b) If the reflexive hun or hunan, self, be the object of the verb, the introductory possessive is by some employed, by others omitted; thus we may say, Arthur a laddodd ei hun, or Arthur a'i (= a ei) lladdodd ei hun, Arthur killed himself.

Yr ydym yn ein twyllo ein hunain. 1 S. John i. 8.

Yn eu galw eu hunain yn Gristionogion.—Com. Prayer.

601. When the object of the infinitive takes precedence in the clause, a possessive pronoun will be inserted immediately before the infinitive. In this case the object may be a noun as well as a personal pronoun.

602. The poss. pron. agrees with the preceding objective in number and gender; but the third person is always to be used. [This is a case in which the possessive does not indicate that a pers. pron. is to follow.]

Y dyn hwn yr wyf yn ei garu.

Os myfi yr ydych yn ei geisio.

Y fenyw hon yr wyf yn ei charu.

Os tydi y maent yn ei geisio.

Y rhai y medraf eu darllen.

603. When the auxiliary particles y and yr precede the verb (in which case the subject follows the verb), the possessive pronoun may or may not be expressed. When it is, the objective personal pronoun is generally omitted; when it is not, the personal pronoun should always be expressed.

Possessive expressed.

Yno y'm daliasant.

Fel y'n gwaredai.

Possessive omitted.

Yno y daliasant fi.

Fel y gwaredai ni.

(a) When the possessive is expressed, the subject coming after the verb is almost invariably omitted. Yno y'm daliasant,—not, yno y'm daliasant hwy. Such construction as the following is rare. "Pan y'm hamgylchyno anwiredd fy sodlau," when the wickedness of my heels compasseth me round about. Ps. xlix. 5. "Pan yr amgylchyno anwiredd fy sodlau fi" would be more intelligible.

(b) In the above cases some write ym, yth, ei, ein, eich, eu, without a mark of contraction; others employ an apostrophe, and write y'm, y'th, y'i, y'n, y'ch, y'u. While the former mode is the more common, the latter is certainly the more correct; for, as it is evident, the particle y is in the above construction present before each of the pronouns. “Yno y'm daliasant,” there they caught me, would be written at full length, “Yno y ym daliasant.”

604. The same rule (§ 603) is applicable to a negative sentence, when the subject follows the verb, expressed or understood. [§ 603 (a).]

Possessive expressed.

Ni'th gerais, I loved thee not.
Ni'm carodd, he loved me not.

Possessive omitted.

Ni cherais di.
Ni charodd fi.

(a) But when the 3rd person is the object of an active verb, or the subject of a passive verb, the possessive is never placed before the verb in a negative preposition.

Ni cherais ef, I loved him not. Ni charasom hwynt, we loved them not.
Ni cherir ef, he is not loved. Ni cherir hwynt, they are not loved.

605. Before Intransitive and Passive Verbs.—We have seen that the possessives are employed before transitive verbs in connection with words (especially pers. pronouns) in the objective case; but they are employed before intransitive and passive verbs in connection with words (especially pers. pronouns) in the nominative case.

606. a) Intransitive Verbs.—The verb Bod, and other intransitive verbs, when used in the infinitive as the main verbs of a clause, are often followed by their subject; and if, in this case, the subject be a pers. pronoun, the infinitive will always be preceded by a corresponding possessive.

Dywed fy mod i yn gywir, he says that I am right.
Dywed dy fod di yn darllen, he says that you are reading.
O herwydd ei fod ef yn dyfod, because [that] he is coming.
Dywed ei fyned ef i'r dref, he says that he is gone to town.

607. b) Passive Verbs.—The possessives are placed before passive verbs, when these verbs precede their subjects (expressed or understood), and are themselves preceded by other words.

Fe'm dysgir i, or fe'm dysgir, I am taught.
Pan y'm dysgir i, or pan y'm dysgir, when I am taught.
Fel y'm dysgir i, or fel y'm dysgir, that I may be taught.

608. The Infinitive Passive.—The infinitive passive is formed by placing before the simple infinitive a possessive pronoun, corresponding to the noun or pronoun which would be the subject, if the infinitive were analysed, and expressed by a finite verb. For example, in the expression "I came to be taught," to be taught is equivalent to 'that I might be taught:' here the subject of the infin. is the same with that of the verb on which it depends. Again, in "I sent him to be taught." to be taught is equivalent to 'that he might be taught:' here the subject of the infin. is the same with the object of the main verb. Hence

609. If, in Welsh, the governing verb be intransitive, the infinitive will be preceded by a poss. pronoun corresponding to the subject of the governing verb.

Mi a ddaethym i'm dysgu = I came to my teaching; to be taught = that I might be taught.

610. If the governing verb be transitive, the infinitive will be preceded by a poss. pronoun, corresponding to the object of the governing verb.

Anfonais ef i'w ddysgu = I sent him to his teaching; to be taught = that he might be taught.

611. The infinitive, having thus acquired a passive signification, will consequently not admit a personal pron. after it; so that the general difference in form between a transitive and a passive infinitive is, that the former has, and the latter has not, an objective personal pronoun. The pron. may or may not come after a transitive, according to the degree of emphasis required; but it can never come after a passive.

Transitive.	Daethym i'w ddysgu ef,	} I came to teach him.
	Daethym i'w ddysgu,
	Anfonais ef i'w ddysgu ef,	} I sent him to teach him.
	Anfonais ef i'w ddysgu,

Passive.	Daeth i'w ddysgu, he came to be taught.
	Anfonais ef i'w ddysgu, I sent him to be taught.

612. The auxiliary cael (to have) is very often borrowed to express the infinitive passive; and in modern Welsh it is more usual to express the infin. passive with cael than without it.

Mi a ddaethym i gael fy nysgu = I came to have my teaching; I came to be taught.

Anfonais ef i gael ei ddysgu = I sent him to have his teaching; that he might be taught.

* * The passive participles being formed from the passive infinitive by prefixing certain particles to them, fall under the preceding observation. [See § 307.]

612 (1). Subjunctive Mood.—The present Subjunctive, in subjoined clauses, accompanies the present, future, and perfect definite of the Indicative: the imperfect Subjunctive accompanies the imperfect, perfect indefinite, and pluperfect of the Indicative. Thus,

Yr wyf yn dyfod (pres.)	} fel y gwelwyf ef (pres. subj.)
Deuaf (future)
Yr wyf wedi dyfod (perf. def.)
Yr oeddwn yn dyfod (imperf.)	} fel y gwelwn ef (imperf. subj.)
Daethym (perf. indef.)
Daethwn (pluperfect)

612 (2). The verb is always put in the Subjunctive mood in the following clauses.

a) A motive clause, when headed by fel, fal, mal, modd, megys (in order that).

Af yno, fel y gwelwyf fy mrawd, that I may see my brother (pres.)

Aethym yno, fel y gwelwn fy mrawd, that I might see my brother (imp.)

b) A non-fact supposition , and its apodosis .

Byddwn ddedydd, pe byddai efe yma, I should be happy, if he were here (imperf.)

Aethwn yno, pe daethai efe gyda mi, I should have gone there, if he had come with me (plup.)

c) A wish clause.

Duw a'ch bendithio, may God bless you (pres.)

O na allwn ysgrifenu, would that I could write (imperf.)

O na welwn ef, would that I had seen him (plup.)

d) A negative transitive clause (or "a substantive accessory sentence"¹) after words implying commanding, &c.

Gorchymyn na chymmerwyf y llyfr, that I should not take the book (pres.)

Gorchymynodd na chymmerwn y llyfr, that I should not take the book (imperf.)

e) Generally in an indefinite time clause.

Hyd oni ddelo, till he may come (pres.) Hyd oni ddelai, till he might come (imperf.)

Pryd na chaffo. Crybwyll am danynt, pan eisteddych.

Pa bryd bynag yr efo. Pan y mynont.

Anhawdd yw genyf goelio hyny, hyd oni welwyf ychwaneg o eglurdeb.
—Gor. Owen.

f) Generally in an indefinite relative clause.

Y neb a hawo anwiredd, he that soweth iniquity (pres.) Prov. xxii. 8.

Pwy bynag a gredo. Dywedod Camden a fyfno.

Gwnaed fel y myno. Lle ni byddo cynghor. Prov. xi. 14.

612 (3). And when the state or fact, enunciated by the verb, is contingent in signification, the following clauses will have their verbs in the Subjunctive.

a) A transitive clause.

Dywedodd y byddai yno, that he would be there (imperf.)

Dywedodd y buasai yno, that he would have been there (plup.)

Barnodd mai cyfiawn fyddai hyn (imperf.) : fuasai hyn (plup.)

b) A cause clause.

O herwydd y byddai [buasai] hyny yn golled, because that would be a loss (imperf. and plup.)

O herwydd mai cyfiawn a fyddai [fuasai] hyny (imperf. and plup.)

c) An explanatory cause clause.

Canys hyny a fyddai [fuasai] yn golled, for that would be a loss (imperf. and plup.)

d) A concessive clause.

Er lleied y bo, though it be so small (pres.)

Er y byddai [buasai] hyny yn gywir (imperf. and plup.)

Er mai cyfiawn fyddai [fuasai] hyny (imperf. and plup.)

e) An effect clause.

Cymmaint oedd ei lid fel y lladdai [lladdasai] ei frawd, that he would kill his brother (imperf. and plup.)

f) An interrogative clause.

Pwy a ddeuai yma? who would come here? (imperf.)

Pwy byth a fuasai yn meddwl hyny? (plup.)

Onid gwych fyddai cael tipyn ychwaneg?—Gor. Owen.

THE VERB BOD, to be.

613. Difference between sydd, mae, yw, and oes.—The Welsh language has these four different forms to express the 3rd person Indicative of bod. Each form has its own place and import; so that one cannot be employed optionally for the other, without altering the construction of the sentence, and, in most cases, giving it a different signification.

614. General Rule.—Sydd is preceded by its subject, and followed by an indefinitive predicate: mae is followed by its subject and accompanied by an indefinitive predicate, and is never immediately preceded by a negative particle: oes is employed in neg. supp., and predicative interr. sentences, and is followed by its subject, which must be indefinitive: yw (or ydyw) is sometimes preceded and sometimes followed by its subject.

Arthur sydd yn filwr, Arthur is a soldier.
 Y mae Arthur yn filwr. Milwr yw Arthur.
 Nid oes arian ganddo. Yr hwn yw dy law.

Special Rules.

615. *Sydd*¹ is used when the emphasis is thrown on the subject, and has strictly an antithetical or exceptional force, equivalent to the English words "it is . . . that." It often, however, loses its antithetical force, being used in sentences where the copula implies simply 'is.'

(a) Sydd (sometimes written yssydd) is probably compounded of ys = is, and ydd = it, thus literally signifying is it or it is.

616. Sydd is preceded by its subject, and followed by an indefinitive word or predicate. [Order: subject, copula, predicate.]

Arthur sydd yn frenin, Arthur is a king.
 Arthur sydd yn ddoeth. Arthur sydd yma.
 Arthur sydd yn darllen. Arthur sydd yn y ty.

If a noun or an adjective is the predicate, it must be preceded by "yn apposition," either expressed or understood. Therefore, such sentences as the following, where yn is inadmissible, must be incorrect:—

- a) "Y neb sydd ganddo ddwy bais," he that hath two coats.
- b) "Pwy sydd arno fy eisieu," who wants me?
- c) "Beth sydd arnaf ei eisieu," what do I want?

The original forms of these sentences were probably the following:—

- a) "Y neb sydd â chanddo ddwy bais:" or, "Y neb sydd â dwy bais ganddo."
- b) "Pwy sydd arno â fy eisieu:" or, "Pwy sydd â fy eisieu arno?"
- c) "Beth sydd arnaf â'i eisieu?"

In constructions like the following, "yr hwn sydd hoff ganddo drawsder," who delighteth in wickedness, sydd is put for mae: "yr hwn y mae yn hoff ganddo drawsder."

617. If the predicate following the verb be definitive, yw will be substituted for sydd.

Indef. Arthur sydd yn frenin. Def. Arthur yw y brenin.

(a) The terms definitive and indefinitive should be explained here. By a definitive word is meant the definite article, either expressed or virtually implied in another word. In the sentence, "Arthur yw y brenin," the article is expressed; in "Arthur yw fy nrenin," it is implied in the pron. fy. An indefinitive word is that which has no article, either expressed or implied; e.g., adverbs, prepositions with their case, particles, and nouns and adjectives admitting 'yn apposition' before them.

618. Negation.—Particles of negation should immediately precede the words intended to be negated. In a sentence with sydd, the subject is usually the negated term. The particle will then immediately precede it; and as the verb is not affected by negative particles unless they immediately precede it, sydd will remain unchanged.

Affirm. Arthur sydd frenin. Neg. Nid Arthur sydd frenin.

Nid chwychwi sydd yn dywedyd, ond yr Ysbryd Glan. S. Mark xiii. 11.

619. Sometimes, however, the copula is the negated term, and as 'sydd' can never be immediately preceded by a negative particle, the copula yw (pl. ynt) is substituted for it.

Affirm. Yr hwn sydd yn caru. Neg. Yr hwn nid yw yn caru.

Cariad nid yw yn cennigennu. 1 Cor. xiii. 4.

A'r gwirionedd nid yw ynom. 1 S. John i. 8.

Arfau ein milwriaeth ni nid ydynt gnawdol. 2 Cor. x. 4.

(a) Another way of negating sydd is by retaining it, and adding "heb fod" (= without being); and in colloquial language "sydd ddim" occurs continually.—[Welsh Exercises, Ch. 12.]

Pwy sydd heb fod [pwysydd ddim] yn barod, who is not ready?

620. Suppositions introduced by od, os; and Interrogations introduced by a, onid, &c., require the same construction as negative clauses.

Os efe sydd yn gofyn, if it is he that asks.

Ai efe sydd yn dyfod, is it he that is coming?

621. Mae.—Mae is used when 'the emphasis is on the deed or fact announced by it.' It signifies 'is' and 'there is.'

622. a. Mae, signifying 'is,' is connected with yw. It must always precede its subject, and be accompanied by an indefinite word or predicate.

Y mae Arthur yn frenin.

Y mae Arthur yma.

Y mae Arthur yn ddoeth.

Y mae Arthur yn y ty.

Y mae Arthur yn darllen.

623. Position of Predicate.—The predicate usually comes after the subject, as in the foregoing examples. [Order: copula, subject, predicate.]

624. Sometimes it intervenes between the copula and the subject; as,

Y mae yn aros ffydd, gobaith, a chariad. 1 Cor. xiii. 13.

Mae yn angenrheidiol fod ynddi gyflawnder o eiriau.—Blackwell.

625. When mae is auxiliary, the accompanying participle and its dependents may precede it; or the object of the participle may precede, and the participle itself follow the copula.

Aros y mae ffydd. Ei geisio ef y mae Arthur.

Efe y mae Arthur yn ei geisio. Yr hwn y mae Arthur yn ei geisio.

(a) When the participle comes before the verb, 'yn participial' is left out. Thus we have "aros y mae ffydd," for "yn aros," &c.

626. If prepositions and their case, or adverbs of similar import, or conjunctive adverbs, begin the sentence, the copula is mae.

Yma y mae Arthur, Arthur is here.

Tra y mae hi yn ddydd.

Sut y mae Arthur?

At hwn y mae Arthur yn dyfod.

Pa le y mae Arthur yn myned?

Pan y mae yn dwyn.

Lle y mae Ysbryd yr Arglwydd, yno y mae rhyddid. 2 Cor. iii. 17.

Pa le y mae dy hen drugareddau? Ps. lxxxix. 49.

(a) The governing prep. is very frequently put after the verb. Both y mae yn gofyn am dano = what does he ask for?

627. If a noun or adjective, having 'yn apposition' before it, precede the copula, yn is sometimes retained, and the copula will be mae; but most usually yn is dropped, and then yw will be substituted for mae.

'Yn' retained. Yn frenin y mae Arthur, } Arthur is king.
'Yn' omitted. Brenin yw Arthur,

(a) With periphrastic verbs, yn is retained before the predicative noun or adjective. Yn frenin y mae Arthur yn cael ei benodi.

628. The subject of mae, if it be a pronoun, is frequently omitted; as,

Y mae [efe] yn gwaredu, he delivers.

629. In the Welsh Bible the words "pa le," where, are sometimes left out in an interrogative sentence which has mae for its copula; as,

Mae Abel dy frawd (=pa le y mae)? where is Abel thy brother?

Mae yr Arglwydd dy Dduw? where is the Lord thy God? Micah vii. 10.

Mae hwynt? mae dy ddoethion? where are they? where are thy wise men? Is. xix. 12.

630. Negation.—Mae is never immediately preceded by a negative particle: therefore, if in a negative proposition the copula is the term to be negated, yw will be substituted for mae.

Affirm. Y mae Arthur yn frenin.

Neg. Nid yw Arthur yn frenin.

Y mae Arthur yn rhyfela.

Nid yw Arthur yn rhyfela.

(a) But if a part of the sentence intervenes between the negative particle and the copula, mae is retained. Nid yma y mae Arthur. Nid darllen y mae efe.

631. Suppositions introduced by od and os, and Interrogations introduced by a and onid, require the same construction as negative propositions.

Supp. Os yw Arthur yn frenin, if Arthur is a king.

Interr. A ydyw Arthur yn frenin, is Arthur a king?

632. β. Mae, signifying 'there is,' is connected with oes, 'there is.' Both words occupy the same position as mae = is; i.e., they precede the subject, which must be indefinite (= some, any, &c.) Mae occurs in affirmative propositions; oes in negative propositions, in suppositions introduced by od and os, and in interrogations introduced by a and onid.

Affirm. Y mae ganddo arian.

Affirm. Y mae rhywun yn dyfod.

Neg. Nid oes ganddo arian.

Neg. Nid oes neb yn dyfod.

Supp. Os oes ganddo arian.

Supp. Os oes rhywun yn dyfod.

Interr. A oes ganddo arian?

Interr. A oes rhywun yn dyfod?

633. In answer to a question made by 'a oes,' the same verb is employed, and sometimes mae is added; as,

A oes ganddo arian? Oes; or oes, y mae.

Yw or ydyw.

634. Affirmative Sentences.—Yw is used when the emphasis is to be laid on the predicate: hence yw is preceded by the predicate, and followed by the subject. [Order: predicate, copula, subject.]

Here the predicate must be a noun or adjective unaccompanied by 'yn apposition.'

Brenin yw Arthur. Doeth yw Arthur.

Ysgrifencdig yw y gair.

Cadarn yw dy law ac uchel yw dy ddeheulaw. Ps. lxxxix. 13.

Da yw moliannu yr Arglwydd. Ps. xcii. 1.

Gwaith mawr yw ceisio ei foddhau.

(a) If 'yn apposition,' be retained, mae should be employed. Yn frenin y mae (not yw) Arthur.

(b) If prepositions with their case, or adverbs of like import, or conjunctive adverbs, precede, the copula should be mae, not yw; as, sut y mae fy nghyfaill, not 'sut yw fy nghyfaill.' [§ 626.] Yet in the Welsh version of the Bible we occasionally meet with the copula yw after the conjunctive adverbs pan, when, and tra, whilst; as,

Pan yw yn dwyn, for "pan y mae yn dwyn." Heb. i. 6.

Pan yw fy nhad a'm mam yn fy ngwrthod. Ps. xxvii. 10.

Tra yw y brenin ar ei fwrdd. Cant. i. 12.

Tra yr ydyw hi yn ddydd. S. John ix. 4.

635. When the predicate is definitive by being preceded by the article, or when in its own nature it is definitive, it may interchange position with the subject : i.e., the copula yw may follow the subject, and precede the predicate ; or follow the predicate, and precede the subject, as above. [Order : subject, copula, definitive predicate ; or, definitive predicate, copula, subject.]

Arthur yw y brenin ; or, Y brenin yw Arthur.

Hi yw dy fywyd ; or, Dy fywyd yw hi.

Cydseiniad yw esgyrn geiriau ; or, Esgyrn geiriau yw cydseiniad.

Yr Arglwydd yw ein tarian, a Sanct Israel yw ein brenin. Ps. lxxxix. 18.

Yr Arglwydd yw yr Yslyrd. 2 Cor. iii. 17.

Yr hon yw gogoniant yr holl diroedd. Ezek. vi. 20.

Yr hwn yw dy gleddyf di. Ps. xvii. 13.

Yr hwn yw delw Duw. 2 Cor. iv. 4.

Diwedd y rhai yw distryw. Phil. iii. 19.

Cyfiawnder a barn yw trigfa dy orseddfainc. Ps. lxxxix. 14.

Prif ddiben y traethawd hwn ydyw adferu cyssondeb.—Tegid.

(a) But if the subject precede, and the predicate be indefinitive, sydd, not yw, must be used. We should therefore write,

Arthur sydd yn frenin (not Arthur yw yn frenin).

Arthur sydd yn ddoeth (not Arthur yw yn ddoeth).

Arthur sydd yn rhyfela (not Arthur yw yn rhyfela).

Arthur sydd yn y ty (not Arthur yw yn y ty).

Arthur sydd yma (not Arthur yw yma).

636. The subject or the predicate, following the copula, is sometimes omitted, when it can be supplied from the preceding sentence ; as,

Can's Arglwydd noddfawr yw i ni.—Ed. Prys. [Unders. efe.]

Dywedaf am yr Arglwydd, fy noddfa a'm hamddiffynfa ydyr. Ps. xci. 2.

637. Negative Sentences.—In a proposition, of which the copula is yw, the term to be negatived is usually the first, whether it be the predicate or the subject.

Affirm. Brenin yw Arthur.
Arthur yw y brenin.

Neg. Nid brenin yw Arthur.
Nid Arthur yw y brenin.

638. Yw will admit of being immediately preceded by a negative particle : hence it is substituted for mae and sydd, when these copulas are to be negatived.

Affirmative.
Sydd. Yr hwn sydd yn darllen.
Mae. Y mae efe yn darllen.

Negative.
Yw. Yr hwn nid yw yn darllen.
Yw. Nid yw efe yn darllen.

Thus yw takes the place of sydd and of mae (= is) ; and oes that of mae (= there is), in negative sentences.

639. Suppositions introduced by od and os ; and Interro- gations introduced by ai and onid, require the same construction as negative sentences.

Os cuddiedig yw ein hefengyl ni. 2 Cor. iv. 3.

Ai cuddiedig yw ein hefengyl ni?

639 (1). Synopsis.—Mae signifies “is” and “there is.” Mae = “is,” occurs in affirmative sentences,—is followed by its subject,—and is accompanied by an indefinite predicate. Mae—Arthur—yn frenin.

(a) The pl. of mae is maent; but the pl. is used only when the subject is a personal pronoun. Mae efe yn frenin : maent hwy yn frenhinoedd.

(b) The predicate, or the complement of the sentence, may follow or precede the copula; or a part may follow and a part precede. Mae Arthur yn ysgrifenu : ysgrifenu y mae Arthur. Mae Arthur yn y ty : yn y ty y mae Arthur. Pa beth y mae Arthur yn gofyn am dano? am ba beth y mae Arthur yn gofyn? gofyn am ba beth y mae Arthur?

(c) If the predicate be a noun or adjective, preceding the copula, ‘yn apposition’ is most usually omitted, and then yw is substituted for mae. Thus instead of “yn frenin y mae Arthur,” it is more usual to say “brenin yw Arthur.”

(d) In negative, interrogative and suppositive sentences, yw (or ydyw) is substituted for mae. Mae Arthur yn frenin. Nid ydyw Arthur yn frenin : a ydyw Arthur yn frenin? os ydyw Arthur yn frenin. (See below.)

(e) If the neg., interr., or supp. particles belong to some other part of the sentence, the copula is not affected. Nid yn y ty y mae Arthur. Ai yn y ty y mae Arthur? Os yn y ty y mae Arthur.

639 (2). Mae = “there is.” like mac = “is,” is followed by its subject. It is connected with Oes, which occupies the same place in the sentence. Mac occurs in affirmative sentences: oes in negative, interr., and suppositive sentences. Mae llawer o blant yn yr ysgol. Nid oes— a oes—os oes llawer o blant yn yr ysgol.

639 (3). Sydd occurs in affirmative sentences—is preceded by its subject—and is followed by an indefinite predicate. Arthur—sydd—yn frenin.

(a) Sydd has the force of “it is . . . that.” But in relative, and often in other sentences, it means simply “is.”

(b) When it is equivalent to “it is . . . that,” the subject is the negated term, and hence the copula is not affected. Nid Arthur sydd yn frenin.

(c) When it means “is,” yw (pl. ynt) is substituted for it in a negative sentence. Yr hwn sydd yn frenin; y rhai sydd yn frenhinoedd. Neg. Yr hwn nid yw yn frenin; y rhai nid ynt yn frenhinoedd.

(d) If the predicate be definite, yw, not sydd, is the copula. Arthur sydd yn frenin (indefinite). Arthur yw y brenin (definite).

639 (4). Yw or ydyw in affirmative sentences is preceded by the predicate—and followed by the subject; or preceded by the subject—and followed by the predicate. Brenin—yw—Arthur (predicate preceding). Hwn—yw—dy gleddyf (subject preceding).

(a) When an indefinite noun or adjective is the predicate, it always precedes the copula. Brenin yw Arthur. Doeth yw Arthur.

(b) When the predicate is definite, it may either precede or follow the copula. [In relative and nominal interr. sentences, the rel. and interr. pronouns must, of course, precede.] Hwn yw dy gleddyf: dy gleddyf yw hwn. Arthur yw y brenin: y brenin yw Arthur.

(c) If the predicate is indefinite, and follows the copula, sydd, not yw, should be employed. Arthur yw y brenin (definite). Arthur sydd yn frenin (indefinite).

639 (5). Yw or ydyw in negative, interrogative, and suppositive sentences is a substitute for mae, and it occupies the same place as mae in the sentence. Mae Arthur yn frenin: nid ydyw A. yn frenin; a gdyw A. yn frenin? os ydyw A. yn frenin. Maent hwy yn frenhinoedd: nid [a, os] ydynt hwy yn frenhinoedd.

(a) It is a substitute for sydd in a negative sentence when sydd signifies "is" and "are." Yr hwn sydd yn frenin; y rhai sydd yn frenhinoedd; yr hwn nid yw yn frenin; y rhai nid ynt yn frenhinoedd.

640. Agreement.—The rules laid down in § 569 respecting the agreement of verbs with their nominatives in sentences of simple narration, will apply to the tenses of Bod.

A'r cerddorion a fyddant yno. Ps. lxxxvii. 7.

Ti, Arglwydd, fuost yn breswylfa. Ps. xc. 1.

Tydi wyt ddisgybl iddo ef.

(a) But the occurrence of the singular number of this verb preceded by a plural nominative is so common, both in written and colloquial language, that some good critics are of opinion that a singular and a plural verb may be indifferently joined to a plural nominative.

I bawb a fu o'm blaen i, to all that have been before me.

Y rhai oedd yn ei lu ef, who were in his army.

641. When the subject of discourse is antithetical, and the predicate an indefinitive term, sydd in present tense, and the third person singular in other tenses, will be put for all numbers and persons.

Myfi sydd yn myned.

Tydi sydd ddisgybl iddo ef.

Tydi a fydd yno.

Chwychwi a fydd yno.

Myfi yw y bugail da.

Tydi yw fy anwyl fab.

Y rhai yw dy law.

Tydi yw y doethaf o'r cwbl.

Cydseiniaid yw esgyrn geiriau.

Iuddewon oedd y gwyr hyn.

Chwychwi yw ein gogoniant.

Chwychwi oedd y rhai a garaswn.

Hwynt-hwy yw y gwir berchenogion.

643. Sydd.—Sydd is an indeclinable verb, and is put in construction both with singular and plural nominatives; as;

Y gair sydd wirionedd.

Y geiriau sydd wirionedd

Y milwr sydd yn dyfod.

Y milwyr sydd yn dyfod.

(a) Many, even of our best writers, not considering that sydd is itself plural as well as singular, frequently adopt ynt or ydylnt as plural.

Tafodau ydylnt arwydd. 1 Cor. xiv. 22.

Y rhai ydylnt yn gofyn aceniad hir.—Tegid.

Hwythau ydylnt yn gwahanu'r Sacrament.—M. Kyffin.

Ond y trigolion ydylnt lesg.—Theo. Evans.

Y rhai ydylnt yn ei weled ef â llygaid yr enaid.—Nicander.

(b) If the verb be negated, then ynt or ydylnt, being the pl. of yw or ydylw (which is the substitute of sydd), will very properly be used ; as,

Tafodau nid ydylnt arwydd, tongues are not for a sign.

A'r holl bethau dymunol nid ydylnt gyffelyb iddi. Prov. iii. 13.

644. Ellipsis of Copula.—The Welsh language frequently admits of an ellipsis of the copula, especially the form yw or ydylw.

Digon [yw] i ni wybod hyn. Eiddo'r Arglwydd [yw] y ddaiair.

Mor gu [yw] genyf dy gyfraith di.

Onid mwy hyfryd [yw] gweled Duw gyda'r bugeiliaid ?

Nid da [yw] rhy o ddim. Gwyn eu byd [yw] y rhai addfwyn.

APPOSITION VERBS.

645. In all languages there are some verbs capable of taking (a) two nominatives ; namely, a subject-nominative, which must be a noun or a pronoun, and a predicative-nominative, which may be a noun or adjective : (b) two accusatives, the former a noun or pronoun, the latter a noun or adjective.

These are verbs of being, becoming, seeming, calling, making, appointing, considering, thinking, choosing, &c.

He is a man.

I offer my friend as witness.

The man becomes troublesome.

He calls him an uncle.

He is appointed general.

I take him for a father.

646. 'Yn apposition.'—In Welsh, the second nominatives and second accusatives are preceded by the particle 'yn,' which from the function it performs of setting words in apposition may be denominated '*yn*¹ apposition.'

(a) In English a, an, as, and for, are sometimes used where in Welsh yn would be employed.

"I offer him as witness" = cynnygiad ef yn dyst.

To these may be added the prep. into ; and the particle in, which in certain cases is exactly equivalent to yn, and probably of the same origin.

"Letters are divided into vowels and consonants" = yn llafariad a chydseiniad.

¹ Yn is probably a participle, signifying being, and of cognate origin with the Greek participle ὄν.

"Ye shall have their carcasses in abomination"—yn ffieidd-dra.

"And smoke to roll in dusky wreaths"—yn amdyrch tywyllion.

(b) In Greek the prep. eis is sometimes found where yn would be employed in Welsh.

Ἀποβήσεται . . . εἰς μαρτύριον = yn dystiolaeth. S. Luke xxi. 13.

Πώλους εἰς δασμὸν τρεφόμενους = yn deyrnged.—Xen.

647. The particle yn is used when the apposition word is an indefinitive noun or adjective. Thus yn, with regard to its indefinite character, resembles a and an; but yn can be employed before plural nouns and before predicative adjectives, whereas a and an cannot.

Examples of yn before the second nominative.

Nid yw y rhai hyn yn feddwon. Acts ii. 15.

Yr hwn a wnaed yn ben i'r gongl. Acts iv. 11.

Y mae Arthur yn frenin doeth.

Bydded ei drigfan ef yn ddifffacthwrch. Acts i. 20.

Examples of yn before the second accusative.

A Duw a alwodd y goleuni yn ddydd. Gen. i. 5.

Hyd oni osodwyf dy elynion yn droedfainc. Acts ii. 35.

Hwn a ddychafodd Duw . . . yn Dycwysog. Acts v. 31.

Pa ham y gosodaist fi yn nod i ti? Job vii. 20.

648. If the word following the copula be a participle, an adverb, or a preposition with its case, yn cannot be used; as,

Efe sydd yn rhyfela. Efe sydd yma. Efe sydd gyda'r gwaith.

649. But if the apposition is an adjective, yn may be used, even when the adjective is preceded by qualifying adverbs; as,

Y mae Arthur yn dra dysgedig, Arthur is very learned.

Y mae Arthur yn wir ddysgedig, Arthur is truly learned.

(a) Môr and cyn, which precede the equal degree, cannot be preceded by yn.

Arthur sydd mor enwog [not yn mor enwog].

Arthur sydd cyn enwoced [not yn cyn enwoced].

650. Government.—Yn governs all the mutable consonants, except ll and rh, in the middle sound. Ll and rh retain the radical.

Y mae Arthur yn gawr ac yn ben ar bawb.

Penodwyd Arthur yn frenin.

Ll and rh. Y mae hwn yn llyfr hardd, ac yn rhad.

651. Position.—Yn immediately precedes the word or words forming the apposition. If an adjective precede the apposition noun, yn stands before the adjective; if an adverb precede the apposition adjective, yn stands before the adverb.

Dafydd sydd yn ddyn.
Dafydd sydd yn ddysgedig.

Dafydd sydd yn hen ddyn.
Dafydd sydd yn wir ddysgedig.

652. In ordinary discourse, whether the verb or subject precede, the apposition words are made to follow.

Bydd hyn yn arwydd. Hyn a fydd yn arwydd.
Cyfrifir Arthur yn ddysgedig. Arthur a gyfrifir yn ddysgedig.
Cafodd Arthur geiniog yn wobwr.

(a) Sometimes the first nom. and first accus. are omitted.

Bu [efe] yn llwyddiannus. Y maent [hwy] yn anffodiog.

Efe a olyngodd [y dyn] yn rhydd iddynt, yr hwn a fwriadid yng ngharchar. S. Luke xxiii. 25.

653. The apposition nom. sometimes takes the first place in the clause. Here the particle yn may be, and most frequently is omitted, the apposition word resuming its radical sound.

Yn ddysgedig y cyfrifir Arthur, or, Dysgedig y cyfrifir Arthur.
Noeth y daethym o groth fy mam. Job i. 21.

(a) Yn affects the particle 'a' in the same way as a preposition does: hence if the predicate with yn, expressed or understood, goes before the verb, 'a' is changed into 'y' or 'yr:' thus,

Arthur a gyfrifir yn ddysgedig.

Yn ddysgedig y cyfrifir Arthur. Dysgedig y cyfrifir Arthur.

The pres. wyf, &c., and imperf. oeddwn, &c., of lod, however, do not admit of the particle. [See § 721.]

Cyfiawn ydyw Arthur [not yr ydyw].

Cyfiawn oedd Arthur [not yr oedd].

654. Sometimes the apposition nominative and apposition accusative precede the first nominative and first accusative.

Gwnaf yn ddynion eu dyfroedd hwynt. Ezek. xxxii. 14.

Hwnw a geidw yn fynw ei enaid. Ezek. xviii. 27.

Y maent yn gwneuthur yn llydain eu phylacteran. S. Matt. xxiii. 5.

A gyfrifwn yn lán un á chlorianau anwir? Micah vi. 11.

(a) In poetry the apposition word sometimes intervenes between the first nom. or first accus., and the verb; as,

“Y fesen yn dderwen a ddaw,” the acorn will become an oak.

655. Omission of yn.—It has been remarked that yn may be omitted when the predicate takes the first place in the clause. It should be further noted that, in connection with bod, it is often omitted even when the predicate follows the subject and verb.

Ti wyt ben=yn ben. A'u tafod sydd dwyllodrus=yn dwyllodrus.

Ei air oedd ddigonol=yn ddigonol. Nid yw hyn ran fawr=yn rhan fawr.

(a) Here the predicate has its initial in the middle sound, although yn is omitted. (Ei air oedd ddigonol.) Sometimes, however, the predicate is put in the radical; as,

I'r dyn a fyddo da. Eccles. ii. 26.

Gwr da a fydd trugarog fwyn.—E. Prys.

A safed yn ei burdeb cyssefin pan fyddo cyfansawdd.—Tegid.

(b) Though yn governs ll and rh in the radical (§ 650), yet when yn is omitted, ll and rh take the middle sound. (Efe oedd lywydd. Nid yw hyn ran fawr.)

656. a) Exception.—The infinitive bod, and the inflections mae and maent, do not admit of the omission of yn.

Am ei fod yn fychan. S. Luke xix. 2. [Not am ei fod fychan.]

Y mae yn rhydd i mi. Y maent yn arwyddion.

657. b) Exception.—When the subject is a noun, and the order of the sentence is verb, subject, predicate, 'yn' should be retained, in order to prevent ambiguity.

Bydd Dafydd yn frenin. (Not 'Bydd Dafydd frenin.')

INFINITIVE MOOD.

658. The infinitive mood is of very extensive usage in the Welsh language. It may be translated into English sometimes by 'to' with infinitive; sometimes by a verbal noun; and sometimes by a finite verb with or without a governing particle.

659. "It may be found in any position competent for a noun to occupy. Thus it may be the subject of discourse, or objective to the verb; it may be followed by an adjective, or governed by a preposition."¹ [With this usage of the infinitive compare the Greek.]

a) Infinitive as subject of a verb.

Dilyn drygioni a dywys i anghen, the following of evil leads to death.
Gweddus oedd iddo ei berffeithio. Rhaid yw cymmeryd poen.

"Caled ydyw peidio caru, Caled hefyd gwneuthur hyny."—D. S. Evans.

β) Infinitive as possessive case.

Llorian dynnu, threshing-floors. Amser hau, sowing-time.

γ) Infinitive as object to a verb.

Dymunaf ddysgu, I wish to learn.

Mi a geisïaf ymroddi, I will endeavour to devote myself.

Efe a ddichon gynnorthwyo. Heb. ii. 18.

δ) Infinitive as object of a preposition.

Wedi marw ei dad. Acts vii. 4. [Cf. Gr. μετὰ τὸ ἀποθανεῖν τὸν πατέρα αὐτοῦ.]

Wrth ddarostwng. Heb. ii. 8. [Gr. ἐν τῷ ὑποτάξαι.]

Fy mryd ar geisio.

Trwy rodio ger dy fron.

Heb ddal ar chwedlau.

O'u cadw y mae gwobr lawer.

ε) Infinitive with adjective.

Canu da, good singing. Dysgwyl ofnadwy, fearful expectation.

660. A noun or pronoun under government of a preposition often intervenes between the finite verb and the infinitive.

Erfyniais ar Arthur fy nghymmhorth.

Perodd i mi ddyfod ato.

(a) Here the infin. may be considered as both the object of the finite verb, and as the verb of the noun or pronoun under government.

661. The Infinitive is often preceded by the preposition 'i,' to.

Daethym yma i weled Arthur. Dysgodd i mi ddarllen.

Ymroddodd i feddi.

(a) After some transitive verbs it is optional whether the prep. 'i' comes between the finite verb and the noun (or pron.) or between the noun (or pron.) and the infinitive: thus we may say,

Dysgodd fi i ddarllen, or, Dysgodd i mi ddarllen.

Cynghoraf chwi i ddyfod, or, Cynghoraf i chwi ddyfod.

662. Observation on 'i' before the Infinitive. — The remark of some grammarians, that "i is the sign of the Infinitive mood, like 'to' in English," has a tendency to mislead the reader, as the former does not correspond to the latter except in certain cases.

663. I is not used before the Infinitive in the following circumstances.

a) When the Infinitive is the nominative to a verb, or an apposition (or predicative) nominative.

Dylm drygioni a dywys i aneu = to follow evil will lead to death.

Cael ei wasanaethu ef sydd yn anrhydedd.

Bwriad y llyfr yw rhoddi hanes am frenhinoedd.

Eu harfer hwy ydyw ffrostio yn ddigywilydd.

b) When the Infinitive is the object to a verb.

Gregorins a benderfynodd fyned, Gregorius determined to go.

Haeddodd ei gopi.

Haeddodd gael ei gopi.

Gall Dafydd ddyfod.

Medraf ysgrifenu.

c) When the preposition is put before the accusative of the person.

Perodd i Arthur dewi = he ordered to Arthur be silent; he ordered Arthur to be silent.

Gorchymynais i ti aros. Gofynodd i mi ddyfod.

Caniaataodd i r dyn fyned. Gwna i ni gredu hyn.

Nyni yn ufudd a atolygwn i Ti rodde dy räs.—Com. Prayer.

Ni ddigwyddodd i m Uygaid ganfod mo honoch.—Gor. Owen.

664. The principal use of 'i' before the Infinitive is to denote object, motive or purpose = in order that. It occurs in the following circumstances.

a) When the Infinitive depends on a substantive or an adjective.

Cais i dwyllo, an attempt to deceive. Gallu i ddyfod, power to come.

Tuedd i roi, an inclination to give. Dyfodiad i farau, a coming to judge.

Parod i ateb, ready to answer. Abl i wneuthur, able to do.

Addas i esgyn, fit to ascend. Teilwng i fyned, worthy to go.

Y fath gyfleusdra i fyned i Fon.—Gor. Owen.

Mae genyf ryw awydd diwala i ddygu.—Gor. Owen.

b) When the preceding verb is followed by a noun or pronoun in the accusative; and after passive and intransitive verbs, denoting object or purpose.

Cynghoraf chwi i ddyfod, I advise you to come.

Heriaf ef i ddadlu â mi. Galluogodd fi i fyned.

Annogodd y dynion i geisio maddeuant.

Dysgwyd ef i ddarllen, he was taught to read.

Mi a droais i edrych, I turned to see = that I might see.

Daethym yma i adrodd hanesyn.

Llwyddais i weled fy nghyfaill.

Cyttunodd â mi i fyned yno.—Gor. Owen.

c) After the tenses of Bod, to be, when possibility, duty, futurity, &c., is implied.

Mae'r gair i'w weled yn y llyfr, the word is to be (= may be) seen in the book.

Yr oedd y dyn i gychwyn ddoe.

Yr oedd Efe i ddyfod y ffordd hono. S. Luke xix. 4. [Greek ἤμελλε διερχέσθαι.]

665. The following clauses (which will be explained more minutely hereafter) may have the Infin. as their principal verb.

Trans. Gwelais fod Arthur ymo.

Time. Aethym ymaith wedi gwreled o honof Arthur.

Cause. O herwydd i Arthur ddyfod.

Motive. Daethym yma i weled Arthur.

Concess. Er i Arthur ddyfod yma.

666. 'When two or more verbs are coupled together, as dependent on the same conjunction, the first verb only will, in Welsh, be put in the indicative or the subjunctive mood, and the second and following verbs will be used in their radical forms [i.e., the inf.] If the subject of the second and other verbs be different from that of the first, it will, if a noun, be connected with its verb by the preposition o, or, if a pronoun, by a proper pronominal inflection of o honof.'¹

667. If the subject of the verb be not changed, the preposition with a noun or pron. may or may not be employed: if the subject be changed, it should for the sake of perspicuity be inserted.

a) Subject not changed.

Fel y derbynier ef i arch Eglwys Crist, a gallu o hono fordwyo.—Com. Prayer.

Pan y'th ddygo yr Arglwydd dy Dduw . . . a gyru o hono. Deut. vii. 1.

Tra yr elwyf a gweddio acw. S. Matt. xxvi. 36.

Pan ddychwelo'r annuwiol, a gwneuthur barn. Ezek. xviii. 27.

b) Subject changed.

Pan ddelych gyda ni, a dyfod o'r daioni hwnw. Num. x. 32.

Od aeth neb o honoch ar gyfeiliorn, a throi o rywun ef. S. James v. 19.

Os gwyrdd fy ngherddediad, a myned o'm calon ar ol fy llygaid. Job xxvi. 7.

Pan ddelo trallod i gyfarfod â ni, a pheri o gystudd i ni deimlo.—Nicander.

668. Government.—The Infinitive, if immediately followed by its object, governs it in the radical sound; but if an intervenient word or phrase separates the object from the infinitive, the object will be put in the middle sound.

Gwneuthur cyfiawnder. Casâu drygioni.

Gwneuthur o gydwybod gyfiawnder. Casâu mewn gwirionedd ddrygioni.

* * For further explanation, see §§ 592-594.

The Infinitive passive: see §§ 608-612.

PARTICIPLES.

669. Participles have the same influence over their object as the infinitive verb has; that is, they govern the radical sound.

670. The present participle is formed by setting before the infinitive verb yn; gân (cân); dân or tân: the past by gwedi (cwedi), wedi; ar ol or yn ol: and the future by ar or ar fedr.

The difference between yn, gan, and dan.

671. α) Yn with infinitive forms the participle employed in periphrastic verbs. In this circumstance gan and dan can never be used.

Y mae efe yn dysgu. Dafydd sydd yn myned.

(α) If the participle precedes the verb, yn is most usually omitted. Dysgu y mae efe.

(β) Yn with infinitive may stand in apposition to a noun or pron. in any case.

Nom. { Efe a fu yno yn ei dentio gan Satan. S. Mark i. 13.
 { Ni fedra Cymro yn meddu deall cyffredin, byth gam-osod yr acen.—Tegid.
Gen. Llef un yn llefain yn y diffaethwch. S. Mark i. 3.
Accus. { Mi a glywais lef yn dywedyd. Job iv. 16.
 { Mewn pethau yn perthyn i Ddaw. Heb. ii. 17.

γ) Yn with infinitive is used in the case absolute.

A Duw yn cyd-dystiolaethu. Heb. ii. 4.

A hwy yn gweled, nid ydynt yn gweled.

672. α) Gan (or can).—"When the participle explains the act implied in another verb, gan is used."¹

Efe, gan ateb, a ddywedodd.

Daw a orehymmynodd, gan ddywedyd.

(β) When intensity or certainty is to be expressed in past or future time, this is done by gan with infin., accompanied by the same verb in a finite mood.

Gan ddyfod y daw, nid oeda. Hab. ii. 3.

Gan fendithio y'rh fendithiaf. Gen. xxii. 17.

O gan bwyso na phwysid fy ngofid. Job vi. 2.

Gan ddryllio yr ymddylliodd y ddaiar, gan rwygo yr ymrwygodd y ddaiar, gan symmud yr ymsymmudodd y ddaiar. Is. xxiv. 19.

γ) Gan with infin. is for the most part set in apposition to a noun or pron. in the nominative case.

Thus in the sentence, "Yna y dyry y mab fodrwy i'r ferch, gan ei dodi ar y llyfr," the participle gan ei dodi refers to mab, being the nominative, not to the word ferch, which is in the accusative.

(α) The form cân occurs after a, and, as; and after na, nor, than: in other circumstances the form gân is preferred.

673. Dan or tan with infin. implies that an act is continuous, extending over the space of time occupied by the finite verb.

Dyna hi yn myned tan ganu. Tan ymdyru ataf.
Bwyty dan chwynu. Aeth ymaith dan felldithio.

(a) Tân occurs after a, and, as; and after na, nor, than: in other circumstances it is immaterial whether this, or the lighter form dân, be used.

674. The participle "having" will be expressed in Welsh by d or ag (or a, ac) with an inflection of genyf (or cenyf) = with me, or of i mi = for me.

Os yw neb yn ddiargyhoedd, a chanddo blant ffyddlawn. Titus i. 6.
Ag aur ganddynt. Job iii. 15. Dinas ac iddi sylfeini. Heb. xi. 10.
Pa fodd yr oedd yn treulio ei amser, ac yntau heb lyfrau ganddo.
—Nicander.

675. If an adverb intervene between the particle and the infinitive, the adverb will have its sound regulated by the particle, while the infinitive will be put in the middle sound.

Yn peraidl ganu. Gan beraidd ganu. Dan beraidd ganu.
Wedi peraidl ganu. Ar beraidd ganu.

ADVERBS.

676. Position.—Some adverbs have one and only one place assigned to them in all sentences.

Adverbs of negation immediately precede the negated words; as, Ni ddaeth yma; Nid yma y daeth; Nid efe a ddaeth.

Adverbs of interrogation begin the sentence; as, A ddaeth eich brawd? Sut y mae eich brawd?

Adverbs of comparison (except iawu and digon) immediately precede the adjectives and adverbs modified by them; as, Tre doeth yw Arthur.

The auxiliary affirmative adverbs immediately precede finite verbs: Efe a ddaeth; yn awr y daeth.

677. But adverbs of quality, of number, of order, of place, of time, of quantity, and of doubting, will, in general, have their position determined by emphasis. "They may either precede or follow the verb, the subject, and the object, or come between them. The words

'Dos nesnes i'r cynnhesrwydd, i'r adail glèd rhed yn rhwydd' may also be expressed thus—

Nesnes dos i'r cynnhesrwydd, i'r adail glèd yn rhwydd rhed.

Nesnes i'r cynnhesrwydd dos, rhed yn rhwydd i'r adail glèd.

I'r cynnhesrwydd nesnes dos, rhed i'r adail glèd yn rhwydd."¹

The following classes of adverbs require a more detailed explanation.

Adverbs of negation.

678. The negative adverbs ni, nid, nis, na, nad, nas, nac, immediately precede the words to which they belong. They all negative finite verbs, except nid and nad, which negative other words also. [See § 683.]

679. The following are used before finite verbs having consonant initials : ni, nis, na, nas.

(a) Ni and na are, however, often found before words that begin radically with vowels ; as,

Pa ham na ysgrifenu, why do you not write?

O na argreffid lwynt mewn llyfr ! Job xix. 23.

680. Ni and na govern the first class of mutable consonants (c, p, t) in the aspirate ; the second (g, b, d) and third (ll, m, rh) in the middle. Nis and nas govern the radical of all classes.

(1st cl.) Ni char, ni phaid, ac ni thaw efc.

(2nd cl.) Ni ofala (rad. gofala), ni feiddia, ac ni ddaw.

(3rd cl.) Ni leinw, ni feithrin, ac ni reola.

Nis car, nis gofala, ac nis lleinw.

(a) The inflections of the verb bod are, after ni and na, put sometimes in the middle, sometimes in the radical.

Ni fydd efc yno. Dywedodd na fu ei frawd yno.

Efe a weddiodd na byddai wlaw, ac ni bu gwlaw. S. James v. 17.

Ac ni fydd flin genym o'n rhan ninnau.—Theo. Evans.

(b) The above example "ni ofala," requires explanation, ni being here used before a vowel. It was before remarked that the omission of the letter g is the sign of its middle sound ; and as the next letter often happens to be a vowel (as in the present example), ni and na, which govern the middle sound, will accordingly be employed before a vowel. Some writers, however, considering this as a deviation from, rather than, as it really is, a strict adherence to rule, often employ nid and nad in such cases. (Nid all efc ddyfod.)

681. Nid and nad are placed before finite verbs with vowel initials; as,

Nid aeth efe, he did not go.

Dywed nad aeth efe, he says that he did not go.

682. Na and nac are used (a) before imperative verbs (= $\mu\eta$, ne); (b) in negative answers, na preceding a consonant, and nac a vowel initial. [Na has the same government as ni and na in § 680.]

(a) Na ladd, kill not. Nac ofna, fear not.

(b) A ydyw Arthur yna? Nac ydyw.

683. The preceding rules regard finite verbs; but if the infinitive verb, or any other part of speech, be the negatived term, nid and nad solely can be employed, which in this case may be followed by consonants as well as vowels, and will always require the radical sound after them.

Nid canu yr oedd.

Nid arwain y fyddin yr oedd.

Nid bardd yw.

Nid prwylllog yw.

Dywed nad ymo y mae.

684. Ni, nid, nis (= $\epsilon\acute{\nu}$, non, not), head main clauses, and are followed by the Indicative mood.

Ni ddaeth fy nghyfaill. Nid aeth fy nghyfaill. Nis daeth fy nghyfaill.

685. Ni, nid, and nis are also the negatives in simple relative clauses, when the relative heading is expressed; and in explanatory cause clauses.

Yn yr hwn nid oes dwyll, in whom there is no guile.

Canys ni welais erioed mo hono, for I have never seen him.

686. The transitives mai and taw (that) are followed by nid; and the suppositives os, pe, &c. (if), when separated from the negatives by the nominative, &c., are followed by ni, nid, nis.

Sylwer mai nid hawdd bod yn gywir. Os chwi ni ddeuwch.

687. Na, nad, nas (= $\mu\eta$, that not; not), head subjoined clauses, and are followed by the Subjunctive mood in some, and by the Indicative in other clauses.

Transitive clause.

Gwn na ddaw.

Cause clause.

O herwydd nad oes ganddo lyfrau.

Concessive clause.

Er nas clywais air oddi wrtho.

Time clause.

Pryd nad oedd plentyn iddo.

Motive clause.

Fel na phwyswn arnoch.

Effect clause.

Ffyddlawn oedd fel na chaed ynddo fai.

Supposition clause.

Os nad yw efe yn dyfod.

Indefinite relative, and simple rel. when the rel. heading is omitted.	} Y neb na ddelo. Hwn yw'r dyn na wadodd.
Inter. adverbs.
Wish clause.	Pa ham nad aethoch? O nad ysgrifened fy ngeiriau!

688. Double negatives do not destroy one another, as they do in English. [In this the Welsh resembles the Greek.]

Nid oes na chaeth na rhydd. Ni chaf na gloes na drygyd.
Heb na rhuthro i mewn, na myned allan. Ps. cxliv. 14.

689. "The adverbs dim and mo are used as a species of auxiliaries to other negatives; and sometimes both may occur together in the same sentences."¹

Ni ddaw Dafydd ddim yma, David will not come here.
Yr hwn nid adnabasai mo Ioseph. Ex. i. 8.
Ni fedrant ganfod mo ddichellion dynion.—Edw. Samuel.
Ni wiw i ti ddim mo son am hyn.

(a) Dim governs the radical sound; as, "Ni fynwn i ddim cadw'r plentyn." Mo governs the middle. "Mo ddichellion."

(b) Dim (always in the middle sound) is employed when the subject follows the verb; and it is put after the subject, expressed or understood.

Nid ydym (ni) ddim yn ei adnabod, we do not know him.
Nis gallaf (fi) ddim taflu'r gareg, I cannot throw the stone.

When the verb is transitive, having a noun or pronoun as object, dim may be put after the object of the verb,—not, as in the preceding examples, after the subject; and when it occupies this position, it is often more than a mere expletive, being nearly = at all. [Welsh Exercises, §§ 79, 249.]

Nid adwaen i ef ddim, I do not know him at all.
Nid ydym yn eich deall chwi ddim, we do not understand you at all.

(c) Mo is a contraction of "dim o" = nothing of. It is used in connection with a transitive verb, followed by a definitive object. See Welsh Exercises, § 249, &c.

Nid adwaen i mo'r dyn = nid adwaen i y dyn.
Nid wyf yn adnabod mo'r dyn = nid wyf yn adnabod y dyn.
Nis medraf deall chwi = nis medraf eich deall chwi.

Mo honof is a form used instead of the accusative personal pronoun: the pronoun may or may not be inserted after mo honof.

Nid ydynt yn adnabod mo honoch (chwi) = nid ydynt yn eich adnabod (chwi).

Mo and honof often coalesce into one word; thus,

Mo'nof = mo honof.	Mo'nom = mo honom.
Mo'not = mo honot.	Mo'noch = mo honoch.
{ Mo'no = mo hono.	Mo'nynt = mo honynt.
{ Mo'ni = mo honi.

Adverbs of comparison.

690. Cyn (càn, gàn), digon, go, iawn, lled, llai, lleiaf, mwy, mwyaf, mor, po, pur, rhy, and tra, qualify adjectives and other adverbs; and all, except digon and iawn, precede the words qualified by them. Iawn always follows: digon generally precedes, but sometimes follows, and then assumes the middle sound.

Cyn ddoethed. Doeth iawn. Digon doeth, doeth ddigon.
Mi a wn yn dda ddigon.—D. Ionawr.

691. Tra governs the 1st class of mutable consonants in the aspirate; the 2nd and 3rd in the radical. Digon, llai, lleiaf, mwy, mwyaf, and po, govern the radical. The others govern the middle.

Tra chryf.	Tra gwyn.	Tra llawn.
Digon cryf.	Po mwyaf.	Llai galluog.
Cyn gryfed.	Go bur.	Lled deg.

(a) Cyn, mor, and pur, may be followed by the mid. or rad. of ll and rh.

Cyn loned or lloned.	Cyn rwydded or rhwydded.
Mor lon or llon.	Mor rwydd or rhwydd.
Pur lon or llon.	Pur rwydd or rhwydd.

692. When they qualify adverbs, compounded of yn with an adjective (e.g., yn ddoeth), they will be placed between yn and the adjective; as,

Llefarodd yn bur ddoeth. Bucheddodd yn dra rhinweddol.

(a) But cyn and mor dismiss the particle yn; as,

Llefarodd cyn ddoethed. Llefarodd mor ddoeth.

693. Adverbs of quality (which are formed by prefixing yn adverbial to a common adjective, see § 345), when they begin a sentence, generally throw off yn, and assume the radical sound. Thus, instead of saying 'yn gywir yr atebaist,' we usually say, 'cywir yr atebaist.'

694. Adverbs of this character, if they immediately precede the words modified by them, require the middle sound after them; as,

Awyddus ddisgwyliais am eich gweled.

695. There is a class of words, such as hynod, neillduol, nodedig, rhagorol, &c. (= especially, exceedingly), which may stand either before the qualified word with or without o, or after it.

Hynod o gymmeradwy, }
 Hynod gymmeradwy, } eminently acceptable.
 Cymmeradwy hynod, }

Gweithiodd y dyn yn nodedig o dda (yn nodedig dda, yn dda nodedig), the man worked exceedingly well.

696. Adverbs of doubting (see § 352) if they begin a sentence, are followed by a transitive clause (§ 758, &c.); but if they are placed in the middle of the sentence, they do not affect the construction.

Hwyrach fod Arthur yn dyfod, perhaps [that] Arthur is coming.
 Arthur, hwyrach, sydd yn dyfod, Arthur, perhaps, is coming.

697. Adverbs of showing.—The copula “is” or “are” is included in the adverbs of showing, which are dacr, dyma, dyna, llyma, llyna, nycha, wela.

698. Like finite verbs, these adverbs govern the middle sounds of such words as depend on them.

Dyma geffyl hardd, here is a handsome horse.
 Dacw ddau offeiriad, yonder are two clergymen.

Dyma and dyna are frequently used for demonstrative pronouns. [See §§ 201, 551.]

698 (1). Adverbs of quantity.—The adverbs braidl, prin, bron, and (yn) agos, require explanation.

Prin, digon prin, braidl, with y or yr, and placed before the finite verb, are = hardly, scarcely.

Ni . . prin, ni . . braidl, ni . . bron, placed after the finite verb, are = hardly, scarcely.

“It was hardly possible to cross the river.”

Prin (or braidl) yr oedd yn ddichonadwy croesi'r afon. }
Nid oedd braidl (or prin) yn ddichonadwy croesi'r afon. }

Os braidl y mae'r cyfiawn yn gadwedig, if the righteous scarcely be saved. 1 S. Peter iv. 18.

Braidl y bydd neb farw dros un cyfiawn, scarcely will one die for a righteous man. Rom. v. 7.

Braidl na, prin na, bron na, agos na, placed before the finite verb, are = nearly, almost.

Braidl, bron, (yn) agos, placed after the finite verb, are = nearly, almost.

“It was almost impossible to unlock the door.”

Braidl nad oedd yn annichonadwy dadgloi'r drws. }
Yr oedd braidl yn annichonadwy dadgloi'r drws. }

Braidl na lithrodd fy nhraed: prin na thripiodd fy ngherddediad, my feet were almost gone: my treadings had well-nigh slipped. Ps.
 lxxiii. 2.

(a) O'r braidd and o'r bron are often used instead of braidd and bron.
Yr ydym o'r bron yn barod, we are nearly ready.

(b) Nearly before numerals is best expressed in Welsh by (yn) agos i.
Mi a gerddais (yn) agos i ddeng milltir, I walked nearly ten miles.

(c) Not . . nearly will be expressed by nid . . (yn) agos.
Nid yw efe yn agos mor foesgar a'i frodyr, he is not nearly so polite as his brothers.

(d) Yn agos, with perfect indefinite, requires the impersonal form
"bu i mi," &c. Bu yn agos i mi syrthio, I nearly fell.

(e) Bron a, and (yn) agos a, with present of Bod and the infinitive of the other verb, are in some cases = perfect definite: so also will these adverbs, with the first future of Bod and the infinitive of the other verb, express the future-perfect.
Yr ydym bron a gorphen, we have nearly finished.
Byddwn (yn) agos a gorphen, we shall have nearly finished.

[These adverbs are more fully exemplified in the Welsh Exercises, Ch. 50.]

Auxiliary affirmative adverbs.

699. The particles of affirmation, called by the old grammarian Edeyrn "rhagweision berfau," are a, y, yr; and formerly yd and ydd. They immediately precede finite verbs in affirmative sentences.

700. A is a mere expletive, and has no equivalent in English.¹ It is placed immediately before the verb, when the subject or the object, either alone, or accompanied by other words, goes before the verb.

Subject preceding. Duw a greodd y byd. Yr doeth a wrendy.
Efe a gyfrifir ya ddysgedig. Duw pob gras a'ch perffeithio chwi.
Yr hwn o'th ddwyfol ddarbodaeth a osodaist.—Com. Prayer.
Object preceding. Yr us a lysg efe. Yr hwn a darewaist ti.
Ti, Dduw, a folwn. Ammheu a wnaethant.

(a) Compare Armoric and Cornish. Arm., "Pe tra benag a lafaro" (= pa dra bynag a lafaro), whatsoever he saith. S. John ii. 5. Corn., "Mi a dhaufon," I will send: "mi a wôr," I know.—(Gerlyvyr Cernewec, s.v. "A.")

(b) When the poss. pronouns are placed before verbs (see § 598, &c.), and are preceded by a, they are written thus:

Sing. A'm = a ym .	Pl. A'n = a cin .
A'th = a yth .	A'ch = a cich .
A'i = a ei .	A'u = a eu .

Efe a'm tarawodd, he struck me.

¹ It is a most erroneous observation, made even by the learned Tegid, that a, as a verbal agent, corresponds to will and did in English.—("Defence of Welsh Orthography," p. 17.) Dr. Davies very properly remarks, "A item est adverbium seu particula verbis preposita nihil significans."

(c) If the verb precede, the particle is not employed. Creodd Duw y byd. Cyfrifir ef yn ddysgedig.

701. The present Indic. of bod, and the imperfect tense oeddw'n, &c., do not require the particle when the subject precedes.

Myfi wyf yn rhedeg, I am running.
Arthur oedd yno, Arthur was there.
Dyn sydd debyg i wagedd. Ps. cxliv. 4.

(a) But the particle y is sometimes found before sydd.

Bywyd y byd y sydd ar ddyfod.—Com. Prayer.
Gan fy nghas y sydd o'm cwnmpas innau.—Edm. Prys.

702. If, in conjoined clauses, a occurs in the first, it will be repeated in the clauses that follow, unless the order of construction be changed.

Ni a awn i gyfryw ddinas, ac a aroswn, ac a farchnatawn, ac a ynmillwn. S. James iv. 13.

(a) If, however, the particle does not occur in the first clause, it is questionable whether it may be properly inserted in the second, unless the subject or object precede it. The sentence, "Gwrendy eu llefain ac a'u hachub hwynt," would, in the opinion of some good critics, be more correctly expressed thus: "Gwrendy eu llefain ac achub hwynt;" or "Gwrendy eu llefain ac efe a'u hachub hwynt."

703. When the auxiliary pronouns fe, fo, e, are placed before verbs, a may or may not be employed.

Fe a gospir y dyn; or fe gospir y dyn, the man will be punished.
Fe a'm tarawodd â chareg; or fe'm tarawodd â chareg.

704. In a sentence, where the verb is negatived, a is dispensed with; but if the subject or object be the negatived term, then a is employed.

Verb negatived. Yr hwn ni ddêl. (Aff. Yr hwn a ddêl.)
Subject negatived. Nid hwn a ddêl, ond arall.
Object negatived. Nid yr us a lysg efe â thân.

705. A is put before vowel and consonant initials, and is followed by the middle sound; as,

Arthur a aeth ymaith. Arthur a ddaeth yma.

706. As a is a mere expletive, it is very often omitted; but the verb still takes the middle sound.

Nos daenodd dros ei lygaid, night spread over his eyes.—D. S. Evans.
Amser y cenhedloedd fydd efe, it shall be the time of the heathen.
 Ezek. xxx. 3.

(a) But when in a relative clause the relative heading is omitted, a is then almost invariably inserted.

Gwelais y dyn a laddwyd. Gwelais y dyn a laddasant.

707. Y and yr (formerly yd and ydd) are used when the preceding words are antithetical. They are often equivalent to the English phrase "it is."

(a) The oldest forms of these particles seem to be yd and ydd (= Lat. id, Eng. it), which are probably old pronouns standing as nominative to a suppressed inflection of bod; such as yw or ys. If this conjecture be right, the meaning now assigned to them is etymologically correct. (Ydd ys = id est = it is.)

708. Yr is put before a vowel; y before a consonant, and governs the radical sound; ydd before a vowel; yd before a vowel or consonant, and governs the middle sound of the consonant.

Hwyr yr crys Duw cyn taro,

Llwyr y dial pan y delo.

Cyflym ydd a rym yr oes.—Gor. Owen.

Basaf dwfr man yd lefair.—Adage.

709. It has been remarked that a is used when the subject or the object of the verb precedes it (§ 700); y and yr, on the contrary, should be employed when the subject and object follow the verb, but some other part of the sentence precedes it; as,

710. a) A preposition with its case.

Yn y dechreuad y creodd Duw y nefoedd, in the beginning God created the heavens.

Arno yntau y blodeua ei goron. I gredu yr hyn y gorfodir fi.

(a) The participial signs yn, gan, and dan, are regarded here as prepositions: hence if they with their case precede the verb, y or yr will be employed.

Yn darllen y bum.

Dan ganu yr aeth.

Yn is most generally omitted; yet y is still used. Darllen y bum.

(b) 'Yn apposition' also is regarded as a preposition: hence if it, expressed or understood, precede the verb, y or yr will be employed.

Yn bla y cawsom y gwr hwn. Dysgedig y cyfrifir Arthur.

But if yn be omitted before certain tenses of bod, a will be used. See below.

711. In relative and interrogative clauses the prep. is frequently placed after the verb, the governed word occupying the first place; but the particle will still precede the verb, independently of the position assigned to the preposition.

Y wlad yr hon y'm ganed ynddi. Yr hwn y mae y mab ganddo.

Beth y gorfodir fi i'w gredu? Pa beth y dæthoch i ymoralw am dano?

(a) The relative heading is often omitted, and sometimes the prep. also.

Y wlad [yr hon] y daethost allan o honi.
Yn y dydd [yn yr hwn] y gwnaeth yr Arglwydd y ddaiar.
Ym mhob cyflwr [yr hwn] y byddom [ynddo].

(b) The prep. is usually omitted before words signifying duration or part of time or space, &c.

Glawer gwaith y'm cystuddiwyd. Wythnos yr arosais.

712. β) An adverb or an adverbial phrase.

Yma y daeth. Yno yr aeth. Toc y darfu.
Echdoe y gwelais ef. Ebrwydd yr aeth ymaith.

(a) When the adverb is not antithetic, the particle may in most cases be left out.

Antithetic. Yno y bum innau. Simple. Yno bum innau.

713. γ) A conjunction; such as,

Fel, mal, fal, megys, modd; nag; pryd, pryd bynag, nes, hyd, hyd nes; ag and its compounds cyhŷd ag, cyn gynted ag, &c. [See §§ 806, 810, 814.]

Fel y bernid hwy. Modd y delom o'r diwedd.
Yr ydych yn gryfach nag y tybiais. Pryd yr atebodd.
Hyd nes y daeth. Cyhŷd ag yr erys. Cyn gynted ag y daw.

(a) Pan and tra may or may not be followed by y. It is occasionally found after os and pe.

Pan y'm cerydder. Pan ddaeth fy mrawd.

(b) When y is put after conjunctions, its antithetical force (= it is) is scarcely, if at all, discernible.

714. δ) A word in the possessive case. — Y is used in a relative clause where the possessive precedes, and the nominative follows the verb. [See § 875.]

Y rhai y llefara eu geneu wagedd. Y rhai yr oedd Daniel yn benaf o honynt.

715. ε) When a subjoined clause precedes the main one, the particle is sometimes found before the verb of the latter.

Ac wedi iddynt ei fflangellu, y lladdant ef. S. Luke xviii. 33.

Pan ddaeth cyflawnder yr amser, y danfonodd Duw ei Fab. Gal. iv. 4.

716. But if the subject precede the verb, the particle a should be employed, even though other words precede.

Yn hyn Ioan a ragorodd, in this John excelled.

717. In conjoined sentences, if y occurs in the first, it will be repeated in the following clauses, unless the order be changed.

Fel y bernid hwy ac y byddent fyw. 1 S. Peter iv. 6.

718. In an Imperative clause, or in a negative where the verb is negated, y is never employed, notwithstanding other words precede.

Imper. Yna gwybyddwch, then know.

Neg. Yma ni ddaw eich brawd. (Pos. Yma y daw eich brawd.)

719. When the poss. pronouns are placed before verbs, and are preceded by y, they are thus written :

Sing. Y'm = y ym.

Y'th = y yth.

Y'i = y ei.

Pl. Y'n = y ein.

Y'ch = y eich.

Y'u = y eu.

720. Inflections of BOD.—If 'yn apposition' be omitted before a predicative noun or adjective, the tenses of bod (except pres. wyf, &c., and imperf. *oeddw*n, &c.) will be preceded by a; as,

Bendigedig a fyddo'r Arglwydd. Brenin a fum.

721. The pres. wyf, &c., and the imperf. *oeddw*n, &c., will admit of no particle; as,

Gweddus yw mawl. Brenin oedd y gwr.

722. But if the pres. wyf, &c. or the imperf. *oeddw*n, &c., begin the sentence, it will be preceded by y or yr.

Yr wyf yn myned. Yr oeddw yn myned.

(a) Before mac, is, and maent, are, the particle is very often dispensed with. Mac Arthur yn filwr dewr. Maent hwy yn siarad yn gall.

(b) ~~See~~ The form wyf, &c., and *oeddw*n, &c., have yr always before them except when they are preceded (1) by the subject; (2) by the predicate; (3) by negative, suppositive, or interrogative particles.

(1) Myfi wyf yn ddyn. (2) Dyn wyf fi.

(3) Nid wyf yn ddyn. Os wyf yn ddyn. A ydwyf fi yn ddyn?

With these exceptions, the tenses of bod will be preceded by a and y, according to the rules laid down respecting other verbs.

Adverbs of Interrogation. [See Interrogative clause, § 816, &c.]

CONJUNCTIONS.

723. Most conjunctions stand at the beginning of the sentences to which they belong; but some, as in other languages, may occupy any other place.

724. "Some of the conjunctions have merely a literal difference, to afford means of avoiding every hiatus and discordant sound."¹ These are a, ac = and ; a, ag = as ; na, nac = nor ; na, nag (and formerly no, nog) = than ; and also the conditional conjunctions, o, od ; pe, ped = if ; oni, onid = if not.

725. A, and, as ; na, nor, than ; and no, than, precede words with consonant initials : and govern the first class in the aspirate ; the second and third in the radical.

(1st) Bara a chaws. Cyn goched a thân. Nid oes genyf nac arian na phres.

(2nd and 3rd) Bara a gwin. Gwell na bywyd.

"Gwell no gwen y wawr i mi."—D. S. Evans.

726. Ac, and ; ag, as ; nac, nor ; nag and nog, than, precede words with vowel initials.

Aur ac arian. Y mae mor enwog ag unrhyw wlad.

(a) But before certain words,—chiefly adverbs, prepositions, and other conjunctions beginning with f, h, m, or n, the forms ac, nac, &c., are usually preferred to a, na, &c.

Ac fe ddaw. Ac fel hyn. Ac megys. Ac nid. Ac hefyd.

(b) The Infin. bod, when implying 'that . . . is,' and darfod = 'that . . . has,' have the twofold construction of a bod and ac fod ; a darfod and ac ddarfod.

727. The disjunctive neu, or, governs the middle sound ; ynte, or, ai, or, and its compounds naill ai, un ai, &c., govern the radical.

Dyn neu ddynes. Naill ai dyn ynte dynes.

(a) Neu governs a finite verb in the radical sound. "Dos allan neu lyred i mewn."

728. The adversatives ond, onid, eithr, oddi eithr, oddi gerth, namyn, and heb law, when followed by mutable consonants, govern the radical sound.

Nid oes genyf ond ceisio. Nid yw efe ond dyn.

(a) But when they are followed by an Infin. equivalent to that with a finite verb (e.g., Gwn ei fod yno, I know that he is there), the initial of the verb may or may not be softened. This is especially the case with bod, to be, and darfod, to have done.

Nis gwn ddim ond fod Arthur yno : or, Nis gwn ddim ond bod Arthur yno.

Nis gwn ddim ond ddarfod iddo ddweyd : or, Nis gwn ddim ond darfod iddo ddweyd.

§ The conjunctions which introduce supposition, concession, cause, motive, effect, transitive and time clauses, will be treated of hereafter.

729. Some conjunctions and adverbs have other conjunctions corresponding to them in the same or in the following sentence ; such as,

- a) Fel or megys . . . felly=as . . . so.
- b) Felly . . . fel=so . . . that.
- c) Er . . . eto or er hyny=although . . . yet.
- d) Pe . . . eto or er hyny=if . . . yet.
- e) Mor or cyn . . . a or ag=as . . . as.
- f) Mwy . . . na or nag=more . . . than.
- g) Mor or cyn . . . fel or nes=so . . . that.
- h) Na or nac . . . na or nac=neither . . . nor.
- i) Naill ai . . . ai, neu, ynte, ai ynte, or neu ynte=either . . . or.
- j) A or ai . . . ai, neu, &c.=whether . . . or.
- k) Pa un a or ai . . . ai, neu, &c.=whether . . . or.
- l) Pa un bynag a or ai . . . ai, neu, &c.=whether . . . or.

Note.—A is placed before finite verbs ; ai under all other circumstances.

a) Fel y gwnawn, felly y cawn (as . . so). b) Felly ei chyflawni hi, fel y bo iddi (so . . that). c) Er ein bod ni yn rhwym, er hyny dattoder ni (though . . yet). d) Pe lladdai efe fi, eto mi a obeithiaf ynddo (if . . yet). e) Mor auwyl a chanwyll ei lygad (as . . as). Cyn hardded ag yntau (as . . as). f) Mwy hyfryd ei glywed ar fynydd Tabor nag ar fynydd Sinai (more . . than). g) Mor anlwg yw'r bai nes y mae'n anafu (so . . that). Cyn ddysgediced fel y gŵyr bob peth (so . . that). h) Nac aur nac arian (neither . . nor). i) Naill ai mab ai merch (either . . or). j) Ai da ai drwg ydyw (whether . . or). k) Pa un a ddaw ai peidio (whether . . or). Pa un ai byw ai marw (whether . . or). l) Pa un bynag ai cymmeradwy neu wrthodedig (whether . . or).

PREPOSITIONS.

730. Prepositions are in Welsh, as in English, placed before the words to which they refer. Mewn tref. Gerllaw'r bryn.

731. Prepositions govern different sounds, some taking after them the radical, some the middle, some few the aspirate, and yn the nasal. [In §§ 364–373, the reader will find these arranged under different heads, according to the sounds which they respectively govern.]

(a) It may be expedient here to caution the reader against an erroneous observation made by several grammarians, that ‘the middle sound comes after all prepositions, except yn, in, and tua, towards.’

732. Mewn and yn, in.

Mewn is placed before indefinitive words.

Mewn llyfr, in a book. Mewn ty, in a house.

Yn is placed before definitive words ; i.e., the definite article, whether expressed or virtually implied in another word.

a) The article expressed.

Yn y llyfr, in the book. Yn y ty, in the house.

b) Proper names.

Yn Llundain, in London. Yn Nafydd, in David.
Ym Mon, in Anglesey.

The words uffern, aneu, tragnwyddoldeb, carchar, are treated like proper names. Yn uffern, in hell. Yn aneu, in death. Yn nbra-gywyddoldeb, in eternity. Yng ngharchar, in prison.

c) The personal, possessive, and demonstrative pronouns.

Ynof fi, in me. Yn fy nhŷ, in my house. Yn hynny, in that.

d) A noun governing another in the possessive case.

Ym mhen y ffordd, at the end of the road.
Yn nhŷ fy nhad, in my father's house.

(a) Here 'mhen' and 'nhad' are virtually definitive, according to § 404 : hence they are preceded by yn not mewn. If, however, the preceding noun is not definitive, mewn will be employed.

Mewn heddwch meddwl, in peace of mind.
Mewn dinas wagedd, in a city of vanity.

e) The words pob, pawb, pwy, pa, holl, and some others.

Ym mhob man, in every place. Ym mhawb, in all.
Ym mhwy, in whom ?

"Ym mha ardal bydd fy lletty ?"

(a) Yn is also placed before some indefinite words to form compound prepositions and adverbs.

Ym mlaen, before. Yng ngŵydd, before. Yng nghyda, together with.
Ym mhlith, among. Yn lle, instead of. Yn ymyl, near.

(b) In the words 'Ym mhell' yn preposition is used for yn apposition : and, on the contrary, yn apposition is put for yn preposition in 'yn Gymrag.' [Yn bell, and ynghymrag, are also used.]

In "yn tân" the article is omitted (= "yn y tân"). "Ae a deffir yn tân," and is cast into the fire. S. Matt. iii. 10.

733. Some writers change 'yn preposition' into ym before m and mh ; and into yngh before ng and ngh. Others deny the propriety of this change, and write yn under all circumstances.

Ym mhen yr heol. Yn mhen yr heol.
Yng Nghaersalem. Yn Nghaersalem.

(a) Many join the preposition to the following word ; as, y'mlaen, y'ngwydd ; but this creates an unnecessary exception to the rules of accentuation. [See § 98 (b).]

734. The different functions of Yn.—It may be convenient here to repeat the different functions of yn, with illustrations to show its force and government in each place.

α. 'Yn participial' is placed before the Infin. mood to form a participle, and is followed by the radical sound.

Yn dysgu, learning. Yn cerdded, walking. Yn parhau, continuing.

β. 'Yn apposition' is placed before a noun or adjective, to set it in apposition with a preceding word, and is followed by the middle sound.

Y mae Arthur yn frenin, Arthur is a king.

Y mae Arthur yn ddewr, Arthur is brave.

γ. 'Yn adverbial' is placed before an adjective to convert it into an adverb, and is followed by the middle sound.

Ysgrifena yn gampus, he writes excellently.

Darlenna yn wych, he reads very well.

δ. 'Yn preposition' is placed before a substantive, adjective, or pronoun, and is followed by the nasal sound.

Yn nhŷ fy nhad, in my father's house.

Yn mhob ty, in every house.

Yn y ngharchar, in prison.

735. Gan, a or ag, gyda or gydag.—Gân = by, denotes the agent; â or âg = with, denotes the instrument; gyda or gydag = along with, together with, implies association.

Tarawyd ef â chareg gân Arthur, he was struck with a stone by Arthur.

Tyred gyda ni, come along with us.

(a) After verbs, &c., beginning with cy, cyl, cyf, cym, cyn, cys, and ym, the prep. â or âg is generally employed: it would be a repetition to use gyda or gydag, as the prefixes cy, cyl, &c., have the same force as gyd in gyda.

Cerdded gyda dynion da, } to walk with good men.
Cydgerdded â dynion da, }

(b) The preposition efo (N. W.) implies instrument or association; and is therefore used for â and gyda.

Torais y gwydr efo chareg, I broke the window with a stone.

Aethant ymaith efo thad yr eneth, they went away with the girl's father.

736. At and i.—At = "to," "towards," denotes proximity, but not entrance; hence it is used before persons; and also before places and things, when entrance into them is not implied: i = "to," "into," denotes motion towards a place or object, into which an entrance is made.

Cerddwch at eich brawd, go to your brother. At y mur, to the wall.
 Aeth i Lundain, he went to London. Rhedodd i'r ty, he ran into the house.

(a) At is opposed to oddi wrth; i is opposed to o. [§ 742.]

736 (1). Tua or tuag, tuag at = towards.—Tua or tuag must be followed by a noun, and is used only when towards = “in the direction of,” in a physical sense; and also when = nearly or about: in other circumstances the compound tuag at is employed.

Ebrychais tua'r môr, I looked towards the sea.

Nid yw yn yr afon, ond y mae'n cerdded tuag ati, he is not in the river, but he is walking towards it.

Addawodd gan punt tuag at yr ysgol newydd, he promised a hundred pounds towards the new school.

Dychwelodd tua phedwar o'r gloch, he returned about four o'clock.

737. Erbyn, yn erbyn, i . . erbyn.—Erbyn = against or by, refers to time; yn erbyn = against or contrary to, denotes opposition; i . . erbyn has the same meaning as yn erbyn, but is used only when the object is a pronoun.

Bydd yn barod erbyn bydd Ian, be ready by Thursday.

Ymladdodd yn fy erbyn. Ymladdodd yn erbyn Arthur.

Ymladdodd i'n herbyn.

737 (1). Er, erys (or er's).—Er refers to past point of time, and is used before definitive nouns = “since:” erys refers to past point of time, and is used before indefinitive nouns = “for,” when for implies point of time.

Ni welom mo honynt er mis Ionawr, we have not seen them since the month of January.

Ni bu y plant gartref erys mis, the children have not been at home for a month.

738. Cer, ger, by; cerfydd, gerfydd, by; cwedi, gwedi, after; cyda, gyda, with; can, gan, by; and the pron. prep. cenyf, genyf, &c., by me. The strong form cer, cerfydd, cwedi, &c., occurs after a (and, as), and na (nor, than): in other circumstances the lighter form ger, gerfydd, &c., is generally preferred.

A cher llaw iddo y safodd.

Safodd ger llaw iddo.

A chyda thi y safodd.

Safodd gyda thi.

A chenyf fi yr oedd.

Genyf fi yr oedd.

739. Tan, dan, under; traws, draws, across; trwy, drwy, through; tros, dros, over; and the pron. prep. tanaf, danaf, &c., under me; trwof, drwof, &c., through me; trosof, drosof, &c., for me. The strong form tan, traws, trwy, &c., is put after a and na: in other circumstances it is immaterial whether we employ this or the other lighter form, dan, draws, drwy, &c.

A than y pren yr oedd.

Trosom or drosom ni y bu Crist farw.

Dan or tan y pren yr oedd.

A thrwy y mur yr aeth.

A throsom ni y bu Crist farw. Aeth drwy or trwy y mur.

(a) The adverbs tanodd, danodd, under; trwodd, drwodd, through; trosodd, drosodd, over; trachefn, drachefn, again, follow the same rule. A thwodd yr aeth. Aeth trwodd or drwodd.

(b) The adverbs draw, yonder, dacw, yonder is, dyma, here is, dyna, there is, gymt, formerly, beunydd, daily, byth, ever, are sometimes (but seldom by good writers) made to follow the same rule. A thyma'r ffordd y gwnaeth ef y cwrw.—I. MSS.

740. Time and distance of place.—Before nouns of time and distance of place the prepositions are sometimes expressed, but most frequently omitted. Nouns signifying point of time are preceded by ar, upon; those which signify duration of time or distance of place, take am, for, or tros, over.

Yr oeddwn yno ddydd Llun, or ar ddydd Llun.

Cerddais fylltir, or am fylltir.

Gweithiais ddiwrnod, or am ddiwrnod.

741. Compound Prepositions.—By referring to § 370, &c., the reader will perceive that the compound prepositions are formed by putting in apposition two or more simple prepositions; or by the use of a substantive under government. Thus oddi ar is a compound, formed of the two simple prepositions oddi and ar. Ger llaw is another compound, formed of the simple prep. ger, and the substantive llaw, under government of ger.

(a) Those compounds which borrow a substantive to form them, are of course only assumed as such; for (e.g.) ger llaw is strictly a phrase, signifying near the hand, and may be dealt with as such.

742. O, oddi wrth, oddi ar.—O, “from,” “out of:” oddi wrth, “from” = from by, from besides: oddi ar, “from,” “off” = from on (before inanimate objects): from one’s person, possession, &c., noting privation (before animate objects).

Daeth o Lundain, he came from London. Rhedodd o’r ty, he ran out of the house.

Rhedodd oddi wrth y mur, he ran from (i.e., from close to) the wall.

Cymmerodd y cyllyll oddi ar y bwrdd, a’r afalau oddi ar yr eneth, he took the knives from (= from on) the table, and the apples from the girl.

(a) O is opposed to i; oddi wrth is opposed to at. [§ 736.]

742 (1). Gan, oddi wrth.—Gan, “from” = from the agent himself without the intervention of other means: oddi wrth, “from” = from by or besides, acting by means of an intervening instrument.

Byddwn yn fynych yn cael llyfrau gan ei dâd, a chanddo yntan, we often get books from his father, and from him.

Derbyniais lythyr ddoe oddi wrth gyfaill o Sais, I received a letter yesterday from an English friend.

(a) Oddi wrth is opposed to at. Anfonais lythyr ato, a derbyniais lythyr oddi wrtho.

742 (2). Rhag, oddi wrth.—Rhag = “from,” when not in actual contact with or in possession of (often) something dangerous or unpleasant, or what one wishes to avoid: oddi wrth = “from,” when in actual contact, or mixed up with, or close to.

Diane rhag dyn, to run away from a man [fearing to come under his power].

Diane oddi wrth ddyn, to run away from a man [from close to him].

[The prepositions at, i, o, oddi wrth, oddi ar, gan, and rhag, are more fully explained and exemplified in the Welsh Exercises, Ch. 26.]

743. When ‘compound prepositions ending with a substantive’ (see § 373) precede personal pronouns, a corresponding possessive will intervene between the component parts of the prepositions.

“Ar ol,” after.

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|--|
| 1. Ar fy ol i , after me. | 1. Ar cin hol ni , after us. |
| 2. Ar dy ol di , after thee. | 2. Ar eich hol chi , after you. |
| 3. Ar ei ol ef , after him. | 3. Ar eu hol hwy , after them. |
| Ar ci hol hi , after her. | Ar eu hol hwy , after them. |

When the former part ends with a vowel, the compound preposition is thus declined.

“O flaen,” before.

- | | |
|---|----------------------------|
| 1. O'm blaen (or o fy mlaen) i . | 1. O'n blaen ni . |
| 2. O'th flaen (or o dy flaen) di . | 2. O'ch blaen chi . |
| 3. O'i flaen ef . | 3. O'u blaen hwy . |
| O'i blaen hi . | O'u blaen hwy . |

(a) Unless the phrase is emphatic, the pers. pron. may be left out, the possessive being thought sufficient to convey the meaning.

Ar fy ol; ar dy ol; ar ei ol.

744. The prepositions is lawr, beneath, uwch lawr, above, ger llawr, near, oddi amgylch, about, and the simple prep.

heibio, by, usually take i after them, when a personal pronoun is the object.

“Ia law,” beneath.

Is law i mi, beneath me; is law i ti, beneath thee; is law iddo ef, beneath him.

(a) Heb law is an exception, as it neither takes i nor the possessive. (Ni ddaeth yma neb heb law chwi.) In some instances, however, we find the pronouns inserted. Arglwyddi ereill heb dy law di. Is. xxvi. 13.

745. When the object of the prep. is a substantive, such compounds as take i after them when followed by pronouns, may or may not retain it when followed by substantives; but those which use the poss. when the object is a pron., will of course dismiss the possessive before a substantive.

Is law i'r afon: or, Is law yr afon, below the river.
Ar ol dyddiau lawer. O flaen y brenin.

746. The following are sometimes met with in a plural form: am ben, ar ben, at; ar ol, after; ger bron, before; o flaen, before; wrch ben, above.

Yn yr eigion maith o'n blaenau.—G. Edwards.

747. Pronominal Prepositions are a class of compound words, formed by suffixing a personal pron. to a preposition. [See §§ 374–381.] They will be rendered into English by a prep. and a pron. in the objective case.

Dos ato, go to him. Pwy-a arno, press upon it.

(a) When the object of the prep. is a noun, the pronominal inflection will of course be dismissed.

Dos at y dyn, go to the man. Pwysa ar y gareg, press upon the stone.

748. When the pron. requires to be expressed with a degree of emphasis, it is repeated after the pronominal preposition.

Simple.		Emphatic.
Ataf, to me.	Atom, to us.	Ataf fi .	Atom ni .
Atat, to thee.	Atoch, to you.	Atat ti .	Atoch chwi .
Ato, to him.		Ato ef or fo .
Ati, to her.	Atynt, to them.	Ati hi .	Atynt hwy .

749. Am danaf, &c., about me: oddi am danaf, &c., from about me, are used only when the object of the preposition is a personal pronoun: if the object is a noun, am and oddi am are employed.

Soniodd am danoch .	Tynodd y wisg oddi am danoch .
Soniodd am ddyn .	Tynodd y wisg oddi am ddyn .

750. O honof, &c., of me. [§ 187 (b).] This form has three uses.

a) To express the genitive of personal pronouns.

Mae pawb o honom yn barod, all of us are ready.

Efe yw'r goren o honynt, he is the best of them.

Nid oes dim o hono, there is none of it.

If the genitive is a noun, "honof," &c., is dismissed.

Mae pawb o'r dynion yn barod, all the men are ready.

b) It is used as the subject of an infinitive verb to express the past Indicative, or the Subjunctive, in affirmative clauses; and also to express past or future time when the infinitive is coupled to a finite verb.

Clywais ddywedyd o hono, I heard that he said. [§§ 763, 764.]

Gorchymynodd ddyfod o honof, he commanded that I should come. [§§ 763, 764.]

Pan ddaeth, a myned o hono, when he came, and went. [§§ 666, 667.]

Pan ddelo, a myned o hono, when he will come, and will have gone. [§§ 666, 667.]

If the subject of the infinitive is a noun, "honof," &c., is dismissed.

Clywais ddywedyd o'r gwr, I heard that the man said.

c) Preceded by "mo," honof, &c., is a strong form. in negative, and negative interrogative clauses, of the accusative personal pronoun, and, with passive verbs, of the nominative.

Ni chlywais i mo hono (=ni chlywais i ef), I did not hear him.

Ni chlywyd mo hono (=ni chlywyd ef), he was not heard.

A glywsoch chiwi mo hono (=a glywsoch chiwi ef), did you not hear him?

A glywyd mo hono (=a glywyd ef), was he not heard?

If the accusative, or the nominative of a passive verb, is a noun, honof, &c., is dismissed.

Ni chlywais mo'r dyn. Ni chlywir mo'r dyn.

A glywsoch chiwi mo'r dyn? A glywyd mo'r dyn?

750 (1). Prepositions after Verbs, &c.—In very many cases, the prepositions which follow intransitive verbs and other parts of speech may be translated literally into English.

Hyder ar, reliance on.

Hyderu ar, rely on.

Ymddibyn ar, depend upon.

Euog o, guilty of.

Amddifad o, destitute of.

Amddifadu o, deprive of.

Argyhoeddi o, convince of.

Cyfranogi o, partake of.

Llawr o, full of.

Marw o, die of.

Rhwym i, bound to.
Cyfarfod â, meet with.
Cymmysgu â, mix with.

Ymladd â, fight with.
Ymddiddan â, converse with.

750 (2). In many instances, however, the idioms of the two languages differ considerably, as will be seen below. Sometimes the prepositions are different in meaning; e.g., ar in "blino ar" differs from of in "to be tired of:" and sometimes the verb is transitive in one language, and intransitive in the other, and therefore followed by a preposition. The transitive verb excel is rendered into Welsh by rhagori and the preposition ar.

750 (3). General Rules.

1. Such verbs as are in English followed by two accusatives, one of the thing and the other of the person, have in Welsh the preposition *i*¹ (to) placed before the accusative of the person. The following are some of them.

Rhoddi, to give.	Dangos, to show.	Madden, to forgive.
Cynnwg, to offer.	Danfôn, to send.	Gofyn, to ask.
Addaw, to promise.	Ateb, to answer.	Talu, to pay.

Examples.—Ni roddaist i mi ddwfr, thou gavest me no water. Cynnygiais ddwy bunt i'r dyn, I offered the man two pounds. Beth a addawsoch i'r gweision? what did you promise the servants? Madden i ni ein dyledion, forgive us our debts. Dangoswch y darlun iddi, show her the picture.

Such verbs as have the infinitive as the accusative of the thing, fall under this rule.

Gorchymryn, to command.	Erchi, to bid.	Gadael, to let.
Peri, to bid; order.	Gwneyd, to make.	Goddef, to allow.
Caniatâu, to permit.

Examples.—Pa ham y maent yn gorchymryn i ni fod yn ddistaw? why do they command us to be silent? Mi a wnâf iddo weithio, I will make him work. Perais i chwi fyned ymaith, onid do? I ordered you to go away, did I not? Gadewch i mi wneyd y gwaith, let me do the work.

2. I and at = to: see § 763. O, oddi wrth, oddi ar, gan, rhag = from: see § 742, &c.

3. Verbs, and other parts of speech, beginning with cy, cyl, cyf, cym, cyn, cys, and ym, when these prefixes imply mutual or together, are generally followed by â or âg, or (N. W.) cfo.

Cydnabyddus â , acquainted with.	Cydymdeimlo â , to sympathize with.
Cydnabyddiaeth â , acquaintance with.	Cydymdeimlad â , sympathy with.

Cydgerdded â, to walk with.
 Cyfammod â, a covenant with.
 Cyfreithio â, to go to law with.
 Cymmodi â, to reconcile to.
 Cymmysgu â, to mix with.
 Cynnysgaeddu â, to endue with.
 Cyssylltu â, to connect with.
 Cytuno â, to agree with.

Cyttundeb â, an agreement with Ymladd â, to fight with.
 Ymryson â, to contend with.
 Ymddiddan â, to converse with.
 Ymyraeth â, to interfere or meddle with.
 Ymwneyd â, to have to do or be engaged with.
 Ymhela â, to meddle with.

Examples.—Cymmoder chwi â Duw, be ye reconciled to God. Cytuna â'th wrthwynebwr, agree with thine adversary. Wedi ei gymmysgu â dwfr, mixed with water. Cynnysgaedda hwynt â diniweidrwydd buchedd, endue them with innocency of life. Myfi ydwyf yn cadarnhau fy nghyfammod â chwi, I establish my covenant with you. Gwae a ymrysono â'i Luniwr! woe (unto him) that striveth with his Maker! Os gall efe ymladd â mi, if he be able to fight with me.

4. Wrth after verbs, &c., of telling, speaking, complaining, confessing, &c. = to.

Dweyd or dywedyd wrth, to tell.
 Llefaru wrth, to speak to.
 Mynegu wrth, to relate or tell to.
 Adrodd wrth, to relate to.
 Sisial wrth, to whisper to.
 Sibrwd wrth, to whisper to.

Cyhuddo wrth, to accuse to.
 Addef wrth, to acknowledge to.
 Cyfaddef wrth, to confess to.
 Cyfaddefiad wrth, confession to.
 Cyffesu wrth, to confess to.
 Cwyno wrth, to complain to.

Achwyn wrth, to complain to.

Examples.—Addefais fy mhechod wrthynt, I acknowledged my sin unto thee. Os dywed neb ddim wrthyeh, if any man say aught unto you. Yna y llefara Efe wrthynt, then shall He speak unto them. Beth yr oedd hi yn ei sibrwd wrthyeh? what was she whispering to you?

(a) Some of the verbs of telling (e.g., dweyd or dywedyd, mynegu, adrodd) are sometimes followed by i, not wrth. The difference seems to be that i is used when the verb implies simply telling, and wrth when it implies telling or narrating with a certain degree of minuteness.

5. Wrth, after words principally verbs and adjectives (and adverbs derived therefrom), expressive of kind disposition, or the contrary = to.

Angharedig wrth, unkind to.
 Caredig wrth, kind to.
 Cäs wrth, disagreeable to.
 Caled wrth, hard to.
 Creulawn wrth, cruel to.
 Da wrth, good or kind to.

Hael or haelionus wrth, liberal to.
 Llym wrth, severe to.
 Tirion wrth, courteous or pleasant to.
 Tosturiol wrth, compassionate to.
 Trugarog wrth, merciful to.
 Tyner wrth, tender to.

Examples.—Bydd drugarog wrthym, be merciful to us. Y mae efe yn angharedig iawn wrth ei blentyn, he is very unkind to his child. Rhaid i chwi beidio â bod yn llym wrth eich plant, you must not be severe to your children.

(a) Sometimes i is found instead of wrth; and sometimes at and tuas at (= towards). Daionus yw yr Arglwydd i bawb, the Lord is good to all. Ac ni bydd raslawn i'r llane, neither will it show favour to the young man.

(b) Substantives derived from adjectives of this class are, as a rule, followed by at or tuag at (=to, towards); sometimes by i (=to).

Casineb at or tuag at, hatred to. Crenlondeb at or tuag at, cruelty to.
Llymder at or tuag at, severity to. to.

Examples.—Crenlondeb at anifeiliaid, cruelty to animals. Nid oes genyf fi ddim casineb tuag ato, I have no hatred towards him. Peidiweli âg arfer llymder tuag ato, don't use severity to him.

6. Wrth, so as to be joined or attached to (mostly in a physical sense) = to.

Cadwyno wrth, to chain to .	Hoelio wrth, to nail to .
Cyodio wrth, to join to; to take hold of .	Rhwymo wrth, to bind or tie to .
Cylymu wrth, to tie to .	Sicrhau wrth, to fasten to .
Cysylltu wrth, to join to .	Ymglymu wrth, to join one's self to .
Glynn wrth, to cling to .	Ymlynud wrth, to cling to .

Examples.—Ni lynant y naill wrth y llall, they will not cleave one to another. Gan ei hoelio wrth y Groes, nailing it to the Cross. Gwae y rhai sydd yn cydio maes wrth faes, woe to them that join field to field. Cadwyno ei wrth goeden, to chain a dog to a tree.

7. Ar after words of praying, entreating, calling, &c. = to, &c.

Atolygu ar, to beseech . (See list.)	Galw ar, to call to, call upon .
Deisyf ar, to desire, beseech .	(See list.)
Dymuno ar, to request, beg of .	Gwaeddi ar, to cry to, shout to .
Erfyn ar, to beg of .	Gweddi ar, a prayer to .
Erchi ar, to ask, pray to . (See list.)	Gweddio ar, to pray to .
	Llefain ar, to cry to .

Examples.—Gweddi ar Dduw dros yr Israel, a prayer to God for Israel. Deisyfasant arnynt fynd allan o'r ddinas, they desired them to depart out of the city. Oni ddymunais arnoch aros gyda hi? did I not beg of you to remain with her? Llefais arno â'm geneu, I called unto him with my mouth. Erfyniweh ar y dyn beidio â myned ynaith, beg of the man not to go away. Gwaeddwch ar y bachgen, shout to the boy.

[Ar, placed before a noun or adjective, often corresponds to at, or its equivalents. Ar amserau, at times. Ar gost, at the expense or cost. Ar ben, at an end. Ar y eyntaf, at first. Ar y goreu, at best. Ar frys, in haste. Ar gam, amiss. Arled, abroad. Ar gyhoedd, in public, publicly. Ar werth, on sale. Ar unwaith, at once. Ar fai, in fault, to be blamed.]

Taraw wrth, to meet, to meet with. Tarewais wrthi o ddamwain, I met her by chance.

Tebyg o or i, likely to. Y mae efe yn debyg o fod yn llefarwr da, he is likely to be a good speaker. Yn debyg i fod yn ôl, likely to be behind. Heb. iv. 1.

Tebyg i, like (to). Y mae hi yn debyg iawn i chwi, she is very like you.

Terfyn ar, an end to. Er mwyn rhoi terfyn ar eu cwerylon, in order to put an end to their quarrels.

Tewi â, to keep silent. The Infin. of this verb is usually translated by "not to," and the Imper. by "do not" or "don't," before verbs of saying, &c. Tewch â dweyd wrth neb, don't tell any one.

Tosturio wrth, to have pity upon, to pity. Hi a dosturiodd wrtho, she had compassion on him. Ex ii. 6.

Tramgwyddo wrth, to be offended with, at. Yr wyf yn ofni ei bod hi wedi tramgwyddo wrthyf, I am afraid that she is offended with me.

Troi yn, to turn into; to become. Troi y gegin yn barlwr, to convert the kitchen into a parlour. Mae efe wedi troi yn ddyn drwg iawn, he is become a very bad man.

Trugarhau wrth, to have mercy upon. Trugarha wrthym, have mercy upon us.

Ufuddhau i, to obey. Ufuddhewch i'ch meistriaid, obey your masters. [Cf. L. obedire.]

Ymadael or ymadaw â, to leave, part with, forsake. Ymadael â phechod, to forsake sin.

Ymaflwyd yn¹, to take or lay hold of. Samson a ymaflodd yn y ddwy golofn ganol, Samson took hold of the two middle pillars. Judges xvi. 29.

Ymbil â, to beseech. Pan ymbiliodd â ni, when he besought us. Gen. xlii. 21.

Ymfoddloni ar, to be content or satisfied with. Ymfoddloni ar gyngor un arall, to be satisfied with another man's advice.—Dilyniad Crist.

Ymgymmeryd â, to undertake. Gwrthododd ymgymmeryd â'r gwaith, he declined to undertake the work.

Ymgymmodi â, to be reconciled to. Y maent wedi ymgymmodi â'u gilydd, they are reconciled to each other.

Ymfyn â, to enquire of. Hi a aeth i ymfyn â'r Arglwydd, she went to enquire of the Lord. Gen. xxv. 22.

Ymosod ar, to set upon, to attack. Ymosodwyd arnynt gan ladron, they were attacked by thieves.

Ymwadu â, to deny = renounce, disown. Ymwaded âg ef ei hun, let him deny himself. S. Mark xvi. 24.

Ymwelod â, to visit. Mi a ymwelaf â chwi drachefn, I will see you again. S. John xvi. 22.

Ymwrthod â, to abstain from. Ymwrthod â diodydd meddwol, to abstain from intoxicating drinks.

Yn unol â, in accordance with, agreeably to. Yn unol â'ch cais, in accordance with your request.

Ysgrifenu at, to write to. Nid hoff genyf ysgrifenu at gyfreithwyr, I do not like to write to lawyers.

¹ Mean if the object is indefinite. § 732.

INTERJECTIONS.

751. When an interjection is placed before a noun, adjective, or pronoun, it is followed by the middle sound.

O Dad! O drugarog Dad! Och fi!
Ha fab dyn, Ho son of man. Ezek. xxix. 18.

752. When the interjection is omitted, the noun or adjective under its government is most usually put in the middle sound; but sometimes retains its radical initial.

Mid. { Garedig gyfaill, dear friend.
Barchedig Syr. Drugarog Dad.
Rad. Duw Dad, o'r nef, trugarha wrthym.

753. When an interjection intervenes between a verb and its subject or object, it is followed by the middle sound.

Nid yw efe yn gallu, ow! dalu dim, he is not able, alas! to pay anything.

754. When it stands before a finite verb, the verb retains its radical sound; as,

O! tyred yma, O! come here. Och! paid á'm lladd, O! do not kill me.

CLAUSES.

755. Clauses are divided into main (or principal) and subjoined.

756. 'The main clause is that which contains the leading proposition ; and it must express a complete idea, even when separated from the rest of the sentence.'

He will not be pardoned, unless he repent.

He would not be pardoned, unless he repented.

Pardon him. May he be pardoned.

757. 'A subjoined clause is a simple sentence, or part of a sentence, modifying the main clause.'

Arthur says that he has learnt his lesson.

Arthur shall have a penny, because he has learnt his lesson.

Arthur shall have a penny, if he will learn his lesson.

TRANSITIVE CLAUSE.

758. The Transitive clause comes after words significative of affirmation, sense, and mental operations ; as saying, seeing, hearing, feeling, knowing, thinking, &c. In English it is introduced by the conjunction that, and the late Kerchever Arnold defines it as "A sentence that stands in apposition to a nominative or accusative, expressed or understood, in the principal sentence."

It is strange that you think so. Here the clause that you think so is in apposition to it ; i.e., this thing.

I am glad that you are come = I am glad of this ; namely, that you are come.¹

759. In Welsh this clause is expressed (a) in positive sentences, by the Infinitive mood, or by the conjunction y, yr, mai or taw, with finite moods : (b) in negative sentences, by finite moods. The particles of negation in Transitive clauses are na, nad, and nas, except in connection with mai (or taw), which, if retained, is followed by nid.

760. The Infinitive Mood.—This construction is used in simple narration, or when the emphasis, if any, falls on the verb of the clause.

761. Form I. The “Infinitive construction ;” i.e., the Infinitive mood followed by its subject.—This construction occurs when the verb is bod, either as main or auxiliary, and when it simply declares a thing ; i.e., when it is equivalent to a verb in the Indicative mood. The tenses of the Indic. which will admit of this form in subordinate sentences are the following :—

	Indicative.	Infinitive.
Pres.	Yr wyf yn dysgu.	Dywed fy mod i yn dysgu.
Imperf.	Yr oeddwn yn dysgu.	Dywedai fy mod i yn dysgu.
Perf.-def.	Yr wyf wedi dysgu.	Dywed fy mod i wedi dysgu.
Plup.	Yr oeddwn wedi dysgu.	Dywedodd fy mod i wedi dysgu.

. These tenses are fully conjugated under §§ 276 and 294.

Additional Examples.

1. Ac os bwriwn at hyn eu bod hwy yn ddigon cydnabyddus â'r pethau.—Edw. Samuel.

2. Harddwch yr iaith yw bod ei geiriau yn dangars eu defnydd eys-schyn.—Dr. Pughe.

3. Ymddengys bod yr Ysgrythyrau wedi myned yn dra phrinion.—W. Davies.

4. Wrth weled fod ei holl feddwl ar y byd a ddaw.—Nicander.

[Translation.—1. And if we add to this that they are sufficiently acquainted with the things. 2. The beauty of the language is that its words show their original material. 3. It seems that the Scriptures had become very scarce. 4. Seeing that all his thoughts were on the world to come.]

(a) If the subject be a pronoun, it may be omitted ; but it is always represented by a corresponding possessive immediately preceding the verb. (Gwyr fy mod yn dyfod, he knows that I am coming.)

(b) With this construction of the Infinitive for Indicative compare the Greek and Latin idioms.

Τῷ οὐ νεμεσιζομ' Ἀχαιοὺς ἀσχαλᾶν παρὰ νηυσὶ κορωνίσιν. — Homer.

Dicit me scribere. Ferunt unam exspirasse.

762. If the sentence is negative, it will be expressed by a corresponding tense of the Indicative mood.

Gwyr fod Arthur yn dyfod, he knows that Arthur is coming.

Gwyr nad yw Arthur yn dyfod, he knows that Arthur is not coming.

Gwyddai fod Arthur yn dyfod, he knew that Arthur was coming.

Gwyddai nad oedd Arthur yn dyfod, he knew that Arthur was not coming.

Additional Examples.

1. Mae'n gyffelybol nad oedd ganddynt y llyfrau hynny.—Edw. Samuel.

2. Ffrostio nad oes dim bai ynddi.—M. Kyffin.

3. Fel y gwybyddont nad ydynt hwy ond dynion.—Ed. Prys.

4. Lle y daugosais nad oes ond un gwir Dduw.—Edw. Samuel.

[Translation.—1. It is likely that they had not those books. 2. To boast that there is no fault in it. 3. That they may know that they are but men. 4. Where I have shown that there is but one true God.]

763. Form II. The “genitive construction;” i.e., the Infinitive mood with its subject connected to it by the preposition “o,” if the subject be a noun; by an inflection of “o honof,” if it be a pronoun. [See conjugation, §§ 276 and 294.]

This construction is used to express (a) the past Indicative (perf. and plup. = I learnt, have learnt, had learnt); or (b) the Subjunctive (pres. and imperf. = may, might, would or should learn).

764. In a negative sentence, the former will be expressed by the perfect and pluperfect Indicative; the latter by the present and imperfect Subjunctive.

Indicative.

Yn gwybod fyned o'r gwr; fyned o hono ef, knowing that the man went; that he went.

Yn gwybod nad aeth y gwr; nad aeth efe, knowing that the man went not; that he went not.

Subjunctive.

Gorchymmyn gymmeryd o honof y llyfr, he commands that I should take the book.

Gorchymmyn na chymmerwyf y llyfr, he commands that I shou'd not take the book.

Gorchymmynodd gymmeryd o honof y llyfr, he commanded that I should take the book.

Gorchymmynodd na chymmerwn y llyfr, he commanded that I should not take the book.

Additional Examples.

1. Gwn yn wir anfon o'r Arglwydd ei angel. Acts xii. 11.

2. Yn gwybod dyngu o Dduw iddo. Acts ii. 30.

3. Y mae yn dywedyd siarad o honaw.—Edw. Samuel.

4. Fel hyn y gwelwn ganiatáu o'r Eglwys wncuthur y cyfryw newid-iadau.—Com. Prayer.

5. Hyn yw ewylllys yr Hwn a'm hanfonodd i, cael o bob un fywyd tra-gynyddol. S. John vi. 40.

6. Chwennych yr ydym ni cael o bawb wybod ein hachos.—M. Kyffin.

7. Mae genyf un ffafr i'w gofyn genych, a hyn yw, fod o honoch mor fwyn a gyru i mi engraffau.—Gor. Owen.

8. Yr wyf yn ewyllsio fod o honynt hwythau hefyd gyda Myfi. S. John xvii. 24.

[Translation.—1. I know of a surety that the Lord hath sent his angel. 2. Knowing that the Lord had sworn to him. 3. He says that he spoke. 4. Thus we see that the Church has given permission to make such alterations. 5. This is the will of Him, That sent Me, that every one may have everlasting life. 6. We desire that all may know our cause. 7. I have one favour to ask you, and that is, that you be so kind as to send me examples. 8. I will that they also be with Me.]

764 (1). The clause has the force of the Subjunctive after such sentences as it is important, it is necessary, it is required, and after words that imply commanding, entreating, wishing, praying, &c. But after words of commanding, entreating, &c., the Infinitive is often preceded by the preposition ar, upon, or am, for, to distinguish this from the other signification of the verb.

Thus, “dywedodd fyned o hono” = he said that he went; but “dywedodd ar fyned o hono” = he said (or ordered) that he should go.

(a) The connectives o and o honof are sometimes omitted after a certain class of verbs; as,

Hon yw y ddamnedigaeth, ddwyfod goleuni i'r byd (for ddwyfod o oleuni i'r byd).

Na thybiwch fy nyfod i dori y gyfraith (for ddwyfod o honof).

765. Form III. [See conjugation, §§ 276, 294.] The “dative construction,” i.e., *the Infinitive mood preceded by its subject under the government of the preposition “i.”*¹

In this construction the verb may have the force of (a) the past Indicative (perfect and plup.); or (b) the Subjunctive (pres. and imperf.), according to the import of the verb of the main clause, as in Form II.

765 (1). In a negative sentence, the former will be expressed by perfect and pluperfect Indicative; the latter by present and imperfect Subjunctive, or by peidio â (to cease from) followed by the other Infinitive verb.

Indicative.

Dywed i mi fyned, he says that I went.

Dywed nad aethym, he says that I did not go.

Subjunctive.

Gorchymynodd i mi fyned, he commanded me to go.

Gorchymynodd [i mi] nad awn, he commanded [me] that I should not go.

Gorchymynodd i mi beidio â myned, he commanded me not to go.

Additional Examples.

1. Y dynion a wyddent iddo ffoi oddi ger bron yr Arglwydd. Jonah i. 10.

2. Barn rhai yw, i Wrttheyrn wahodd y Sacson.—Theo. Evans.

3. Gorchymynaf na rlawiont arni hi. Is. v. 6.

4. Efe a weddiodd na byddai rlaw. S. James v. 17.

5. Y mae yn wir i genedl y Cymry wrthsefyll y surdoes yn hwy na'u cymmydigion.—Walter Davies.

6. Traethodd na welsai fo criod ddiiben daionus o un o'r cynghorau.—M. Kyffin.

[Translation.—1. The men knew that he had fled from the presence of the Lord. 2. It is the opinion of some that Vortigern invited the Saxons. 3. I will command that they rain not upon it. 4. He prayed that there might not be rain. 5. It is true that the Welsh nation withstood the leaven longer than their neighbours. 6. He said that he had never seen a good purpose of any of the councils.]

765 (2). The past Indicative is often expressed by the auxiliary ddarfod, followed by the above construction.

Dywed ddarfod i mi fyned ymaith, he says that I went away.

Cânt weled ddarfod iddynt hwy eu hunain ymadael â'r apostolion, they shall see that they themselves have departed from the apostles.—M. Kyffin.

766. After verbs of commanding, entreating, wishing, praying, &c., the prep. ar and am, followed by the above construction (§ 765), are often used to express the Subjunctive = may, might, would, should.

Erfyniais ar i'r dynion fyned ymaith, I begged that the men would go away.

Gan ddywedyd am iddynt wneuthur delw, saying that they should make an image. Rev. xiii. 14.

(a) The auxiliary bôd is sometimes found after ar or am (and sometimes without the prep.), and followed by the preceding construction.

Yn unig [ar] fod i ni gofio'r tlodion, only that we should remember the poor. Gal. ii. 10.

766 (1). In negative sentences the present and imperfect Subjunctive are used, or peidio â followed by the other verb in the Infinitive.

Gwel na ddywedych wrth neb, see that thou tell no one. S. Mark i. 44.
 Erfyniais nad elai y dynion ymaith, } I begged that the men would Erfyniais ar i'r dynion beidio â myned } not go away.
 ymaith,

767. Passive Voice.—The passive form is made by the use of cael (to have), accompanied by the constructions mentioned under Forms I., II., III.

(I.) Fy mod i yn cael fy nysgu, that I am (or was) being taught.
 Nad wyf fi yn cael fy nysgu, that I am (or was) not being taught.
 Fod A. yn cael ei ddysgu, that A. is (or was) being taught.
 Nad yw A. yn cael ei ddysgu, that A. is (or was) not being taught.
 Fy mod i wedi [cael] fy nysgu, that I have been taught.
 Nad wyf fi wedi [cael] fy nysgu, that I have not been taught.
 Fod A. wedi [cael] ei ddysgu, that A. has been taught.
 Nad yw A. wedi [cael] ei ddysgu, that A. has not been taught.

(II.) Gael o honof fi fy nysgu, that I was or have been taught.
 Na ddysgwyd fi, or na chafais i fy nysgu, that I was not or have not been taught.
 Gael o A. ei ddysgu, that A. was or has been taught.
 Na ddysgwyd A., or na chafodd A. ei ddysgu, that A. was not or has not been taught.

(III.) I mi gael fy nysgu, that I was or have been taught.
 Na ddysgwyd fi, or na chafais i fy nysgu, that I was not or have not been taught.
 I A. gael ei ddysgu, that A. was or has been taught.
 Na ddysgwyd A., or na chafodd A. ei ddysgu, that A. was not or has not been taught.

The auxiliary darfod (neg. na ddarfu) may be prefixed to Form III. Ddarfod i mi (neg. na ddarfu i mi) gael fy nysgu.

(a)  Rules 764 (1), 766, apply to the passive as well as to the active voice.

1. Nid yw yn gyfiawn gael o konynt oll eu cospi.
2. Deisyfaïs [ar] i'r bachgen gael ei ryddhau.
3. Deisyfasant na chwagnegid yr ymadrodd wrthynt. Heb. xii. 19.
4. Gorchymynodd fod i'r epistolau gael eu darllen.—W. Davies.
5. Deddfwyd yn y Senedd fod i'r Ddau Destament gael eu cyfieithu.—W. Davies.

6. Dywedodd [ar] fod¹ i Arthur gael ei ddysgu.

[Translation.—It is not just that they should all be punished. 2. I requested that the boy should be liberated. 3. They entreated that the word should not be spoken to them any more. 4. He commanded that the epistles should be read. 5. It was enacted in Parliament that both Testaments should be translated. 6. He ordered that Arthur should be taught.]

¹ In a clause introduced by “fod” or “ar fod,” the prep. i may stand before the auxiliary cael instead of before the subject of the Infinitive: thus—“Dywedodd [ar] fod Arthur i gael ei ddysgu.”

768. Form IV. Another form for the passive is the Infinitive followed by an object (= a subject with a finite verb). This construction is used in positive sentences, and expresses (a) the past Indicative, and (b) the Subjunctive.

Negative sentences will be expressed (a) by the perfect and pluperfect Indicative; or (b) if contingent in signification, by the Subjunctive, or by peidio â, followed by the other verb in the Infinitive.

Indicative.

Dywedodd ddwyn yr arian ymaith, he said that the money was taken away.

Dywedodd na ddygwyd yr arian ymaith, he said that the money was not taken away.

Or with darfod. Dywedodd ddarfod dwyn yr arian ymaith; neg., na ddarfurwyd dwyn yr arian ymaith.

Subjunctive.

Gorchymynodd ddwyn Arthur yno, he commanded that Arthur should be brought there.

Gorchymynodd na ddygid Arthur yno,	} he commanded that Arthur
Gorchymynodd beidio â dwyn Arthur yno,
	should not be brought there.

(a) When the sentence has the force of the Subjunctive, the Infinitive is often preceded by the preposition ar or am.

Gorchymynodd ar (or am) ddwyn Arthur yno.

Gorchymynodd ar (or am) beidio â dwyn Arthur yno.

Additional Examples.

1. Gan brofi ddarfod cin cyfiawnhau.—W. Salsbri.

2. Yn dywedyd wneuthur Iesu Grist yn Weinidlog i'r enwaediad. Rom. xv. 8.

3. Sylwasom drin yr achaws gan creill yn fedrus a phriodawl.—Tegid.

[Translation.—1. Proving that we have been justified. 2. Saying that Jesus Christ was made a Minister of the circumcision. 3. We have observed that the matter has been treated by others cleverly and properly.]

769. Y and yr, mai and taw, with finite moods.

770. Y and yr, like the Infinitive for Indicative, are used in simple narration; and hence the order will be conjunction, verb, subject.

(a) Y is put before consonants and governs the radical sound; yr before vowels.

771. Y or yr is placed before the tenses byddaf (pres. of habit), byddwn (imperf. of habit), byddaf (future), whether they be main or auxiliary verbs; before the *first future*¹ of all inflected verbs; and before the imperfect and pluperfect Subjunctive of all verbs, whether inflected or periphrastic.

In negative sentences the conjunction y or yr is omitted, the particle na, nad, or nas, preceding the verb.

Efe a ddywed y bydd yn gweled y meddyg bob dydd, he says that he sees the medical man every day.

Yr ym yn gobeithio y deuant yma y fory, we hope that they will come here to-morrow.

Yr wyf yn meddwl na ddeuai hi yma, I think that she would not come here.

(a) This "finite construction" and the "infinitive construction" (forms I., II., III.) have exactly the same force, i.e., both describe simple narration; but some tenses prefer the finite and others the infinitive construction.

Such verbs as gwybod, adnabod, gallu, medru, gweld, clywed, meddu, arfer, will take either form in the present and imperf. Indicative. See Welsh Exercises, Ch. 45.

Dichon (present tense only) always takes the finite construction.

Mi a welaf yr adwaenoch [eich bod yn adnabod] y trigolion, I see that you know the inhabitants. Efe a gyfaddefodd y gwyddai [ei fod yn gwybód] i ba le yr aethent, he confessed that he knew where they had gone.

¹ This construction is sometimes seen with the other tenses of the Indicative; but the infinitive construction is far preferable. "Yn dangos nad efe yw yr achos y gwrthodwyd yr Iuddewon" (showing that he was not the cause that the Jews were rejected) would be better expressed by "Yr Iuddewon gael eu gwrthod," or "gael o'r Iuddewon eu gwrthod."

did not possess a heart. 5. They boast that their Church cannot fall. 6. I resolved many a time that I would never come to Anglesey. 7. We hope that they will live happily together.]

772. Mai or taw.—It has been seen that y is found when the finite verb takes the lead in a sentence; mài (or taw), on the other hand, comes in when some other part of speech (including the Infinitive verb) is antithetic, and goes before the verb. Mai is never found before finite verbs; and hence, as it has no influence over the verb, the verb may either be simple or compound, either in the Indicative or Subjunctive, and of any tense.

Dywedir mai goleuni yw Duw, it is said that God is light.

Dywedir mai trwy ffydd y mae Duw yn cyflawnhau, it is said that God justifies by faith.

Dywedir mai ceisio anrhydedd yr oedd, it is said that he was seeking honour.

Dywedir mai yma y daeth eich brawd, it is said that your brother came here.

(a) Mai in North Wales; taw (and sometimes tai) in South Wales. Both govern the radical sound.

It is certain that they were men given to voluptuousness. 4. He knew that it was easy to reconcile where there was love. 5. It is believed that he divided Wales into bishoprics. 6. It is known that they are long.]

773. In a negative sentence the antithetic word is preceded by nad, or by mai or taw with nid; as,

Dywed nad efe yw y gwr,	} he says that he is not
Dywed mai nid efe yw y gwr,
	} the man.

Additional Examples.

1. Yn meddwl nad gwaith yr awdwyr hynny oddynt.—Edw. Samuel.
2. Dywedant nad rhydd oedd i ni guchwyn yr hdynt.—M. Kyffin.
3. Fe ellir tybied mai nid ar y dddeu ei hun y gweddient.—Theo.
Evans.
4. Sylwer mai nid hawdd camsynied “tonau” (waves) a “tonau”

[Translation.—1. Thinking that they were not the work of those authors. 2. They say that we were not at liberty to commence the affair. 3. One may think that it was not to the image itself they prayed. 4. Let it be observed that it is not easy to mistake “tonau” (waves) and “tonau” (tunes).]

CAUSE CLAUSE.

774. Sentences introduced by conjunctions causal are divided into (a) cause clause = ⁊i, quod, because: (b) explanatory clause = ⁊áz, enim, for.

The cause clause is headed, in Welsh, by the following words: O achos, o herwydd, o blegyd, o waith, o ran, am (more rarely, achos, herwydd, plegyd, o ethryb, gwaith) = because. Gan (can) = since, seeing that, as. Yn gymmaint a or ag = inasmuch as. Rhag = because [see 783 (1).]

775. The particles of negation in a cause clause are na, nad, and nas, except when mui or taw is retained. (See below.)

776. The preceding causal conjunctions are followed by the various forms exhibited under the Transitive Clause; i.e., a Transitive may be converted into a Cause clause merely by prefixing a causal conjunction.

777. Form I. The Infinitive followed by its subject, in positive sentences. The Indicative followed by its subject, in negative sentences. [§§ 761, 762.]

O herwydd fy mod i yn dysgu, because I learn.

O herwydd nad wyf fi yn dysgu, because I do not learn.

O herwydd bod Arthur yn dysgu, because Arthur learns.

O herwydd nad yw Arthur yn dysgu, because Arthur does not learn.

Additional Examples.

1. Ni chwanegaf felldithio y ddaiar o herwydd bod bryd calon dyn yn ddwng o'i ieuenctyd. Gen. viii. 21.

2. Moses a guddiwyd, o achos eu bod yn ci wled yn fuchgen thws. Heb. xi. 23.

3. Nid oes achos anghoelio yr epistol o herwydd nad yw'r awdwr yn adnabyddus.—E. Samuel.

4. Gan fod y pwnc yn bwysig.—Tegid.

5. O ran bod yno ymherodron.—Ellis Wynne.

6. Gan na chysfadddefir y gwir ganddynt.

7. O herwydd bod eu harfau yn loerwch.

[Translation.—1. I will not again curse the ground, because the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth. 2. Moses was hid, because they saw him a pretty boy. 3. There is no reason for disbelieving the epistle because the author is not known. 4. As the subject is important. 5. Because there are (or were) emperors there. 6. Seeing that the truth is not confessed by them. 7. Because their arms are (or were) brighter.]

778. Form II. The Infinitive with its subject connected by 'o,' or an inflection of 'o honof,' in positive sentences. The perfect or plup. Indicative followed by its subject, in negative sentences. [§§ 763, 764.]

O herwydd caru o Arthur y rhian, because Arthur loved the lady.

O herwydd na charodd Arthur y rhian, because Arthur did not love the lady.

O herwydd caru o hono ef hi, because he loved her.

O herwydd na charodd efe hi, because he did not love her.

Additional Examples.

1. Am hyny gan brofi o honom wirionedd y grefydd Cristionogol.—E. Samuel.

2. Ni chaed niwed arno, o herwydd credu o hono yn ei Dduw. Dan. vi. 23.

3. Am farau o hono ei enaid yn gyflawn. Job xxxii. 2.

4. O herwydd caru o'r Arglwydd chwi. Deut. vii. 8.

5. Yn gymmaint a dioddef o hono. Heb. ii. 18.

[Translation.—1. Therefore seeing we have proved the truth of the Christian religion. 2. No hurt was found upon him, because he believed in his God. 3. Because he judged his soul righteous. 4. Because the Lord loved you. 5. Inasmuch as He hath suffered.]

779. Form III. The Infinitive preceded by its subject under the government of the prep. 'i,' in positive sentences. The perfect or plup. Indicative followed by its subject, in negative sentences. [§ 765.]

O herwydd i Arthur ei charu, because Arthur loved her.

O herwydd na charodd Arthur hi, because Arthur did not love her.

Additional Examples.

1. O herwydd i ti eu hoffi hwynt. Ps. xlv. 3.

2. Gan i Dduw ddwyn lystiolaeth i'w roddion cf. Heb. xi. 4.

3. Am na chwasant hwy ateb. Job xxxii. 3.

4. Yn gymmaint ay i mi eich gwahodd. Prov. i. 24.

[Translation.—1. Because thou hast loved them. 2. Seeing that God bore testimony to his gifts. 3. Because they had no answer. 4. Inasmuch as I have invited you.]

(a) Darfod is often prefixed to the foregoing construction. O herwydd darfod iddo ei gyfodi Ef, in that He hath raised Him. Acts xvii. 31.

780. Passive Voice. [§§ 767.]

I. O herwydd fy mod i yn cael fy nysgu, because I am (or was) being taught.

II. O herwydd cael o honof fy nysgu, } because I was (or have been)

III. O herwydd i mi gael fy nysgu, } taught.

781. Form IV. The Infinitive followed by an object (= a subject with a finite verb), in positive sentences. The Indicative followed by its subject, in negative sentences. [§§ 768.]

Pos. O herwydd dwyn yr arian, because the money was taken.

Neg. O herwydd na ddygwyd yr arian, because the money was not taken.

1. Am ddirmygu eu gwragedd gweddwon hwy. Acts vi. 1.

2. O blegyd madden i chwi eich pechodau. 1 S. John ii. 12.

[Translation.—1. Because their widows were neglected. 2. Because your sins have been forgiven you.]

(a) Darfod is often prefixed. Am ddarfod ei gyssegru âg ysbrydoliaeth ddwyfol, because he was endued (or consecrated) with divine inspiration.—M. Williams.

782. Government.—Am and gan (or can) have the middle sound after them; as Am or gan ddyfod o hono. Yn gymmaint a or ag has the same government as a and ag. (§§ 725, 726.) The others are followed by the radical (but sometimes by the middle of the verb bod).

O achos dywedyd o hono, because he has said.

O herwydd bod (or fod) Arthur yno, because Arthur is (or was) there.

783. Y and Yr, mai and taw, with finite verbs, in positive sentences. In negative sentences y and yr are omitted; mai and taw are sometimes omitted, sometimes retained. If retained, they are followed by the negative particle nid. [§§ 769–773.]

Am y gwn hyny, because I know that.

Am na wn hyny, because I do not know that.

O herwydd mai efe yw y gwr, because he is the man.

O herwydd nad (or mai nid) efe yw y gwr, because he is not the man.

1. Gan na wyddom yn drylwyr pwy yw'r awdwr.—W. Davies.

2. O herwydd mai yno y ciliodd y rhan fwyaf o wyr llen.—Th. Evans.

[Translation.—1. As we do not positively know who the author is. 2. Because it was thither most of the clergy retreated.]

783 (1). The conjunction rhag (because) is followed by an adjective of the equal degree.

Rhag nesed oedd darpar-wyl yr Iuddewon, because the Jews' preparation day was so near. S. John xix. 42.

Rhag mor dra thirion ydoedd, because it was so very lovely.—Edm. Prys.

784. The explanatory clause 'assigns a reason for an assertion made in the preceding clause.'

785. It is introduced by canys=for; also by o achos, o herwydd, o blegyd, o waith.

786. The particles of negation are ni, nid, nis (never na, nud, nas).

787. The Explanatory clause, whether positive or negative, has always its verb in a finite mood; i.e., in the Indicative or Subjunctive.

Canys y mae yn rhyfelwr, for he is a warrior.

Canys nid yw yn rhyfelwr, for he is not a warrior.

Additional Examples.

1. Clodforweh yr Arglwydd, o herwydd ei drugaredd a bery yn draggywydd. Ps. cxviii. 1.

2. A thi a elwi ei enw Ef Iesu, o blegyd Efe a wared ei bobl. S. Matt. i. 21.

3. Ni allwn lai na chydabod fod ei hysgrythyrau yn wir, o blegyd ni tharddu cefwydd ond naill ai o anwybodaeth ai o feddwl drwg.—E. S.

4. Nid anhebgorawl hyn, canys gall pob darlennydd weled ystyr a meddwl y geiriau.—Tegid.

5. Yr wyt yn un o honiut, canys y mae dy leferydd yn dy gyhuddo. S. Matt. xxvi. 73.

[Translation.—1. Praise the Lord, for his mercy endureth for ever. 2. And thou shalt call his name Jesus, for He shall save his people. 3. We cannot help admitting that her scriptures are true, for a lie springs not but either from ignorance or a wicked mind. 4. This is not essential, for every reader can see the meaning and purpose of the words. 5. Thou art one of them, for thy speech accuseth thee.]

788. The explanatory conjunctions, unlike those of the preceding clause, do not require any particular position of the verb, &c., after them. Thus we have

Subject preceding: canys efe a ddaeth i'r ty.

Verb preceding: canys daeth efe i'r ty.

Object preceding: canys hwn a darewaist.

(a) Canys, o achos, &c., are followed by the radical sound.

THE CONCESSIVE CLAUSE.

789. The Concessive clause expresses a concession or admission of a certain truth, and is usually followed by the adversative conjunction 'yet' in the subsequent clause. [ei xai, quamquam, although.]

790. It is introduced in Welsh by er and serch. The particles of negation are na, nad, nas.

(a) Er and serch are followed by the radical sound; but sometimes by the middle of bod. Er bod or er fod.

791. The construction of this clause is the same as that of the Transitive clause; i.e., a Transitive may be converted into a Concessive clause merely by prefixing a concessive conjunction.

792. Form I. Infinitive followed by its subject, in positive sentences. Indicative followed by its subject in negative sentences. [§§ 761, 762.]

Er fy mod i yn dysgu, though I am learning.

Er nad wyf fi yn dysgu, though I am not learning.

Er bod Arthur yn dysgu, though Arthur is learning.

Er nad yw Arthur yn dysgu, though Arthur is not learning.

Additional Examples.

1. Er bod rhai yn llawenhau.—Ellis Wynne.
2. Er bod gwaedd ganddynt yn ei ddinyst. Job xxx. 24.
3. Er ei fod yn ffrwythlawn. Hosea xiii. 15.
4. Er bod arno nodau oes ddiweddarach.—W. Davies.
5. Er nad oedd y tai ond isel yma.—Ellis Wynne.
6. Er bod llawer peth wedi llugru yn eu plith hwy.—M. Kyffin.

[Translation.—1. Although some rejoice. 2. Although they have a cry in his destruction. 3. Though he be fruitful. 4. Although there are marks of a later age upon it. 5. Although the houses were but low here. 6. Although many a thing had become corrupt amongst them.]

793. Form II. Infinitive with its subject connected by 'o' or 'o honof,' &c., in positive sentences. The perf. or plup. Indicative, followed by its subject, in negative sentences. [§§ 763, 764.]

Er dysgu o Arthur, although Arthur learnt.

Er na ddysgodd Arthur, although Arthur did not learn.

Er dysgu o honof, although I learnt.

Er na ddysgais, although I did not learn.

Additional Examples.

1. Er gwario o honynt y rhelyw o'r wythnos.—Nicander.
2. Er ymbil o honof er mwyn fy mhiant. Job xix. 17.
3. Er na bu erioed yn llawenach yn ei galon.—Theo. Evans.

[Translation.—1. Although they spent the remainder of the week. 2. Though I entreated for my children's sake. 3. Although he never was more heartily glad.]

794. Form III. Infinitive preceded by its subject under the government of 'i,' in positive sentences. The perf. or plup. Indicative followed by its subject, in negative sentences. [§ 765.]

Er i Arthur ddysgu, although Arthur learnt.

Er na ddysgodd Arthur, although Arthur did not learn.

Er nad acth hi erioed i mwyn.—Ellis Wynne.

Er iddo ddioddef llawer o helbulon.—W. Davies.

795. Passive Voice. [§ 767.]

I. Er bod Arthur yn cael ei ddysgu, although Arthur is (or was) being taught.

II. Er cael o Arthur ei ddysgu, although Arthur was taught.

III. Er i Arthur gael ei ddysgu, although Arthur was taught.

796. Form IV. Infinitive followed by an object (= a subject with a finite verb), in positive sentences. The Indicative followed by its subject, in negative sentences. [§ 768.]

Er dysgu Arthur, although Arthur was taught.

Er na ddysgwyd Arthur, although Arthur was not taught.

1. Er anfon llythyr ato, er hyn ni chlywyd oddi wrtho.

2. Er estyn goleuni iddynt, hwy a gauant eu llygaid rhag gweld.—Brutus.

[Translation.—1. Although a letter was sent to him, nevertheless nothing was heard from him. 2. Although light be imparted to them, they close their eyes lest they should see.]

797. Y and yr, mai and taw, with finite verbs, in positive sentences. [The conjunction cyd, “although,” is also used in this construction.] In negative sentences y and yr are omitted. Mai and taw are sometimes omitted, sometimes retained: if retained, they are followed by the negative particle nid. [§§ 769–773.]

Er y gwyr efe, although he knows.

Er na wyr efe, although he does not know.

Er mai efe yw y dyn, although he is the man.

Er nad or mai nid efe yw y dyn, although he is not the man.

Additional Examples.

1. Cyd y gallasai creill yn well.—Henri Perri.

2. A chyd [y] dylem ni addef. Com. Prayer.

3. Cyd na byddo ond ammod dyn. Gal. iii. 15.

4. A bawddyn er na byddai.—Gor. Owen.

5. Er na fedrant silliadu braidd un gair yn ei le.—Tegid.

[Translation.—Although others might have done better. 2. And although we ought to acknowledge. 3. Though it be but a man's covenant. 4. And a mean man, though it might not exist. 5. Although they can hardly spell one word correctly.]

(a) Er will admit of being followed by an adjective in the equal degree (e.g., gwyned.)

Er lleied y bo, though it be ever so small.
Er teced wyt, though thou art so fair.

TIME CLAUSE.

798. The conjunctions (or conjunctive adverbs) of time are the following. Pân, pryd [ante; quum; when]. Cyn [ante; antequam; before]. Wedi, gwedi (cwedi), ar ol, yn ol [post; postquam; after]. Tra [in; dum; whilst]. Cyhyd ag (cŷd, cŷd ag) [donec; as long as]. Cyn gynted ag, er cynted ag, gynted ag, mor fuan ag [ante; simul ac; as soon as]. Er pan [ex; ex quo; since]. Hyd, nes, tân, oni, onid, onis, hyd nes, hyd oni, &c. [donec; till, until]. Pa bryd bynag, pryd bynag [quando; quocumque; whenever]. Newydd [just when]. Gyda (cyda) [the same time that]. Erbyn [by the time that].

799. Some are construed with a finite mood; others with a finite or the infinitive, optionally.

800. a) The following are construed with finite verbs: pan; er pan; tra; oni, onid, onis; hyd; tân; hyd oni, &c.; pa bryd bynag, pryd bynag; and such as end with ag; as cyhyd ag, &c. The particles of negation after these words are na, nad, nas.

Here the verb will precede its subject. [Order: conjunction, verb, subj.ct.]

Pan y daeth efe yma, when he came here.

Pryd nad oedd plentyn iddo, when he had no child.

Additional Examples.

1. Tra yr oedd efe yn ymddiddan. S. Luke xxiv. 32.
2. Hyd oni ddaeth efe i Cesarea. Acts viii. 40.
3. Pan gymmerth y Cristianogion.—Theo. Evans.
4. A bydd pan godwyf gwmwl. Gen. ix. 14.
5. Marchnatewch hyd oni ddelfyf. S. Luke xix. 13.
6. Hyd onid elo y llid heibio. Is. xxvi. 20.
7. A chynted ag y ganwyd ef.—Ch. Edwards.
8. Gorfu arnom fyned oni ddaethom i'r lle.—Ellis Wynne.
9. Penderfynais chwilio tan gawn afael arno.
10. Can gynted ag y cynnygid un euraidd i'm llaw.—W. Davies.

[Translation.—1. Whilst he was speaking. 2. Till he came to Cesarea. 3. When the Christians took. 4. And it shall be when I raise a cloud. 5. Trade till I come. 6. Until the indignation be overpast. 7. And as soon as he was born. 8. We were obliged to go until we came to the place. 9. I was determined to search until I could get hold of him. 10. As soon as a golden one was put in my hand.]

(a) Oni, onid, and onis (until), are not frequently met with. Tân is colloquial. Pan, pryd, er pan, and tra are sometimes followed by ag. "Pan ag yr ydoedd yu sefyll ar ben uchaf y grisiau," when he was standing on the top of the stairs.—Brutus.

801. β) The following are construed with finite or infinitive verbs; cyn; wedi, gwedi (cwedi); ar ol, yn ol; nes, hyd nes; gyda (cyda); erbyn.

802. a) With finite verbs.

Mynaf ei weled cyn yr af ymaith, I will see him before I go away.

Additional Examples.

1. Wedi y cadarnhäer, nid yw neb yn ei ddirymu. Gal. iii. 15.
2. Wedi y delo arnoch. 3. Wedi'r ôl y daw'r eilwaith.
4. Nes y deffroer cf. 5. Gyda y bydd amser yu darfod.
6. Erbyn y gorphenweh y wers.

[Translation.—1. After it is confirmed, no man disannulleth it. 2. After it shall have come upon you. 3. After it has gone, it will come again. 4. Until he is awakened. 5. Just when time shall end. 6. By the time you finish the lesson.]

(a) Wedi, ar ol, and yn ol are but rarely found with a finite verb of past time.

803. b) With infinitive verbs. The construction of the sentence is the same as that of the Transitive and the Cause.

804. The time marked by the infinitive depends on the verb of the preceding clause; if it be in past time, the infinitive also will refer to past time: if in present or future, the infinitive will express future time or contingency.

Cymmerodd ofal o hono, nes i mi ddyfod, he took care of him till I came.

Cymmer ofal o hono, nes i mi ddyfod, take care of him until I come.

Additional Examples.

1. Wedi myned o honant, hwy a ddaethant i'r porth. Acts xii. 10.
 2. Pa le caid awen, cyn cael o'r môr ei ddorau i—Gor. Owen.
 3. Cyn gineuthur o honot y mynyddoedd.
 4. Wedi iddo gymmeryt pwyll. Acts xii. 12.
 5. Pan oedd ym Mesopotamia, cyn iddo drigo yng Ngharran. Acts vii. 2.
 6. Nes i'r Rhufeiniaid gwbl ddinstrio Ierusalem.—Ch. Edwards.
 7. Ar ol iddo ef bregethu yn fuddiol.—Ch. Edwards.
 8. Wedi ei myned hi yn ddydd. Acts xii. 18.
 9. Ar ol myned y wybodaeth o'r gwir Dduw ar goll.—Theo. Evans.
- [§ 764 (1), b.]
10. Erbyn i mi ddaddebru, gwelwn ein bod wedi dyfod i ryw sefyllfod.
- E. Wynue.

[Translation.—1. After they went, they came to the gate. 2. Where could muse be found, before the sea had its doors? 3. Before Thou madest the mountains. 4. When he had considered. 5. When he was in M., before he dwelt in Charran. 6. Until the Romans had completely destroyed Jerusalem. 7. After he had preached profitably. 8. After it had become day. 9. After the knowledge of the true God was lost. 10. By the time I was recovered, I could see we were come to some station.]

(a) Cf. Gr. ἔως τοῦ ἐλθεῖν αὐτὸν = nes ei ddylfod ef.

805. The verb is put in the future Indicative, or in the Subjunctive, according as the action or state is contemplated as certain, or contingent. The future Indicative is, however, frequently met with, even when contingency is intended to be expressed.

806. Y and Yr.—The following conjunctions, when construed with finite verbs, are followed by the affirmative particle y or yr: cyn, pryd, wedi, ar ol, yn ol, hŷd, nes, hŷl nes, tra,¹ gyda, pryd bynag, pa bryd bynag, and such as end in ag; as cylhŷd ag, &c.

Pryd y daeth dy fab. Tra y dychwelir draw'n eu hol.—Ed. Prys.

807. Pan, er pan, and tan, may or may not be followed by the particle; if they are not, they govern the verb in the middle sound.

Pan y daeth; or, Pan ddaeth, when he came.

808. Oni, onid, onis, hyd oni, &c., are never followed by y or yr. They have the same government as ni, nid, nis.

Hyd oni ddychwelwyf, until I return.

MOTIVE CLAUSE.

809. The Motive clause expresses a purpose, or “a direction of the agent's will toward an end.” [Ira, ὡς; ut; in order that, that.]

In Welsh it is headed

810. a) In positive sentences, by mal, fal, fel, megys, modd (in order that), followed by y or yr, with the Subjunctive mood. In negative sentences, by the same conjunctions, followed by na, nad, nas, with the same mood.

¹ Tra is sometimes found without the particle, and is then followed by the radical, middle, or aspirate. The radical is preferable.

“Tra cryno dail yr aethnen werdd.”—D. S. Evans.

Tra fum yno. Tra pkery haul.

Daeth fel y gwelai efe hi, he came that he might see her.

Daeth fel na welai efe hi, he came that he might not see her.

Additional Examples.

1. Fel y molianneuf dy enw. Ps. cxlii. 7.
2. Fel na welai farwolaeth. Heb. xi. 5.
3. Fel y mynegwyf dy holl wyrth.—Ed. Prys.
4. Modd y delom o'r diwedd i'w lawenydd.—Com. Prayer.
5. Fel nail eppilient. Acts vii. 19.

[Translation.—1. That I may praise thy name. 2. That he should not see death. 3. That I may declare all thy virtue. 4. That we may at last come to his joy. 5. That they might not multiply.]

811. β) By i = “to;” er = “for;” er mwyn = “for the sake of;” with the Infinitive, in positive sentences. In negative sentences, we borrow the preceding form, na, &c., with Subjunctive; or insert peidio a between the motive headings and the Infinitive.

Pos. Aethym yno er gweled fy nghyfaill.

Neg. Aethym yno fel na welwn, or er peidio a gweled fy nghyfaill.

(a) The genitive or dative of the person is often added to the infinitive, especially with “er mwyn.” Aethym yno er mwyn gweled o honof [er mwyn i mi weled] fy nghyfaill, I went there that I might see my friend.

Additional Examples.

1. Anfonwyd ef i Rydychain i yfed yn helaethach o ffrydiau dysg.—W. Davies.
2. Er coffáu ei ryglyddus grog a'i ddioddefaint Ef.—Com. Prayer.
3. Er rhoddi terfyn ar bob ymryson.—Tegid.
4. Ac yno syrthio i lawr i addoli'r Baban Brenhinol.—Nicander.
5. Disgwyl a wnaethant am amser i ruthro ar eu meistriaid.—Theo. Evans.
6. Er mwyn cael mawrles gollyngdod.—Com. Prayer.
7. Er mwyn dynodi lle yr acen.—Tegid.
8. Sefydlu gŵyl i goffáu dioddefaint Arglwydd y bywyd.—Brutus.

[Translation.—1. He was sent to Oxford to drink more fully of the streams of learning. 2. In order to commemorate his meritorious cross and passion. 3. In order to put an end to every dispute. 4. And there to fall down to worship the Royal Infant. 5. They waited for an opportunity to rush upon their masters. 6. In order to receive the benefit of absolution. 7. In order to mark the place of the accent. 8. To establish a fast to commemorate the sufferings of the Lord of life.]

(a) Cf. the Greek and English idioms.

Κατέλιπεν αὐτοὺς φυλάττειν τὸ στρατόπεδον.
He left them to guard the camp.

(b) I governs the middle; er and er mwyn, the radical.

(c) I'r diben o, and i'r bwrriad o, followed by the Infinitive, are now frequently used. These are probably but a mere translation of the English phrase, “for the purpose of.” Daeth yma i'r diben o weled Arthur, he came here for the purpose of seeing Arthur.

812. γ) By rhag, which denotes ‘a negative purpose, a purpose of prevention’ = $\mu\acute{\eta}$; ne; lest, that . . not. Rhag is followed by the Infinitive (with or without the genitive or dative of the person); by the Subjunctive; and sometimes by the future Indicative.

Aeth A. ymaith, rhag gweled ei elyn, rhag gweled o hono ei elyn, } A. went away, lest rhag iddo weled ei elyn, } he should see his enemy.

Aeth A. ymaith, rhag y gwelai ei elyn, A. went away, lest he might see his enemy.

El A. ymaith, rhag y gwel ei elyn, A. goes away, lest he should see his enemy.

(a) When the infinitive is used, the time marked depends on the verb of the preceding clause. [Read § 804.]

(b) Rhag is followed by the radical sound. Rhag bod; rhag dyfod.

Additional Examples.

1. Felly Gwrtheyrn, rhag y difreinnid ef, a alwodd am gymmhorth y Saeson.—Theo. Evans.

2. Iawn yw ysgrifennu pob gair yn null ei ddefnydd, rhag cuddiau ei ddechreuad.—Dr. Pughe.

4. Lleihaf hwynt, rhag arglwyddiaethu ar y cenhedloedd. Ezek. xxix. 15.

5. Gadewch wybod, rhag i mi yru i chwi yr hyn a welsoch o'r blaen.—Gor. Owen.

[Translation.—1. So Vortigern, lest he should be dethroned, solicited the aid of the Saxons. 2. It is proper to write every word in the form of its substance, lest its origin be obscured. 3. Plead with your mother, lest I strip her. 4. I will diminish them, that they may not rule over the nations. 5. Let me know, lest I should send you what you have seen before.]

THE EFFECT CLAUSE.

813. The Effect clause expresses a result or consequence, and in English ‘refers to a so or such in the principal sentence.’ [ᾠσσε ; ut; that.]

‘The noise was such, that I could not hear a word.’

(a) “Such” will be expressed in Welsh by y fath or cyfryw; “so” by môr and eîn, or simply by putting the adjective in the equal degree (e.g., teded, cymmaint).

The Effect clause is headed

814. α) In positive sentences by mal, fal, fel, followed by y or yr, with the Indicative; unless the verb is contingent in signification, when, of course, it is put in the Subjunctive. In negative sentences it is headed by the same conjunctions with na, nad, nas, or ag na, ag nad, ag nas, and joined to the same moods; or simply by na, nad, nas, without the conjunctions.

Cymmaint oedd ei lid fel y lladdodd ei frawd.

Mor anwybodus ynddi, mal nas gellwch ei chlodfori.

Additional Examples.

1. Y mae efe mor greulawn fel y lladdai ei frawd, pe gallai.

2. Y fath hurtrwydd a'u perchenogai fel y danfonasant genhadon atynt.—Theo. Evans.

3. Mor erchyll ac ofnadwy, na allai neb eu haros.—Edw. Samuel.

4. Cynhyrwyd ei feddwl cymmaint, fel yr addunodd yn sobr.—Nieander.

5. Gan fod llyn mor eglur na ellir dim gwâd o honaw.—M. Kyffin.

6. Mewn trefn mor odidog nad oes bossibl i un maen fod cyn hardded.—E. Wynne.

[Translation.—1. He is so cruel, that he would kill his brother, if he could. 2. Such stupidity possessed them, that they sent messengers to them. 3. So horrible and dreadful, that no one could endure them. 4. His mind was so much moved that he solemnly vowed. 5. Seeing that this is so clear, that there is no denial of it. 6. In such excellent order, that it is not possible for one stone to be so beautiful.]

(a) It is not necessary that the words corresponding to so and such should always be expressed.

Ceryddodd y môr fel y sychodd. Ps. cvi. 9.

O herwydd ifyddlawn oedd efe, fel na chael ynddo nac amryfusedd na bai. Dan vi. 4.

815. β) The temporals oni, hyd oni, nes, hyd nes = “until,” have often the force of that. Oni and hyd oni are joined to a finite mood; nes and hyd nes to a finite or the infinitive mood.

Mor dosturus oedd yr olwg, oni orfu i'r cigyddion anfon am win, so pitiful was the sight that the cruel ones were obliged to send for wine.—Ch. Edwards.

INTERROGATIVE CLAUSE.

816. ‘Questions are divided into predicative and nominal, according as the question refers to a predicate or to an object (person or thing).

817. Predicative questions are those where their proposer desires only an affirmation or denial to his inquiry. These are expressed in English merely by placing the finite verb first, and by the accentuation;’¹ in Greek and Latin, generally, and in Welsh always, by interrogative particles.

818. The Interrogative particles are a, ai, oni, onid, onis, ai ni, ai nid, ai nis.

819. A is the most simple and unemphatic of the interrogative particles, and is placed before finite verbs. The answer to the question made by it may be affirmative or negative. [ŷ; ne.]

A ddaeth eich brawd? has your brother come?

A atbir y llythyr? will the letter be answered?

820. Oni, onid,¹ onis, ai ni, ai nid,¹ ai nis, are, like a, placed before finite verbs, and generally expect an affirmative answer. [ȧȧ ȧȧȧ; nonne.]

Oni ddarllenasoeh chwi? have you not read?

Onid acth efe yno? has he not gone there?

821. Government.—A is placed before vowels or consonants, and when before consonants it governs the middle sound: oni and ai ni are placed before consonants, and govern the aspirate sound of the first class, the middle of the second and third: onis and ai nis are placed before consonants, and govern the radical: onid and ai nid before vowels.

822. Ai (= is it?) is more emphatic than a, and may stand before any word, except a finite verb. The answer may be affirm. or negative.

823. Ai may stand before

(a) A noun: Ai llyfr yw? (e) A partic.: Ai wedi ei guro y cerir ef?

(b) An adj.: Ai afiach yw? (f) An adv.: Ai yma y mae?

(c) A pronoun: Ai efe yw y gwr? (g) A conj.: Ai fel y'th gynnorthwywn

(d) An Infin. verb: Ai darllen y y daethost?

mae? (h) A prep.: Ai yn y ty y mae?

824. Onid and ai nid are employed like ai, and generally expect an affirmative answer. [ȧȧȧ ȧȧȧ; nonne.]

Onid dirgelwch mawr yw hyn? is not this a great mystery?

Thus onid and ai nid are employed like a or ai.

825. Government.—Ai, onid, and ai nid, are placed before vowels and consonants, and govern the radical sound.

826. Answers to predicative questions are made (a) by a repetition of the verb, preceded, in negative answers, by na or nac; (b) by do in positive, and naddo in negative answers; (c) by ie in positive, and nage in negative answers.

¹ Onid and ai nid are also employed like ai. See § 824.

827. Questions made by a, oni, onid, &c., followed by finite verbs, if made in any tense, except the perfect indefinite, are answered by the proper tense and person of the same verb; and, if the answer be negative, na or nac will precede the verb.

A oes mawredd yn Nuw? Affirm. answer, Oes (= there is).

A ddaw eich brawd yma? Neg. answer, *Na ddaw*¹ (= he will not come).

Additional Examples.

A all dyn waredu ei hun? Na all.—T. Charles.

A ddylem ninnau wneuthur yr un fath? Dylem.—T. Charles.

(a) If the verb be periphrastic (i.e., an inflection of bod with a participle of the other verb), the participle is omitted in the answer, unless emphasis is required, in which case the sentence may be repeated.

A ydyw Arthur yn dysgu? Simple: ydyw. Emphatic: ydyw, y mae; or ydyw, y mae Arthur yn dysgu.

(b) Very often the answer is made by an inflection of gwneuthur (to do), and, if emphatic, with a repetition of the verb.

A ddysgi di hyn? Simple: gwnaf. Emphatic: gwnaf, mi a'i dysgaf.

828. If the question is asked in the perfect indefinite, the answer is made "do" in positive; by "naddo" or "ni ddo" in negative clauses: sometimes by a repetition of the verb, as in other tenses.

A ddysgaist ti dy wers? Ans. do, or dysgais; naddo, or na ddysgais.

A fu pawb feirw yn Adda? Do.—T. Charles.

A barhiodd dyn yn y cyflwr hwn? Na ddo.—T. Charles.

(a) When emphasis is required, the verb is repeated after "do" or "naddo."

A ddysgaist ti dy wers? Aus. do, mi a'i dysgais: naddo, ni ddysgais hi (or ni ddysgais mo honi).

829. Questions made by ai, onid, and ai nid, followed by nouns, adjectives, &c., are answered, affirmatively by ie, negatively by nage.

Ai Arthur a ddygodd y llyfr? Affirm. answer, Ië. Neg. Nage.

(a) When emphasis is required, ie is followed by a part or the whole of the question (the interr. particle being, of course, omitted); nage is followed by nid, with a part or the whole of the question.

Ai Arthur a ddygodd y llyfr?

Affirm. Ië, Arthur: ie, Arthur a'i ddygodd.

Neg. Nage, nid Arthur: nage, nid Arthur a'i ddygodd.

¹ The subject of the verb used in answering the question is not expressed: na ddaw—not na ddaw efe. [See Welsh Exercises, Ch. 6.]

830. When questions, to which affirmative answers are expected, are asked at the end of the sentences (as in English, "you wrote to your brother, did you not?") the forms oni, onid, onis, are put before finite verbs: onid do is used when the verb of the sentence is in the *perf. indefinite*¹: onide (= onid ië) when the sentence begins with any part of speech except a finite verb.

Fin. verb.	Mae Arthur yn ddyn da, onid ydyw efe?	Ydyw.
	Fe ddaw eich brawd yma, oni ddaw efe?	Daw.
Perf. indef.	Dysgodd Arthur ei wers, onid do?	Do.
Other words.	Llyfr da ydyw hwn, onide?	Ië.
(See § 823.)	Afiach iawn yw'r dyn, onide?	Ië.
	Efe yw'r milwr goreu, onide?	Ië.

830 (1). But when negative answers are expected to such questions, a is put before finite verbs: ai do is used when the verb of the sentence is in the *perf. indefinite*¹: aie (= ai ië) when the sentence begins with any part of speech except a finite verb.

Fin. verb.	Nid ydyw Arthur yn ddyn da, a ydyw efe?	Nac ydyw.
	Ni ddaw eich brawd yma, a ddaw efe?	Na ddaw.
Perf. indef.	Ni ddysgodd Arthur ei wers, ai do?	Na ddo.
Other words.	Nid llyfr da ydyw hwn, aie?	Nage.
	Nid afiach yw'r dyn, aie?	Nage.
	Nid efe yw'r milwr goreu, aie?	Nage.

831. When the person spoken to expresses his assent to or dissent from an assertion or saying made by the person speaking, the assent or dissent is expressed in the same way as in answering questions.

Mae Arthur yn ddyn da.	Ydyw.	Nac ydyw.
Arthur is a good man.	Ycs.	No.
Chwi a welsoch eich cyfaill ddoe.	Do.	Naddo.
You saw your friend yesterday.	Ycs.	No.
Milwr dewr yw Arthur.	Ië.	Nage.
Arthur is a brave soldier.	Ycs.	No.

832. 'Nominal questions are those in which the enquirer wishes to know the name of a person, place, the time, &c., and are introduced by substantive or adjective interrogative pronouns, or by interrogative adverbs.'²

833. Pwy, who, whose, whom; which; what, is singular

¹ Sometimes oni [or ai] with the proper person and tense of the verb, or of the auxiliary verb gwneuthur (to do). Dysgodd Arthur ei wers, oni ddysgodd efe, or oni wnacth efe?

² Arnold's Greek Grammar.

and plural, and of all genders: pa, what, is singular and plural, and of all genders.

- (Pwy.) Pwy a wnaeth y byd? Pwy yw y rhai hyn?
Pwy wyt ti, fy merch? Ych pwy a gymmerais?
 (Pa.) Pa ddyn yw efe? Pa beth yw dyn?
Pa lyfrau a gymmerodd?

(a) The difference between pwyl and pa is this: pwyl, being itself a substantive pronoun, should never be joined to a substantive; pa, being an adjective, should never be without one. Dr. Davies says: "Differentia utriusque est quod pa semper substantivum habet adjunctum; pwyl nunquam." Pwyl however has a substantive joined to it, sometimes in good authors, and continually in colloquial language; and pa stands alone in ancient authors, and sometimes in modern works.

Pwy ffracthaw areithydd? what more fluent speaker?—Gor. Owen.

Gwraig i bwy un o honiut yw hi? whose wife of them is she? S. Luke xx. 33.

Y mawr drugarog Dduw, pa wna? the great merciful God, what shall I do?—Llywarch Hen.

Ni ddawr newynog pa ys, the hungry cares not what he eats.—Adage.

Pa yw tadogaeth y gair? what is the etymology of the word?—Tegid.

834. Pa is often omitted, the following word acquiring an interrogative character. Thus we may say,

Pa beth or beth=what. Pa sawl or sawl=how many. Pa faint or faint=how much, how many.

Pa sawl (or sawl) rhan sydd mewn dyn? Beth a gollodd dyn?

835. The interrogative adverbs lle, sut, pryd, &c., which are really substantives, have acquired an adverbial character by the omission of a prep. and the interrogative pa. It is often optional whether a question is asked with the separate words, or with an ellipsis of the prep., or of the prep. and pa. Thus we may say,

- Ym mha* le, pa le, or lle, where? Ym mha sut, pa sut, or sut, how?
I ba le, pa le, or lle, whither? Ar ba bryd, pa bryd, or pryd, when?
Ym mha fodd, pa fodd (contr. p'odd), or modd, how? Am ba ham, or pa ham (contracted gam), why?

(a) These interrogatives, whether expressed fully or elliptically, are followed by the auxiliary adverb y or yr in affirmative sentences; by na, nad, nas, in negative sentences.

- Lle* yr aeth efe? Sut na welsoch ef?
Pa ham y daeth efe? Pa ham na ddaeth efe?
Pa ham y derbyniodd gliniau fyfi? Pa ham na bum farw o'r bru? Job iii. 12. iii. 11.

836. Double questions, corresponding to $\pi\acute{o}\tau\epsilon\iota\sigma\theta\epsilon\iota$. . . η ; utrum . . . an; whether . . . or.

Whether = a, ai, alone or preceded by pa un, pa'r un, or pa un (pa'r un) bynag.

Or = ai, ynte, neu.

Or not (no): not is expressed by peidio, or ni (or na) with the verb of the clause.

Nis gwn a ddaw Arthur ai peidio, I do not know whether Arthur will come or not.

Nis gwn pa un ai Arthur ai Dafydd a ddaw, I do not know whether Arthur or David will come.

Myfi a af pa'r un bynag a ddeuwch chwi neu beidio, I will go whether you will come or not.

Myfi a af pa'r un bynag a ddeuwch chwi ai ni ddeuwch, I will go whether you will come or will not come.

[* * See more fully on direct and dependent questions, Ch. 28th of the Welsh Exercises.]

WISH CLAUSE.

837. When we wish simply, i.e., when the thing may or may not exist or happen, we use (a) the present Subjunctive; or (b) the Imperative, either alone or preceded by O; or (c) O am (= Oh for).

a) Bendigedig fo enw'r Arglwydd, blessed be the name of the Lord.

Llwyddiant a gaffo, may he have success.

Buan y delo, may he soon come.

Yr Arglwydd a'n cadw ni, may the Lord keep us.

Dyfod a rnelo, may he come. Byth na syllyf, may I never more.

Tywyllwch a'i gorchuddio, may darkness cover him.

b) O bydded ddedydd, pa le bynag yr elo, Oh may he be happy, wherever he goes.

O bydded iddo lwyddo yn ei gais, Oh may he succeed in his attempt.

c) O am gyfeirio fy ffyrdd, Oh that my ways may be directed. Ps. cxix. 5.

O am gael gweled fy mhientyn anwyl, Oh that I may see my dear child.

O am ias, Oh for grace. O am iddo ddyfod, Oh that he may come.

838. When the wish implies a denial of the actual existence of the fact or circumstance, we use the imperfect or pluperfect Subjunctive, preceded by O na, O nad, O nas. [ὦν, ἢ γὰρ; utinam; would that! oh that!]

Imperfect.

O na wyddwn pa le y cawn Ef! Oh that I knew where I might find Him! Job xxiii. 3.

O na bai fy mhen yn ddyfroedd! Oh that my head were waters! Jer. ix. 1.

O na byddai fyw Ismael ger dy fron Di! Oh that Ishmael might live before Thee!

Pluperfect.

O na buasit ti yma cyn ei farw! would that thou hadst been here before he had died.

O na welwn fy mrawd cyn iddo fgynd! would that I had seen my brother before he had gone!

(a) "The literal signification of O na is Oh! that not; and in order to elicit the full signification from this, some ellipsis must be supplied as passed over by the speaker under the intensity of passion. It expresses rather regret that a thing is not, than a desire that a thing should be; thus, O na ddeuai y boreu = Oh [how grievous] that the morning cometh not."¹

SUPPOSITION AND INFERENCE.

839. Supposition or conditional clauses are divided into
(a) Fact supposition, which expresses "possibility or simple supposition, without any expression of uncertainty."²
(b) Contingent supposition, which expresses "uncertainty with a prospect of decision."³ (c) Non-fact supposition, which expresses "impossibility or belief that the thing is not so."⁴

840. The Inference clause (called also the apodosis or consequence) is that which accompanies a supposition. It may be a main clause, a transitive, an interrogative, &c.

841. α) The Fact supposition is introduced by o (= ei), od, or os,⁵ in positive sentences: by os na, nad, or nas, in negative sentences, if the adverb immediately follows os; by os . . ni, nid, or nis, if the adverb is separated from os by the intervention of the nominative, &c. [ei; si; if.]

842. The Fact supposition has its verb in the Indicative; the Inference, in the Indicative or Imperative.

Os ydys ym ein holi ni, bydded hysbys i chwi, if we are questioned, he it known unto you. Acts iv. 9.

O chefais ffafwr ym dy olwg di, rhodder i mi fy einioes, if I have found favour in thy sight, let my life be given me. Esth. vii. 3.

(a) The Non-fact supposition is sometimes assumed or granted as truth, and then takes the form of the Fact. Here the context, not the form, must determine the clause.

Os drwg y dywedais, tystiolaetha o'r drwg. [So in Gr., ei kakws elalhsa. S. John xviii. 23.]

So also in Latin.—"Si pugnat extricata densis Cerva plagis, erit ille fortis."—Horace.

⁵ Or was formerly used. "Or mynir fy nyfod i mywn (si placet venire me intus)."—Zeuss: Gram. Celt., p. 547.

843. β) The Contingent supposition is introduced by o, od, or os, in positive sentences; by os na, nad, nas; or os . . ni, &c., in negative sentences, like the Fact supposition. [$\epsilon\acute{\iota}\nu$, $\alpha\upsilon$, $\eta\nu$; si; if.] Negative sentences are also introduced by oni, omid, onis, oddi eithr, and oddigerth. [$\epsilon\acute{\iota}\nu$ $\mu\grave{\eta}$; nisi, unless.]

(a) Oddi eithr and oddigerth are construed with the Infinitive. See § 845.

844. The Contingent supposition has its verb generally (but see § 846) in the Indicative mood: the Inference, in the Indicative, Imperative, Subjunctive, or Infinitive.

845. Oddi eithr and oddigerth, like the causal conjunctions, are followed by the Infinitive mood.

Oddi eithr { ei fod yn dyfod, except he is coming.
dyfod o hono, except he come.
iddo ddyfod, except he come.

846. If the Inference clause be a Transitive, depending on a verb of the past time, the Contingent has its verb in the imperfect Subjunctive.

Dywedodd y cawn fod yno, os cadwn ei orchymmynion.

(Explanation.—‘Dywedodd,’ a verb of the past time; ‘y cawn fod yno,’ a Transitive clause, and here the Inference of ‘os cadwn ei orchymynion,’ which is a Contingent supposition, having its verb in the imperfect Subjunctive.)

(a) The same construction is found after sentences which are resolvable into a Main and a Transitive (e.g., He promised him money=he said that he would give him money). Addawodd (= dywedodd y rhodda) arian iddo, os ewyllysai.

846 (1). Am, “provided that,” is occasionally met with. It is accompanied by the particle y, and is generally followed by the future Indicative, or by the Subjunctive.

Ni waeth ganddo am neb, am y caiff efe ddigon, he cares not about any body, provided he gets enough.

Y mae yn iawn i ni ein caru ein hunain yn y fan gyntaf, am y byddo ein cariad, &c., it is right for us to love ourselves in the first place, provided that our love be, &c.

(a) Am may be compared with the Gr. ἐν, and the Old Eng. an.

847. γ) The Non-fact supposition is introduced by pe, ped, or pes,¹ in positive sentences: by pe na, naid, or nas; or pe . . ni, &c.; and by oni, onid, onis, oddi eithr, and oddigerth, in negative sentences. [ei; si; if.]

(a) Oddi eithr and oddigerth are construed with the Infinitive, as above.

848. The Non-fact has its verb in the imperfect or pluperfect Subjunctive; the Inference in the same mood, except in one case, where the Indicative is used. (§ 849.)

849. Sometimes the Non-fact is equivalent to a Concessive clause, and then the verb of the Inference will be in the Indicative.

Pe gwersyllai llu i'm herbyn (=er i lu wersyllu i'm herbym) nid ofna fy nghalon, if a multitude encamped against me, my heart will not fear. Ps. xxvii. 3.

Additional Examples.

1. Pe cyfodai cad i'm herbyn, yn hyn mi a fyddaf hyderus. Ps. xxvii. 3.
2. Pe collwn y cwbl, pa golled yw!—Ellis Wynne.
3. Pe rhodiwn ar hyd glyn cysgod angeu, nid ofnaf niwed. Ps. xxiii. 4.
4. Pe llefarwn â thafodau dynion ac angylion, yr wyf fel cfydd yn seinio. 1 Cor. xiii. 1.

[Translation.—1. If a battle rose against me, in this will I be confident. 2. If I lost all, what loss is it? 3. If I walked through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil. 4. If I spoke with the tongues of men and of angels, I am as sounding brass.]

850. Government.—O and pe are placed before consonants; od and ped before vowels; os and pes before vowels and consonants.

851. O governs the first class in the aspirate; the second and third in the radical. Pe (sometimes followed by y or yr), os, and pes, govern the radical of all classes.

O cherwech fi, if you love me. Os carwech fi, if you love me.
Pe carech fi, if you loved me. Pes carech fi, if you loved me.

(a) The obsolete or and pei govern the radical. Or bydd, if there be. Pei byddai hi, if she were.

852. Oni, onid, and onis have the same peculiarities as ni, nid, and nis, from which they are derived. [See §§ 680, 681.] Oddi eithr and oddigerth govern the radical sound.

RELATIVE CLAUSE.

[For a list of the relative pronouns, see §§ 204, 205.]

853. Relative pronouns are divided into simple and indefinite (or distributed).

854. The simple refers to a well-known object, and has its verb in the Indicative; the indefinite refers to an antecedent in a vague manner, and, if the tense be future or contingent, it has its verb, properly, in the Subjunctive mood.

855. The proper indefinite relatives are pwyllyn, pa . . . bynag, yr un, y neb, y sawl; but the simple relatives, except pa un, pa rai, are often employed as such.

1. Pwyllyn bynag a syrthio ar y maen hwnw. S. Luke xx. 18.
2. Y neb a hawo anwiredd a fed flinder. Prov. xxii. 8.
3. Y rhai oll a'u hiawn arferont.

[Translation.—1. Whosoever falls upon that stone. 2. He that soweth iniquity shall reap trouble. 3. All who properly use them.]

856. Pa un, pl. pa rai, are always simple relatives.

1. Y dyn hwn, oblegyd pa un y galwodd holl liaws yr Iuddewon. Acts xxv. 24.
2. Wrth fydwragedd, o ba rai enw un oedd Siphrah. Ex. i. 15.
3. Y gwely esmwyth, ar ba un y cwsg pob peth.—I. MSS.

[Translation.—1. This man, about whom all the multitude of the Jews have called. 2. To midwives, of whom the name of one was Siphrah. 3. The soft bed, on which everything sleeps.]

857. A'r and ag are the least emphatic forms of the relative; and they must always be placed foremost in the clause. (a) A'r seldom occurs except as the subject to a verb, or the object of a finite verb. (b) Ag may be employed, not only as the subject to a verb, and the object of a finite verb, but also as the object of an infinitive or a preposition, which must always be placed after the verb of the clause.

1. Pawb dan haul a'r a gredasant yn ei enw Ef.—Ch. Edwards.
2. Yr Hwn ni chasai ddim a'r a wnaethost.—Com. Prayer.
3. Am ddim oll a'r a amcanasant ei wneuthur. Gen. xi. 16.
4. Dywedod pob un ag y sydd yn caru Duw.—Mos. Williams.
5. Ni chaiff yr elw ag y mae mor ddiwyd yn ei geisio.
6. Hwn yw'r dyn ag y mae cymmaint o son am dano.

[Translation.—1. All under the sun, who have believed in His name. 2. Who hatest nothing that Thou hast made. 3. As to anything which they have intended to do. 4. Let every one say who loves God. 5. He shall not get the gain, which he so diligently seeks. 6. This is the man that there is so much talk about.]

(a) A'r is occasionally added after the indefinite "bynag." Beth bynag a'r a ofynant. S. Matt. xviii. 19.

858. Ag is the proper relative after y fath and y cyfryw, "such," and after substantives accompanied by adjectives of the equal degree, like the English adverbial relative "as."

1. Y cyfryw ddatguddiad ag ydyw'r Beibl.—Nicander.
2. Cynnifer ag a'i derbyniasant Ef. S. John i. 12.
3. Cymmaint ag sydd yn angenrheidiol.

[Translation.—1. Such revelation as the Bible is. 2. As many as have received Him. 3. As much as is necessary.]

859. After substantives accompanied by superlative adjectives, and after some other substantives or substantive words (such as pawb, pob un, yr un, yr unrhyw, cyfan, cwbl, dim), it is usual either to omit the relative, or to employ a'r or ag.

1. Ni ddichon i'r dyn doethaf a anwyd farnu yn amgen.
2. Parotol bara i bob un, a gymmero boen.—Ep. Griffith.
3. Diddanu pawb, a'r sydd mewn perygl.—Com. Prayer.
4. Dyled pawb, ag sy'n ofalus am dani.

[Translation.—1. The wisest man born cannot judge otherwise. 2. To prepare bread for every one who takes trouble. 3. To comfort all who are in danger. 4. The duty of all who are careful about it.]

860. Yr hyn refers to a circumstance, a sentence, or part of a sentence, as its antecedent = which, that which, what. I. id quod. [See the Demons. hyn, § 549.]

1. Rhoddi o honoch eich cyrff, yr hyn yw eich rhesymol wasanaeth. Rom. xii. 1.
2. Awn rhagom i ystyried geiriau unsill, yr hyn sydd o bwys nid bychan.—Tegid.
3. I gadw yr hyn a gollasid. 4. Mynegais yr hyn a glywais.

[Translation.—1. That ye present your bodies, which is your reasonable service. 2. We will proceed to consider monosyllables, which is of no small importance. 3. To save that which had been lost. 4. I have declared what I have heard.]

861. Agreement.—The form yr hwn, &c., agrees with its antecedent in gender, number, and person: y neb, yr un, pl. y sawl, in number, and person: pwyl bynag, ag, and a'r, are indeclinable. Pa . . . bynag may be of any gender, number, and person, according to the word that is placed between pa and bynag.

Gender. Daw, yr hwn a'n gwnaeth, God, who made us.

Number. Y dynion, y rhai a welsom, the men, whom we saw.

Person. Myfi, yr Hwn wyf yn ymddiddan â thi, I, That s, e k unto thee.

(a) The agreement in person is, however, subject to the peculiarities mentioned under the syntax of the verb. [§§ 578, 579.]

862. If the antecedent is a noun of multitude, the relative is sometimes singular, sometimes plural.

1. Y gymnullleidf, yr hon oedd yn ei wrandaw.

2. A holl gaethglud Iudah, y rhai a aethant i Babilon. Jer. xxviii. 4.

[Translation.—1. The congregation, which was listening to him. 2. And all the captives of Judah, that went into Babylon.]

863. When the relative has two antecedents of different persons, the verb of the relative clause may refer to either of the two.

1. Myfi yw y gwr a welodd flinder. (Here the verb refers to gwr.)

2. Myfi yw yr Arglwydd, yr hwn a'ch neillduais chiwi. (Here the verb refers to myfi.)

[Translation.—1. I am the man that has seen trouble. 2. I am the Lord who hath separated you.]

864. Position.—The relative should be placed, as in English, as near as possible to its antecedent, and before the verb of its own clause.

1. A rhai o'r Saduceaid, y rhai sydd yn gwadu nad oes adgyfodiad. S. Luke xx. 27.

2. Hwn yw y Crist, yr hwn yr wyf yn ei bregethu.

[Translation.—1. Certain of the Saducees, who deny that there is any resurrection. 2. This is the Christ whom I preach.]

(a) To prevent ambiguity, or when emphasis is necessary, the antecedent may be repeated after the form yr hwn, yr hon, yr hyn; but it cannot be repeated after any other form.

Yr hwn air a arwyddocâ ynys, which word signifies an island.

Iachawdveriacth, am yr hon iachawdveriacth. 1 S. Peter i. 10.

Yr hyn bethau ydynt mewn alegori. Gal. iv. 24.

The relative governs the repeated antecedent in the middle sound. Yr hyn bethau.

865. When the relative is under government of a preposition, the preposition is sometimes placed before the relative, sometimes after the verb of the clause in the form of a pronominal preposition. The latter is by far the more elegant and idiomatic construction.

Y cyfaill at yr hwn yr anfonais lythyr, the friend, to whom I sent a letter.

Y cyfaill, yr hwn yr anfonais lythyr ato, the friend, whom I sent a letter to.

866. Omission of antecedent.—The antecedent, if a pronoun, is most frequently omitted when the indefinite pwyl bynag, yr un, y neb, y sawl, are used. [Cf. whoever, whosoever.]

Pry bynag a ddelo a wobrwyr, whosoever comes shall be rewarded.

Y neb a chwanego wybodaeth a chwanega ofid, he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow.

The antecedent of the forms yr hwn, yr hon, y rhai, if it be a pronoun, is generally omitted, unless it be very emphatic. Thus,

He (or that) who, he whom, him who, &c. = yr hwn.

She who, she whom, her who, &c. = yr hon.

They (or those) who, they whom, them who, &c. = y rhai.

867. When the omitted antecedent is governed by a prep., the prep. is put before the relative pronoun; as,

Gofynwch i'r hwn sydd yn gwybod, ask him who knows.

868. Omission of relative.—The relative pronoun is very often omitted. In this case the auxiliaries a and y (or yr) are carefully retained in affirmative clauses.

1. Arthur yw y gwr a ymladdodd mor wrol.

2. Y rheol a roddwn mewn perthynas iddynt yw hon.—Tegid.

3. Ym mhob ordinhad a wnelo y gymmaufa.—M. Kyffin.

4. Efe yw'r gwr yr ysgrifennai ato.

[Translation.—1. Arthur is the man [who] fought so bravely. 2. The rule we shall lay with respect to them is this. 3. In every rule [which] the council may make. He is the man [whom] I wrote to.]

(a) Those inflections of bôd which never take the particle a before them are to be excepted. Gwelais y dyn oedd yn canu, I saw the man [who] was singing. [§ 701.]

869. When the omitted relative is governed by a prep., the prep. stands after the verb in the form of a pronominal preposition; as,

Y wlad y daethost allan o honi. Y dydd y'm ganed ymddo.

Yn y cyfyngder trallodus y'n dygwyd iddo.—Theo. Evans.

(a) When point of time is expressed by a relative clause, the relative and preposition are frequently left out.

Hyd y dydd y cymmerwyd ef i fynu. Acts i. 22. [Unders. yn yr hwn.]

Yn y dydd y gwnaeth yr Arglwydd. Gen. ii. 4. [Unders. yn yr hwn.]

870. When both the antecedent and relative are under government of prep., and the antecedent is omitted, the prep. that governs the antecedent is put before the relative, and that which governs the relative comes after the verb in the form of a pronominal preposition.

Rhoddwch i'r hwn y cymmerasoch oddi arno = give to [him] whom you took from.

871. Sometimes a prep. is put before the relative, and repeated after the verb. [Some consider this repetition inelegant, if not erroneous.]

1. I'r rhai a eisteddient, y cyfododd goleuni iddynt. S. Matt. iv. 16.

2. Ar yr hwn y gwelych yr Ysbryd yn disgyn ac yn aros arno. S. John i. 33.

3. Wedi dangos eisioes i ba amgylchiadau tosturus y dygwyd yr hen Frytaniaid iddynt.—Theo. Evans.

[Translation.—1. =To them who sat, light sprang up to. 2. =Upon Whom thou seest the Spirit descending, and remaining on Him. 3. = Having shown to what miserable circumstances the ancient Britons were brought to.]

872. Occasionally both the relative and antecedent are omitted in the same sentence.

1. Gwyn ei fyd a ystyria wrth y tlawd = gwyn ei fyd ef yr hwn, &c.

2. Gwae a adeilado dref trwy waed. Hab. ii. 12.

3. Oddi wrth a sylwid hawdd yw canfod.—Tegid.

4. Ac na bydded a drigo ynddi. Acts i. 20.

5. A laddo a leddir.

6. Bydded ganddynt awdurdod i wneuthur a fynant.—M. Kyffin.

7. Hithau ni fyn a gaffo; ni chaiff a ddymuno.—Ellis Wynne.

[Translation.—1. Blessed is [he that] considereth the poor. 2. Woe [to him that] buildeth a town with blood. 3. From [what] has been remarked it is easy to see. 4. And let there not be [a man who] shall dwell therein. 5. [He that] kills shall be killed. 6. Let them have authority to do [what] they wish. 7. She will not take [what] she may have; she shall not have [what] she may desire.]

873. Possessive Case.—Clauses introduced by whose, or of which (e.g., whose power is infinite), will be expressed in Welsh—

874 α) By setting the relative pron. as the nom. of the clause, and placing the governing noun under the government of the prep. a. [Order: relative, verb, prep. with its case.]

Yr hun sydd â'i allu yn ei law = who is with his power in his hand; whose power, &c.

Y rhai sydd â'u sail mewn pridd. Job iv. 19.

Y rhai odd â'u synwgrau yn effro.—Theo. Evans.

(α) "Whose name" is usually expressed by "â'i enw"=with his name.

875. β) By placing the relative in an absolute state at the beginning of the clause, and making the governing noun the nom. to the verb.¹ [Order: relative, verb, nom.]

¹ A similar idiom is found in the Armorican language.—See Ed. Llwyd's Arch. Brit., p. 193.

Y rhai y coffſſir eu henwau = (as to) whom, their names are mentioned ; whose names are mentioned.

Yr hwn y mae ei cinioes ynaddo. Gen. i. 30.

Yr hwn y mae ei wyntyll yn ei law. S. Matt. iii. 12.

876. γ) By placing the governing noun first, and then the relative in a possessive state—as in English. [Order : nom., possessive, verb.]

1. Dyma y bachgen, tad yr hwn a welais.

2. Diwedd y rhai yw distryw ; duw y rhai yw eu bol. Phil. iii. 19.

3. Tad yr hwn a laddwyd yn y llofruddiaeth greulawn.—Theo. Evans.

[Translation.—1. This is the boy, whose father I saw. 2. Whose end is destruction ; whose god is their belly. 3. Whose father was killed in the cruel murder.]

877. Negative particles.—A clear distinction between the negatives ni and na is not observed in relative clauses. The following may be considered as general rules : (a) Ni, nid, and nis follow simple relatives ; (b) Na, nad, and nas are used after indefinite relatives ; and (c) in simple relative clauses when the relative heading is omitted.

1. (a) Ger bron y Pab, yr hwn ni ddichon gamgymmyd.—M. Kyffin.

2. Saif ei esgyru allan, y rhai ni welid o'r blaen. Job xxxiii. 21.

3. (b) Hawdd ei ddeall i'r sawl nas gallant hebgor llawer o amser.—R. I. Prys.

4. (c) Mewn llyfrau ereill na bu erioed ammheuaeth am danynt.—Edw. Samuel.

5. Llawer o lyfrau historiau nas gwyddom pwy a'u hysgrifennodd.—Edw. Samuel.

6. Cymmeryd gafael yng ngwaith pellenigyn nad oedd yn ymihoni mewn un ddawn ragorach.—W. Davies.

[Translation.—1. Before the Pope, who cannot make a mistake. 2. His bones, that were not seen before, stick out. 3. Easy to be understood by such as cannot spare much time. 4. In other books respecting which there never has been a doubt. 5. Many historical books, that we do not know who wrote them. 6. To take hold of the work of a stranger who did not lay claim to greater talent.]

ABSOLUTE CLAUSE.

878. The case absolute is expressed by the particle a before a consonant, or ac before a vowel, with a participle of any tense. [Order : absolute particle, noun or pronoun, participle.]

Pres. and Past :

Dydo i ni, a nyni yn gofyn.—Com. Prayer.

Ac a hwy yn gwerandaw, Efe a chwanegodd. S. Luke xix. 11.

Pa ham, a mi yn disgwyl iddi ddwyn grawnwin, y dug hirawn gwyllt-on? Is. v. 4.

A'r Cynry yn cysgu, rhuthrodd y gelyn am eu penau. —Theo. Evans.

Perfect definite. A mi wedi dyfod, ymlawenhaodd pawb.

Future. A mi ar fedr ysgrifennu, attaliodd fy llaw.

879. In a negative clause, heb fod, "without being," precedes the participle in present, past, and future: heb, "without," is substituted for wedi in the perfect definite.

A mi heb fod yn ysgrifennu, I not being writing.

A mi heb fod ar fedr ysgrifennu, I not being about to write.

A mi heb ysgrifennu, I not having written.

(a) The participle "yn bod," equivalent to "being," is omitted in affirmative clauses. A mi yno = I there; I being there. A'r brenin yno = the king there; the king being there. In a negative clause, "bod" is expressed, preceded by heb. A'r brenin heb fod yno, the king not being there.

(b) The absolute particle is sometimes left out, especially if the conjunction ac (and) begins the sentence, and the noun or pronoun of the absolute clause has a vowel for its initial letter. For instance, 'And He coming nigh, the multitude rejoiced,' would be expressed by 'Ac Efe yn nesáu, llawenhaodd y dyrfa,' not 'Ac ac Efe yn nesáu,' &c.

APPOSITION CLAUSE. (§§ 419-430 ; 475, 476 ; 525-528.)

SYNOPTICAL VIEW OF THE INITIAL MUTATIONS.

880. The consonants that undergo a change or modification when standing as the initial letters in words, are the nine following : c, p, t ; g, b, d ; ll, m, rh.

881. These are divided into three classes, according to the modifications of which they are susceptible.

882. a) C, P, T. form the first class, and have each three changes or modifications of the radical form ; namely, the middle, nasal, and aspirate.

883. b) G, B, D, form the second class, and have each two changes or modifications of the radical form ; namely, the middle and the nasal. This class has no aspirate sound : hence the words that govern the aspirate of the first class govern the radical of the second.¹

884. c) LL, M, RH, form the third class, and have each one change or modification of the radical form ; namely, the middle. This class has no nasal and aspirate sounds : hence the words that govern the nasal of the first and second classes, and the aspirate of the first, govern the radical of the third class.

¹ The words ni, na, and oni, form an exception. These govern the first class in the aspirate, the second and third in the middle. (See § 913.)

885. A TABLE showing the various modifications of mutable consonants :—

		Radical.	Middle.	Nasal.	Aspirate.
1 Class.	{ C	Câr, a friend	Gâr	Nghâr	Châr
	{ P	Pen, a head	Ben	Mhen	Phen
	{ T	Tâd, a father	Dâd	Nhâd	Thâd
2 Class.	{ G	Gwâr, a husband	—wâr	Ngwâr
	{ B	Brawd, a brother	Frawd	Mrawd
	{ D	Dant, a tooth	Ddant	Nant
3 Class.	{ Ll	Llaw, a hand	Law
	{ M	Mam, a mother	Fam
	{ Rh	Rhwyd, a net	Rwyd

886. The mutable consonants are influenced by the words that immediately precede them; that is, a word beginning with one of the mutable consonants retains the radical sound, or is changed into the middle, the nasal, or the aspirate, according to the government of the word that immediately precedes it in the same clause. Thus,

Ty ein tâd, our father's house. Here tâd retains the radical form t, because ein governs the radical sound.

Ty dy dâd, thy father's house. Here tâd is changed into the middle form dâd, because dy governs the middle.

Ty fy nhâd, my father's house. Here tâd is changed into the nasal form nhâd, because fy governs the nasal.

Ty ei thâd, her father's house. Here tâd is changed into the aspirate form thâd, because ei governs the aspirate.

887. The remaining radical consonants (ch followed by w, ff, h, n, s) are immutable; that is, they have one, and only one, form under all circumstances; as, Ty ein nain; ty dy nain; ty fy nain; ty ei nain.

RADICAL AND MIDDLE SOUNDS.

Nouns, adjectives, pronouns, and verbs.

888. The word that occupies the first place in a clause retains its radical sound.

Dynion dewr a ddaethant yno. (§ 433.) Tydi a gerais. (§ 449.) Gofynodd iddo.

Cywir yr atebodd. (§ 693.) Dysgedig y cyfrifir Arthur. (§ 653.)

Pum diwrnod yr arosais. (§ 454.)

(a) When an interjection is understood, the word is usually changed into the middle sound. Garedig frawd = O garedig frawd. (§ 859.)

(b) When the equal degree of an adjective is put absolutely, its initial assumes the middle sound. (§ 483, a.) Goched yw'r tân! Leied o wledydd sy'n mwynhau ei bendithion!

(c) An infinitive verb heading a transitive clause is put in the middle sound. Mae'n dweyd geisio o hono ddyfod. (§ 592.)

The verb bod, when heading a transitive clause, is irregular, but should properly assume the middle sound. [Read § 593.] Dywedir fod Arthur yn darllen; dywedir bod Arthur yn darllen.

When the transitive clause precedes the sentence on which it depends, the infinitive of the transitive clause is put either in the radical or middle.

Dysgu—ddysgu—o hono ei wers	} sydd amlwg.
Darfod—ddarfod—cymmeryd yr arian
Bod—fod—dyn yn farwol

The verb bod heading rules or resolutions is put in the radical or middle. Thus,

Penderfynwyd—Bod—fod—i swyddogion gael eu dewis.
Bod—fod—i'r swyddogion gyfarfod bob mis.

889. The radical sound comes after common adjectives of the equal and comparative degrees; the middle after the positive and superlative. (§ 473.)

Equal. Cyn fwyned gwr. Mor hardd bachgen.

Comp. Mwynach gwr. Mwy gwrol milwr.

Pos. Trugarog Dduw. Grasusol frenhines.

Super. Anwylaf gyfaill. Grasusaf frenhines.

890. Nouns masculine retain the radical after the ordinals; nouns feminine are changed into the middle. (§ 501.)

Mas. Y pummed dydd. Y degfed tro.

Fem. Y bummed bennod. Y ddegfed ran.

(a) But the ordinal ail (second) is followed by the middle even when the noun is masculine. Yr ail ddydd.

891. Cardinal numbers are followed by the radical sound (§ 491, &c.), except

(a) Un, feminine, dau and dwy, which govern the middle sound. (§ 493.) Un ddynes. Un ddynes ar bymtheg. Dau ddyn. Dwy ddynes.

But un, feminine, governs the radical of ll and rh. Un llaw. Un rhaw.

(b) Tri and chwe, which govern the aspirate of c, p, t; the radical of the other consonants. (§ 494.) Tri char. Tri char ar ddeg. Tri phen. Tri thy. Chwe char.

(c) Saith and wyth, which govern the middle of c, p, t; the radical of the other consonants. (§ 495.) Saith gorn (rad. corn). Saith ben (rad. pen). Saith dorth (rad. torth). Wyth gwas (rad. gwas). Wyth bys (rad. bys). Wyth llong (rad. llong).

(d) Deng, deuddeng, and pymtheng, which govern the middle of g, the nasal of d, and the radical of m. (See § 496.) Deng wr. Deng nafad. Deng mis.

After some of the cardinals, blynedd and blwydd assume the nasal sound, and diwrnod the nasal or the radical. [See § 497.]

892. The indefinite pronouns dim, neb, pob, llawer, un (mas.), yr un (mas.), rhai, sawl, and peth, govern the radical sound; the others govern the middle. [See § 213, &c.]

Rad. Pob tro. Rhai llyfrau. Yr un dynion. Pa sawl dyn?

Mid. Ambell dro. Amryw lyfrau. Rhyw ddynion. Yr holl ddynion.

(a) Y sawl=such, governs the middle. Y sawl bethau.

(b) The interrogative pa governs the middle. Pa ddyn yw efe?

(c) The rel. yr hwn, &c., governs the repeated antecedent in the middle. Yr hwn dabernacl. Heb. ix. 2. Yr hon lanerch. Yr hyn beth.

893. Adjectives and adverbs are put in the middle after feminine nouns singular; in the radical after fem. plural, and after masculines, sing. and plural. (§ 474.)

Fem. sing. Gwraig ddoeth. Gwraig dra doeth. Y sefyllfa fwyaf blodeuog.

Gwraig dda, ostyngedig, gall.

Fem. pl. Gwragedd doethion. Gwragedd tra doethion.
Gwragedd da, gostyngedig, call.

Mas. Gwr doeth. Gwr tra doeth. Gwyr doethion.
Gwr da, gostyngedig. Gwyr da, gostyngedig.

(a) But the adverbs go, mor, cyn, and generally rhy, retain their radical form even after a feminine noun sing. Geneth go dâl. Geneth môr dâl. Geneth rhy dâl.

(b) The word pobl, though regarded as a pl. noun, is followed by the middle sound. Pobl dda.

894. The genitive expressed by mere apposition retains its radical sound. (§ 437.)

Coron brein. Iaith plentyn. Sail ty. Ystyr geiriau.

(a) After teyrnas, templ, ty, and eglwys, the word Duw generally takes the middle sound. Teyrnas Dduw. Dewi and Dafydd have the same construction. Esgob Ty Ddewi. [§ 437 (b).]

895. Nouns in the genitive case, used adjectively, follow the same rules as adjectives; i.e., they are put in the middle after fem. noun. sing.; but in the radical after fem. noun. pl., and after mas., sing. and pl. (§§ 408, 439, 441.)

Fem. sing.	Torth geiniog.	Sarff bres.	Ysgubor goed.
Fem. pl.	Torthau ceiniog.	Seirff pres.	Ysguboriau coed.
Mas.	Ty coed.	Ceffyl pren.	Ceffylau pren.

896. Apposition-nouns and apposition-adjectives retain their radical sound. (§§ 420, 421, 476.)

Paul, gwas Iesu Grist. Mon, mam Cymru.

Mae genym gyfeillion ffyddlaw, brodyr caredig, merched da, a llyfrau defnyddiol.

Cymmerodd agwedd ddynol, cyffelyb i'r eiddom ni.

897. Common nouns and adjectives, used as agnomens after proper names of whatever gender, are put in the middle sound. (§§ 422, 477.)

Dafydd frenin. Hywel dda. Daniel ddu. Elen brydferth.

898. Nouns put in apposition to personal pronouns generally assume the middle; but apposition personal pronouns are generally put in the radical. (§§ 526, 528.)

Nouns. Myfi ddyn. Tydi ferch. Chwi bechaduriaid.

Ymostyngodd erom ni ddynion.

Pron. Gwerthwyd ni, myfi a'm pobl.

899. Some nouns and adjective pronouns denoting number and quantity are put in the middle, when the natural order is inverted. (§ 444, a.)

Dwfr ddigon. Rhyfeddodau lawer.

900. Proper names of places and rivers follow the rules of common nouns. (§§ 458, 460.)

Bum yng Nghaer. Aeth i Gorwen. Wrth Ddyfrdwy.

(a) Foreign proper names of places usually retain the radical. (§ 459.) Arosodd yn Damascus.

(b) Proper names of rivers, although fem., retain the rad. after the article. Y Dyfrdwy.

901. Proper names of persons usually retain the radical sound. [See § 461.]

Dywedodd wrth Dafydd. Anfonodd at Llewelyn.

902. The article y governs a fem. noun sing. or its accompaniments in the middle; a feminine noun pl. and masculine nouns, sing. and pl., in the radical. (§§ 399, 400, 401.)

Fem. sing. Y ddynes. Y ddoeth ddynes. Y dra doeth ddynes.

Fem. pl. Y gwragedd. Y doeth wragedd. Y tra doeth wragedd.

Mas. Y gwr. Y doeth wr. Y gwyr.

(a) Dau, two, though masculine, pobl and pobloedd, though plural, are softened after y. Y ddau ddyn. Y bobl hyn. Y bobloedd hyn.

(b) 'Math, when used adjectively with either a masculine or feminine noun, is softened after y; as, y fath wr, such a man.'

(c) Cardinal numbers, even when preceding singular substantives of the feminine gender, retain the radical sound after y. Y tair gwaith hyn, these three times.

But dwy, two, is put in the middle sound. Y ddwy ddynes, the two women.

(d) Fem. nouns sing. beginning with ll or rh retain the radical after y. Y llong. Y lleuad. Y rhaw. Y rheol.

(e) Names of rivers : see § 900 (b).

903. The pronouns ym, ein, eich, eu, and ill, govern the radical; dy, yth, and ei mas., govern the middle. (§§ 537, 538.) [Ei fem. governs the aspirate.]

Rad. Mi a'm tād. Ein tad. Eich tad. Eu tad. Ill dau.

Mid. Dy dad. Ti a'th dad. Ei dad.

☞ (a) But ei mas., and ei fem., followed by finite verbs with consonant initials, govern the radical. Efe a'i (= a ei) cospodd ef. Efe a'i cospodd hi. [See § 544.]

904. The auxiliaries fe, fo, e, and mi, are followed by the middle sound. (§ 520, a.)

Fe ddaw. Fo luddiwyd fy nghais. Mi feddyliais.

905. The subject coming immediately after its verb retains the radical; but if separated from the verb by "an intervenient word or phrase," it assumes the middle sound. (§§ 589, 594.)

Y mae dyn yn y ty. Y mae yn y ty ddyn.
Rhoddir llyfr iddo. Rhoddir iddo llyfr.

(a) The verb oes is often followed by its subject in the middle. (§ 589, b.) Nid oes dwyll ynddo.

(b) The pronouns mi and ti, and their compounds, assume the middle, when they follow their verbs. (§ 589, a.) Caraf fi. Cerir i'mau. Ceri di. But when the verb ends in t, ti and its compounds retain the radical. Ceraist ti ef.

906. A finite verb is followed by its object in the middle sound: an infinitive is followed by its object in the radical. (§ 590.)

Darllenais lyfr. Dymunodd fyned.
Darllen llyfr. Dymuno myned.

(a) If an intervenient word or phrase separates the object from the Infinitive, the object assumes the middle sound. (§ 594.) Tynu ymaith bechodau.

(b) The pronoun ti and its compounds are put in the middle after the Infinitive. Y mae efe yn dy garu di. Y mae hwn yn dy gasâu dithau.

907. A Transitive Clause has the initial consonant of the Infinitive put in the middle. [See §§ 592, 593.]

Y mae yn dweyd fyned o hono i'r dref.

908. The Infinitive is put in the middle when its subject is governed by a preposition.

Gofynais i'r dyn ddyfod. Y mae yn gofyn iddo ef ddyfod.

909. Intervient phrase.

If the subject or the object, following the verb, be separated from it by an intervient word or phrase, the subject or the object will be put in the middle sound. (§ 594.)

Y mae ym Mhrydain frenhines ddoeth.

Yr oedd yno ddynion dewr.

Cymmeryd gydag ef fantell gyssegredig y swyddogaeth.—Brutus.

910. Prepositions.

Prepositions proper governing the radical sound: see § 364, a.

Ger llaw. Mewn ty. Rhwng mynyddoedd.

(a) The participial signs ym, wedi, ar ol, and ar fedr, are here included. Yn dysgu. Wedi dysgu. Ar fedr dysgu.

Prepositions proper governing the middle sound: see § 364, b.

Ar ben. At ddyn. Gan ddyn. Tros fynnydd.

(a) The participial signs gan, dan, and ar, are here included. Gan ddysgu. Dan ddysgu. Ar ddysgu.

Substantive prepositions govern the radical sound: see § 368.

Parth rhyfel yr India. Herwydd pethau ereill.

Compounds ending with prepositions proper govern the same sounds as the last of their component parts: see § 372.

Oddi ar fryn. Oddi wrth frawd. O fewn ty.

Compounds ending with a substantive govern the radical sound: see § 373.

Ger bron gorsedd grâs. Yng nghylch pynciau dyrws.

911. Adverbs and conjunctions.

Verbs are put in the middle when immediately preceded by adverbs of quality. (§ 694.)

Awyddus ddisgwyliai. Yr oedd yn peraidd ganu.

912. The adverbs of comparison digon, llai, lleiaf, mwy, mwyaf, and po, govern the radical sound; cyn, go, lled, mor, pur, and rhy, govern the middle; tra governs the aspirate. (§ 691.)

Rad. Digon cas.

Llai dysgedig.

Po dysgedicaf.

Mid. Cyn gased.

Go ddysgedig.

Lled ddysgedig.

Asp. Tra chas.

Tra pharchus.

Tra thew.

(a) Cyn, môr, and pur, are followed by the middle or radical of ll and rh, but generally by the radical. Cyn lloned or loned. Môr llon or lon. Pur rhwydd or rwydd.

913.  Ni (not); oni (is not? unless, until); and na (not, imperative, that not, not), govern the aspirate of the 1st class, and the middle of the 2nd and 3rd. But na (nor, than) governs the aspirate of the 1st, and the radical of the 2nd and 3rd.

Aspirate.—Ni char, he will not love. Oni char? will he not love? Oni phaid, if he will not cease. Oni thawo, until he be silent. Na thaw, do not be silent. Amlwg yw na thaw, it is evident that he will not be silent. A daw eich brawd? Na thaw. Will your brother be silent? No: lit. he will not be silent. Dyma'r bachgen na thaw, this is the boy who will not be silent.

Middle.—Ni weithia. Oni weithia? Oni farna. Oni ddelo. Na ladrata. Amlwg yw na feddylia. A rwymir ef? Na rwymir. Dyma'r bachgen na ddysga.

Na = “nor,” “than.”—Asp. Na châr na chyfaill. Gwell na thâd. Rad. Na brawd na mam. Gwell na brawd ac na mam.

(a) The above ni, oni, and na govern the inflections of bod in the middle or radical. Ni fydd or bydd. Oni fydd or bydd. Na fydd or bydd.

914. Nid, nad, nis, nas, onid, onis, govern the radical.

Nid milwr ydyw. Dywed nad doeth yw'r eynghor.

Nis daeth. Dywed nas daeth.

Onid tywysog yw Iorwerth? Onis delo.

915. The auxiliary dim governs the radical, and mo the middle. (§ 689, note a.)

Ni fyn ddim dyfod. Ni chanfwm mo ddichellion y dyn.

916. The adverbs of showing, dyma, dyna, &c., govern the middle. (§ 698.)

Dyma geffyl hardd. Dacw ddyn tâl.

917. The expletive a, the interrogative a, and the disjunctive neu, govern the middle: the expletive y,¹ the interrogative ai, and the disjunctive ynte, govern the radical. (§§ 705, 708, 727.)

Mid. Iorwerth a ddaeth. A ddaeth efe? Dyn neu ddynes.

Rad. Yno y gwelais ef? Ai dyn da ynte dyn drwg yw efe?

(a) Neu governs a finite verb in the rad. Aros yma neu dds ymaith.

918. A, “and,” “as;” na, “nor,” “than;” and no, “than,” govern the 2nd and 3rd classes in the radical, and the 1st class in the aspirate. (§ 725.)

Rad. Mab a merch. Cyn goched a gwaed. Cochach na gwaed.

Asp. Mam a thâd. Cyn goched a thân. Na mam na thâd.

¹ The obsolete expletive yd governs the middle. Basaf dwfr man yd lefair, water is shallowest where it makes a noise.

Thus a expletive and a interrogative govern the middle; a=and, a=as, and d=with, govern the aspirate of the 1st, and the radical of the 2nd and 3rd classes.

919. The concessives er, serch, cyd; the explanatories or transitives y, mai, taw; and the suppositives os, or, pe, pei, pes, onis, oddi eithr, oddigerth, govern the radical sound. The suppositive o governs the radical of the 2nd and 3rd classes and the aspirate of the 1st. The suppositive oni, see § 913. The negative motive rhag governs the radical.

Concessive. Er dywedyd o honof. Serch ceisio o honof.

Explan. Dywed y daw. Dywed mai (or taw) brenin yw.

Suppositive. Os daw. Pe delai. Onis daw. Oddi eithr dyfod o honof.
O cherwch fi, cedwch fy ngorchymynion.

Neg. motive. Rhag taro o honot dy droed.

Thus expletive y and transitive y govern the radical: the article y governs the radical and middle. See § 902.

920. The causals am and gan govern the middle; o achos, o herwydd, o blegyd, o waith, o ran, o ethryb, rhag, and canys, govern the radical; yn gymmaint a has the same government as a, "as." See § 918.

Mid. Am ddywedyd o'r dyn. Gan geisio o honof.

Rad. O herwydd dywedyd o'r dyn. O achos ceisio o honof.

921. The temporals pan, er pan, and tan, govern the middle; cyn, wedi (or gwedi), ar ol, yn ol, nes, hyd nes, onis, govern the radical. Oni and hyd oni have the same government as ni: see § 913. Tru is irregular: see "Alphabetical List."

Pan ddaw. Er pan ddaeth. Tàn ddaw.

Cyn dyfod o hono. Wedi dyfod o hono.

922. Yn participial—yn apposition—yn adverbial—yn preposition: see § 931.

923. Fel, fal, mal, megys, and sef, are followed by the radical.

Ymddygodd Iorwerth fel gwr bonheddig.

Efe sydd Dduw, sef Duw ein tadau.

(a) Sef is often followed by bod and darfod, when heading a transitive clause, in the middle sound. Hyn a ddywed, sef fod dyn yn farwol.

924. The adversatives ond, onid, eithr, oddi eithr, oddigerth, namyn, and heb law, govern the radical sound. (§ 728.)

Nid oes yma onid ty i Dduw.

(a) They are often followed by bod and darfod, heading a transitive clause, in the middle sound. Ni ddywedodd ddim ond fod dyn yn farwol.

925. Interjections.—Nouns or their concomitants assume the middle sound after interjections, expressed or omitted. (§ 751–754.)

O Dduw. Ha fab. Barchedig Syr=O Barchedig Syr.

(a) The radical form is sometimes retained, if the interjection is omitted. Duw Dad.

926. Governing words omitted.

a) When the expletive a is omitted, the verb is still put in the middle sound. (§ 706.)

Pwy laddodd y ei?=prwy a laddodd?

Arthur fydd yn frenin=Arthur a fydd.

927. β) When 'yn apposition' is omitted, the apposition word, if coming after the verb, still assumes the middle sound. (§ 655.)

Arthur sydd frenin=Arthur sydd yn frenin.

Efe oedd ganwyll yn llosgi=Efe oedd yn ganwyll.

(a) Should the apposition word precede the verb, it resumes its radical form. Dysgedig y cyfrifir Arthur=yn ddysgedig.

(b) Sometimes the apposition word is put in the radical, even when it follows the verb. (§ 655.) I'r dyn a fyddo da.

928. γ) When adverbs of quality (e.g., llefaru yn ddoeth) begin the sentence, yn is thrown off, and the next word resumes its radical initial. (§ 693.)

Doeth y lleferaist=yn ddoeth.

929. δ) Interjections omitted : see above.

930. ε) Words denoting duration and point of time, distance of place, and measure, retain their radical initials if they stand foremost in sentences; but if they follow the verb, their initial consonants are changed into the middle. (§ 454.)

Deng wythnos yr arosais. Arosais dleng wythnos.

NASAL SOUND.

931. 'Yn preposition,' and the pronoun fy, "my," govern the nasal sound.

Yn nhŷr Cymru.
Fy nhŷd.

Ym Merwyn.
Fy mrawd.

Yng Nghorwen.
Fy nghariad.

Synoptical view of the different governments of yn.

Yn participial governs the radical. Arthur sydd yn teyrnasu.

Yn apposition „ „ middle. Arthur sydd yn frenin.

Yn adverbial „ „ middle. Arthur sydd yn rhyfela yn dda.

Yn preposition „ „ nasal. Yn nhŷr Cymru.

(a) Yn apposition and yn adverbial govern the radical sound of words beginning with ll and rh.

932. The nasal sound comes after some of the cardinal numbers. (§§ 496, 497.)

Deng nafad. Saith niwrnod. Pum mlynedd.

(a) Dr. Aufrecht has endeavoured to prove that all the words which take the nasal sound after them ended originally with an n. “C G, P B, T D, are respectively changed into NGH NG, MH M, NH N, if preceded by the possessive pronoun fy (my), the preposition yn (in), and certain numerals. These numerals are pump or pum (five), saith (seven), wyth (eight), naw (nine), deg (ten), ugain (twenty) and its compounds, can (a hundred). . . . Only three words undergo usually a change after these [numerals], namely, blwydd or blwydd (year), and diwrnod (day). The simple reason why the above-mentioned numerals only, and no others, have this influence, is because they alone ended originally with an n. Compare

WELSH.	SANSKRIT.	GOthic.	LITHUANIAN.
Pump	pancan	—	—
Saith	saptan	sibun	septyni.
Wyth	ashtan	—	asztūni.
Naw	navan	niun	dewyni.
Deg	daśan	tailun	—

“Can, a corruption of cant, which still exists and agrees with the Irish cet, has exceeded these limits, and produces the change in consequence of its present final n, while un (one) is prevented from exercising a similar influence, because it originally terminated with a vowel (uno). The preposition yn agrees with én, Latin in, Gothic in, Oscan and Umbrian en, Lithuanian in, and belongs to the same category as pump, &c.

“In composition, a corresponding nasal must be substituted for a mute, if a word is preceded by the negative particle an, which corresponds to the Greek án, Umbrian and Oscan an, Sanserit an, Gothic un, Latin in. Thus we have anghadarn (powerless) for an+cadarn, annhech (sinless) for an+pech, anneffro (not awake) for an+deffro. The same takes place after another particle, cy, xi, cum; we find, therefore, cymghas (mutual hate) from cy+cas, cynghofal (mutual care) from cy+gofal, cymhorth (mutual aid) from cy+porth, cymrawd (discourse) from cy+brawdd, cynkebygu (to compare) from cy+tebygu, cyngefod (custom) from cy+defod.

“From all these cases it is evident that the n, coming in contact with the following mute, had the power to assimilate it, though in course of time the cause might disappear, and the effect alone remain.

“Having shown that nasalization took place only where a preceding word ended with an n, we are naturally led to suppose that fy (my) also must have been originally fyn, though this form is no longer to be discovered even in the oldest literary monuments of the Kelt. But we must recollect that our my, thy, are a similar corruption of the Anglo-Saxon mīn, thīn, and that the Gothic meīn, as well as the Lithuanian mānas, have an n in the possessive pronoun.”—(See a paper, read May the 23rd, 1856, before the Philological Society, by Theodore Aufrecht, Ph.D., author of “De accentu compositorum Sanscritorum,” &c., &c.)

ASPIRATE SOUND.

933.  Ni, “not;” na, imper. “not;” “that . . not;” ai ni, “is not;” oni, “is not,” “unless,” “until,” govern the aspirate of the 1st class, and the middle of the 2nd and 3rd classes.

Ni châr.
Ni ddarllen.

Na châr.
Na ddarllen.

Anlwg yw na châr.
Anlwg yw na ddarllen.

934. The prepositions a, gyda, and efo, “with;” tua, “towards;” and tra, “beyond,” govern the aspirate of the 1st class, and radical of the 2nd and 3rd.

Lladd â chleddyf.

Gyda thi.

Taraw â bys.

935. The conjunctions a, “and,” “as;” na, “nor,” “than;” the obsolete no, “than;” and o, “if,” govern the aspirate of the 1st, and radical of the 2nd and 3rd.

Bara a chaws.
Bara a gwin.

Cystal a thi.
Gwell na bwyd.

936. The numerals tri and chwe, and the pronoun ei feminine, govern the aspirate of the 1st, and radical of the 2nd and 3rd classes. (§§ 494, 540.)

Tri chosyn.
Tri gwr.

Chwe chosyn.
Chwe gwr.

Ei chosyn.
Ei gwr.

937. Vowels aspirated.—Vowel initials take the aspirate h before them after the pronouns ym, ei feminine, ein, and eu. (§ 542.)

Myfi a'm hawen.

Ei hawen.

Ein hawen.

938. Ei masculine is followed by the aspirate h, if the following word be a finite verb. (§ 543.)

Arthur a'i (=a ei) handwyodd ef. Pan y'i (=y ei) handwyir.

939. The numeral ugain is aspirated after the preposition ar; as,

Un ar hugain. Dau ar hugain.

AN ALPHABETICAL LIST OF WORDS AND PARTICLES,

WITH EXAMPLES TO SHOW THEIR GOVERNING POWERS.

940. In the following alphabetical list, which contains, principally, simple prepositions, conjunctions, adverbs, and indefinite pronouns, it was thought unnecessary to insert all the compounds (e.g., o herwydd, oddi wrth, naill ai), as the government of these depends on the last word. For example, “herwydd” takes the radical after it, therefore the compound “o herwydd” requires to be followed by the radical. “Wrth” governs the middle, and therefore “oddi wrth” governs the same sound. (See §§ 370–373.)

A, expletive: mid. Daw a ddywedodd, God said.

A, interrogative: mid. A ddywedodd efe? did he say?

A, and; as; heading absolute clause: asp. Bara a chaws, bread and cheese. Môr ddysgedig a thithau, as learned as you. A thi yn ysgrifenu, you writing.

A, â, with: asp. Lladd â chleddyf, to kill with a sword.

Achos, on account of, because: rad. Achos dyfod o hono, because he came.

Ai, interrogative: rad. Ai ceiniog yw? is it a penny?

Ail, second: mid. Yr ail ddydd, the second day. Yr ail bennod, the second chapter. (See § 501, note b.)

Am, round; for; because: mid. Am ganol, round the middle. Am geiniog, for a penny. Am ddywedyd o hono, because he said.

Ambell, some few: mid. Ambell dro, sometimes.

Amgylch, about: rad. Myned amgylch dinas, to surround a city.

Amrai, } several: mid. Amrai bennodau, several chapters. Amryw
Amryw, } lyfrau, several books.

Ar, upon; participial sign of future=about: mid. Ar ben y ty, on the top of the house. Ar ddyfod, about to come.

(a) Ugain, twenty, is aspirated after ar. Saith ar hugain, seven and twenty.

Ar fedr, participial sign of the future=about: rad. Ar fedr myned, about to go.

Ar warthaf, upon: rad. Dyfod ar warthaf lladron, to surprise thieves.

At, to, towards: mid. Uchenaid at ddoeth, a sigh toward the wise.

Cân, as; since; with; participial sign of the present: mid. Can gyntel a'r gwynt, as swift as the wind. A chan ddisgwyl o hono, and since he expected. Nid oes llyfr na chan fab na chan ferch yr amaethwr, neither the son nor the daughter of the farmer has a book. A chan gyfaddef ei bechodau, and confessing his sins.

Canys, for: rad. Canys daeth Arthur yma, for Arthur came here.

Câr, cêr=gêr: rad.

Cerfydd=gerfydd: rad.

Gwedi=gwedi: rad.

Cyd, although: rad. A chyd dylem ni, and although we ought.

Cyda=gyda: rad.

Cyfryw, such: mid. Y cyfryw bethau, such things.
